The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the comprehensive preschool registration program which began 22 years ago will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during March and April, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Because of a change in state regulations, parents must register any child who will be 5 years old by December 31, 2001. This new law allows exemptions to the school attendance requirements as follows:

- permits compliance through the home school instruction regulation;
- grants a one-year immaturity waiver if the parent or guardian makes a written request to the local school system; and
- allows a 5-year-old to be enrolled in one of three alternative program settings — a full-time licensed child care center, a full-time registered family day care home, or part time in a Head Start 5-year-old program.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked by the board to fill out the registration blank at the end of this article and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a registration appointment. However, parents who choose to use one of the exemptions from the required 5-year-old attendance must request the appropriate exemption form from the Department of Pupil Services at 301-334-8939.

Parents are notified to bring their child's birth certificate, an official immunization record, and social security card, and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. New state regulations now require parents to also bring proof of current residency, such as:

- deed/mortgage agreement,
- current property tax bill,
- current rental lease or agreement, and
- current utility bill with applicant's name and address.

In addition, each child registering for school will receive a general health interview. Immunizations, if needed, will be administered on site by the Garrett County Health Department nurses free of charge.

GCM Hospital Offers Cardiac Rehab Programs

"Heartfelt Changes for Life" was the theme of National Cardiac Rehab week which was celebrated last week (February 4-10). According to a spokesperson for Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the theme reflects the dedication of cardiac rehab professionals as they strive to reduce the devastating effects of heart disease for the patients they serve.

Heart disease is a leading cause of death in the United States for both men and women, the spokesperson said. Coronary heart disease causes arteries to become blocked, causing chest pain and a decreased flow of blood to the heart muscle. This may cause arteries to become completely blocked, resulting in a heart attack. Annually, 250,000 persons suffer from heart attacks.

In response to these statistics, Garrett County Memorial Hospital offers two cardiac rehab programs. Phase I is for inpatients who have had a heart attack, are on the verge of a heart attack, or show the risk factors of having a heart attack. This program allows nursing staff to individually meet with patients and assist them in developing an exercise program, modify their diet, and modify any other risk factors that may exist.

Phase II is an outpatient program for anyone who has participated in Phase I or who has been referred to this program by a physician. Phase II classes are held every other week and last for about two hours. In the class, participants are addressed on a one-on-one basis in order to adjust their exercise schedule. They also participate in a classroom atmosphere to educate themselves on how to modify their lifestyles in order to reduce some of the risk factors. This program also exposes participants to a network of their peers in which they can gain support.

"The main goal of these programs is to teach participants and their families the risk factors of heart disease and how to modify them," stated Beth Spencer, R.N., B.S.N., C.C.R.N. (registered nurse, bachelor of science in nursing, critical care registered nurse). Risk factors include cigarette smoking, high cholesterol levels, high blood pressure, a family history of heart disease, diabetes, low activity levels, obesity, stress, and age. Spencer added, "Patients who live in the local area who travel to Morgantown for cardiac treatment are now being referred to the cardiac rehab program at GCMH."

A physician's referral is necessary to enter these programs. Phase II is offered to referrals and their families free of charge. For more information about cardiac rehab services offered at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, persons may call 301-533-4352.

Foundations Set "Dial-A-Doctor" For February 21

The Arthritis Foundation and the Maryland Lupus Foundation are offering a free community program to give people an opportunity to ask questions, get answers, and learn the facts about arthritis, lupus, and other related diseases. Persons are invited to "Dial-A-Doctor" at 1-800-365-3811 on Wednesday, Feb 21, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Four rheumatologists (physicians specializing in the treatment of arthritis) — Margaret Fountain, M.D., Lynn Ludmer, M.D., Gary Ruppert, M.D., Raymond Wilson, M.D. — will answer questions about arthritis, lupus, and related diseases (such as rheumatoid and osteoarthritis, gout, fibromyalgia, Lyme disease, Sjogren's and Raynaud's). They will offer information treatment options (including medications, exercise, and surgery), research, and self-help programs.

Still A Member Of Academy Of Fam. Physicians

Thomas G. Johnson, M.D., a family physician in Oakland, has completed continuing medical education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), the national association of family doctors.

AAFP members are required to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. The academy, with 89,400 members, is one of the largest medical specialty organizations in the country. It was the first national medical group to require continuing medical education for its members, thus ensuring their continuing medical expertise.

"The specialty of family practice combines the latest in medical technologies with a long tradition of caring and service. Today's family physician is educated and trained to care for the whole person, treating the majority of medical problems," stated an AAFP spokesperson. Johnson has been an active member since 1973.

Family practice was recognized in 1969 as a medical specialty by the American Medical Association and the American Board of Medical Specialties. Family practice was the first specialty to require its diplomates to recertify by taking recertification exams every six years.

Dr. Johnson has been a practicing family physician in the Oakland area since 1973 and is a founding member of the Garrett Medical Group.

Gov. Glendening Announces Grant Funding For Anti-Tobacco Efforts

Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening has announced that a total of $7 million in grant funding will be awarded to the state's local health departments to develop comprehensive tobacco use prevention and cessation programs. This action was in response to a recent finding that 21.8% of Marylanders use some form of tobacco.

According to the Maryland Baseline Tobacco Study (MBTS), which provided information about the scope and magnitude of tobacco use statewide, as well as in each county, Garrett County Health Department will receive a total of $49,038.21 in state funding to administer its programs.

According to Garrett County Health Officer Rodney Glotfelty, "We certainly need a cessation program here." He noted that his staff is currently in the process of putting together a plan to submit to the state. He said that the plan will include community, school-based, enforcement and education programs.

"It is unacceptable that each year more than 7,500 Marylanders die from tobacco-related illness, the single most preventable cause of disease and death," said Gov. Glendening. "We are firmly committed to using the state's share of the national tobacco settlement to end the pain and suffering caused by tobacco. This study will provide us with the information to develop strategies to aggressively combat the use of tobacco, especially among young people."

As mandated by the Maryland State Legislature, the study consisted primarily of two separate surveys — a youth tobacco survey administered to nearly 56,000 students in over 300 public middle and high schools throughout the state and an adult tobacco survey conducted by phone with nearly 17,000 adults statewide.

The study provided information such as prevalence of tobacco use among youth and adults, age of first use, use of tobacco among pregnant women, the prevalence of tobacco use in households with children, and the percentage of Marylanders who have attempted to stop smoking cigarettes over the past year. Findings were reported according to age, gender, ethnicity and geographic region.

According to the study, an estimated 21.4% of middle and high school students and 21.8% of adults, 18 years of age and older, use some form of tobacco. A total of 42% of all state middle and high school students indicated living in households with tobacco users.

In all categories, cigarettes were the most commonly used tobacco product. The study found that 7.3% of middle school students, 23.7% of high school students and 16.7% of adults smoke cigarettes. Of underage youth who smoked, more than 30% of high school students and 17% of middle school students reported buying their own cigarettes.

Each county has formed a community health coalition to make recommendations on how the funds should be allocated and will submit these plans to the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) for approval. Funding is based on the number of youth and adult tobacco users in each county as compared to the rest of the state. DHMH will complement this local effort with statewide programs, a mass media countermarketing effort, and an evaluation of the program.

"By establishing a benchmark for tobacco use and prevalence, we can get a clearer picture of the needs in Maryland and intensify our efforts on all fronts to effect a reduction in tobacco-related illnesses and deaths," said DHMH Secretary Dr. Georges C. Benjamin. "The initial findings report takes a first look at the magnitude of tobacco use throughout the state, and detailed reports will be released in the future to assist us in customizing our efforts and measuring our progress."

An executive report of the baseline cancer study can be found at www.dhmh.state.md.us/esm/.

Managed Care Organization To Cover Those Patients Dropped By FreeState

by Elizabeth Cogan
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — About 40,000 Maryland Medicaid enrollees and their doctors can breathe a sigh of relief.

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene said Wednesday that Maryland Physicians Care will assume coverage for those patients who are scheduled to lose their current FreeState Health Plan on April 1.

The decision lets patients keep their doctors and allows the state to preserve managed care rather than revert to a potentially costly fee-for-servicearrangement, officials said.

While the arrangement requires the state to assume some financial risk, many officials said they are satisfied.

"From my point of view as a provider, I'm ecstatic," said Dr. Charles Shubin of the state's Medicaid Advisory Committee. "From the point of view of the patients, it's terrific...they don't have to do anything."

Debbie Chang, the deputy secretary of Health Care Financing, said she was very pleased Maryland Physicians Care stepped up to the plate, a move that will allow current FreeState members to "stay with their primary care providers."

Patients will be able to keep their current doctors because the three medical groups serving most of them — the University of Maryland Medical Center, Mercy Medical Center and Total Health Care — have

Child Passenger Safety Week Under Way; Lee Offers Advice

More parents and caregivers than ever before are securing their children in child safety seats. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), from 1996 to 1998, child safety seat use increased from 85 percent to 97 percent for infants less than 1 year old, and from 60 percent to 91 percent for toddlers, ages 1 to 4. During that same time period, child fatalities dropped 16 percent.

"But, amid this good news is an alarming fact: too many parents still don't use the full range of safety seats, especially booster seats. And, even though safety experts strongly recommend that children should not be moved into regular seat belts until they are 4 feet, 9 inches tall, about 80 pounds, and approximately 8 years old, NHTSA reports that booster seat use for children ages 4 to 8 is less than 10 percent," stated Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator for the Garrett County Health Department.

In observance of National Child Passenger Safety Week this week, February 11-17, the health department is encouraging parents to make an appointment to have their child safety seats inspected and to follow the four essential steps to protect children in motor vehicles:

1. Use rear-facing seats for children from birth to at least 20 pounds and at least one year of age. The harness straps should be at or below shoulder level. For babies who are under 1 year and over 20 pounds, be sure they ride in a safety seat approved for heavier babies and continue to ride rear-facing until at least 1 year of age.

2. Use forward-facing child seats for children over 20 pounds and at least 1 year old to about 40 pounds and about age 4. The harness straps should be at or above shoulder level. Most convertible seats require use of the top slot when used forward-facing.

3. Use belt-positioning boosters for children from about 40 pounds to about 80 pounds and 4'9". Belt-positioning booster seats must be used with both lap and shoulder belts. Never use a booster seat with a lap belt only. Make sure the lap belt fits low and tight to avoid abdominal injuries.

4. Use seat belts for older children large enough for the belt to fit correctly: at least 4'9" tall and about 80 pounds. If a child can sit with his back straight against the vehicle seat back cushion, with his knees bent over the vehicle's seat edge without slouching, he can be moved out of the booster seat into the seat belt in the back seat.

"Most caregivers don't realize the importance of changing child safety seats as their children grow and don't understand the dangers that standard seat belts can pose to young children," said Lee. Seat belts are designed for adults. On a small child, the adult lap belt rides up over the stomach and the shoulder belt cuts across the child's neck. In a crash, a small child may be ejected when a seat belt is the only restraint used, she said.

Parents and caregivers also need to understand how important it is to have their child safety seats inspected by a certified child passenger safety technician.

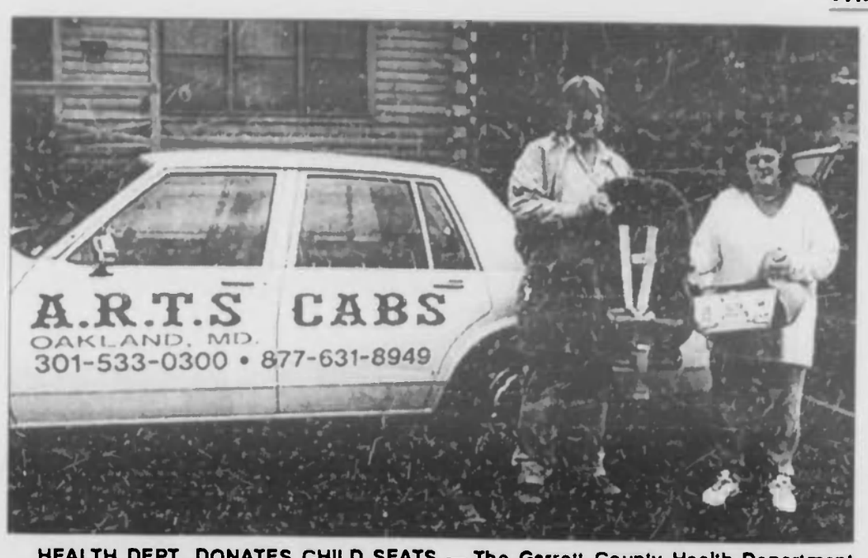
"According to a National Safety Council survey, 96 percent of parents believe they properly install seats," Lee said. "But when we do actual inspections, we find that at least four out of five children placed in child safety seats are improperly restrained.

"An inspection takes about 30 minutes and could save your child's life," Lee said. "Be prepared for someone to get into your car and work on your child safety seat. It's best to have the child with you to make sure we make the best recommendations for your child."

To have a child safety seat inspected by a certified child passenger safety technician, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department Kids in Safety Seat Program at 301-533-0113 for an appointment. The health department also has an income-based loaner program which includes infant, convertible, and booster seats.

Additional considerations:

- Never place a child in the front seat of a vehicle equipped with a passenger side air bag. All children age 12 and under should sit properly restrained in the back seat.
- Old/used child safety seats should not be used unless you are certain they have never been in a crash. If you are reusing a seat, make sure it is less than six years old, make sure you have all the pieces (including instructions) and make sure the seat has been checked for recalls.
- Always read carefully both the vehicle owner's manual and the instructions that come with the child safety seat.



HEALTH DEPT. DONATES CHILD SEATS — The Garrett County Health Department Highway Safety Program donated two child safety seats to Oakland-based A.R.T.S. Cab Company recently. The donation was made in observance of National Child Passenger Safety Week, which draws to a close tomorrow. "We believe child restraints are so important that people should use them even if the law doesn't require their use," said local highway safety coordinator Diane Lee. "Maryland law may exempt cabs from the safety belt and child safety seat law, but that doesn't protect any of the occupants if they are in a crash." A.R.T.S. Cab Company owner Curtis Pritts is shown with Lee as he holds a convertible safety seat that can face to the rear of a vehicle when holding 5-35 pound infants, and face forward for children that weigh 20-40 pounds. Lee is holding a booster seat for larger children weighing 40-70 pounds. Both seats are now available by request to customers of the cab company, which is planning to base a taxicab in Grantsville later this year to provide improved service for the northern end of the county.

AAA Provides Child Car Seat Buying Advice

Motor vehicle crashes are the top killer of children under the age of 10, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, in 1999 alone, over 1,100 children were killed and 182,000 more were injured in car crashes. Every day three children under 10 are killed and 500 more are injured in car crashes.

AAA Mid-Atlantic has been participating in National Child Passenger Safety Week, which concludes this Saturday, Feb. 17. To take the confusion out of one of the most important purchasing decisions a parent can make, the motorists' club offered the following 10 tips to help parents make an informed decision when buying a child safety seat:

- Check the vehicle owner's manual — Before purchasing a child safety seat, review the owner's manual and look for specifications for the proper placement of the child seat in your vehicle.
- Choose a seat that fits a variety of vehicles — Avoid seats with larger bases because they will not fit in smaller vehicles. Instead, choose one with a narrow base which is more versatile. Most retailers will allow consumers to "test fit" a floor model by taking it out to the car. This alleviates the hassle of returning the seat if it doesn't fit the vehicle. It is important to note that not all safety seats can be installed in all types of vehicles or seating positions.
- Ease of installation — There should be clear instructions on the seat itself; choose one that explains installation with a diagram, along with text.
- Easy belt path — For convenience, make sure that the seat belt path where the child safety seat will be placed is easily accessible.
- Built-in locking clips — Alternatives to traditional locking clips, built-in clips help secure the belt tightly with minimal effort on the part of the installers.
- Retainer clips — These clips help the child stay in place and prevent ejection. Position the clip at the level of the child's armpit so that the harness will not slide off the shoulders.
- Accessible harness adjusters — Adjusters make it more convenient for parents to move the child in or out of the seat.
- Weight limits — In general, infants should face rearward until they are at least 1 year old and weight at least 20 pounds. Rear-facing convertible seats with weight limits up to 30 pounds will protect children who have outgrown smaller seats.
- Easy care and cleaning — Choose a seat with a smooth fabric that can wipe clean easily. Difficult fabrics such as corduroy can be harder to wash. Avoid buying seats with dark-colored fabric, vinyl, or exposed metal parts. These absorb heat and may become too hot in the summer.
- Have the seat inspected by a certified technician — Parents should have child safety seats inspected by a certified child passenger safety technician in their community. To find an inspection location or a certified child passenger safety technician in Maryland, interested persons may call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-8122 or the Kids in Safety Seats program at 1-800-370-SEAT.

Managed Care

agreed to participate in the arrangement, officials said.

The state has agreed to assume some financial risk by paying Maryland Physicians Care for any financial losses incurred by taking these patients. But Chang said she expects the deal to be "budget neutral — or negligible."

The state currently reimburses many Medicaid managed care organizations on a "capitation" basis, in which they are paid a set fee based on how ill a particular patient is. People with sickle cell anemia, for example, have higher reimbursement rates than healthier patients.

The deal with Maryland Physicians Care calls for it to be paid according to the FreeState patients' previously assigned rates. If it ends up costing more to treat those patients, the state will make up the difference. If it costs less, the deal requires Maryland Physicians Care to pay the state.

FreeState pulled out of Maryland's Medicaid program in most of the state on Jan. 1, citing financial losses. It then announced that it would drop coverage on April 1 for its remaining patients, in Baltimore and Baltimore County.

Patients affected by the earlier pullout were assigned to other managed care organizations in what the state called a smooth transition. But the remaining patients posed special problems for officials trying to find them a "medical home."

Health care advocates said many of these patients need more medical care on average than recipients elsewhere in the state. And officials said that, for a variety of reasons, reimbursement rates have been set too low.

"In this case you've got a situation where...the amount of revenue for these folks is not right, it's not high enough," said Barbara Spence of United Health Care's Family First, one of the seven remaining managed care organizations accepting Maryland Medicaid patients.

The state could find a way to reduce the financial risk for managed care organizations, or resort to a traditional fee arrangement in which individual doctors get reimbursed for each service provided, something it did not want to do.

"Can I predict what would have happened? No, but it wouldn't have been good," said Shubin. "It would have destroyed the managed care concept."

Some health care advocates say they are heartened by the state's efforts to provide continuity of care, but they warn that Maryland Physicians Care might be ill prepared to handle the burden of doubling its size in less than two months.

They noted that phone lines were jammed and doctors could not get through to Maryland Physicians Care in January, when it took on 11,000 patients from the first FreeState pullout.

"The fact that they have a history of administrative problems, we're just concerned that this could be the straw that broke the camel's back," said Laurie Norris of the Public Justice Center.

Don Blanchon, chief financial officer of Maryland Physicians Care, attempted to allay these concerns.

"We recognize that there were times when the wait times were less than optimal. I can tell you we have learned from that experience," he said. "That stuff is all fresh in our minds."

Advocates Defend State Against Failing Grade For Child Seat Laws

by Jonathan Sheir
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland officials are faulting a national study that gave the state a grade of F for its child-safety-restraint laws, saying the analysis ignored strong enforcement, education and loaner programs.

Even some members of the Maryland State Safe Kids Campaign attacked the study by the National Safe Kids Campaign as a "slap in the face," saying the national study looked only at the letter of the law.

The national study compared laws in the 50 states and the District of Columbia to model legislation that it supports. By that standard, 24 states got F's and 19 got D's, with only California receiving an A.

Maryland got a score of 59 on a 100-point scale, one point shy of a D. That put it about in the middle of the states, despite its grade of F.

"It's unfair to look at the language of the law in a vacuum," said Barbara Beckett, coordinator of the Maryland State Safe Kids Campaign. "There is a big difference between a model law and the way it's actually enforced."

Beckett complained that Florida received a B despite lax enforcement of its tough laws, while Maryland and other states were punished because they had turned to non-legislative solutions.

Advocates pointed to a December study by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety that gave Maryland the highest kudos for its vehicle safety laws, along with Washington, D.C., and California.

"The difference is our focus really is on what has been shown to work," said Susan Ferguson, the institute's senior vice president of research. "We didn't get into the picayune details that they did."

Delegate Bill Bronrott, D-Montgomery, called the Safe Kids study "baffling." A longtime advocate for child passenger safety, he introduced a bill this week that would require booster seats for children between the ages of 4 and 8 or between 40 and 80 pounds. Only California and Washington have similar laws.

But the program manager of the Montgomery County Child Passenger Safety Program worried that the Safe Kids report might make it harder to pass such legislation.

"I hope that the next time I testify in front of the legislature, they don't look at this report and say, 'Why bother? You've done a terrible job,'" said Emily Crown.

The institute's study focused on two primary factors: whether the state had a law mandating restraints for all children under 13 and whether a seat belt violation is a primary offense, which allows police to pull drivers over for it. Maryland has both.

The Safe Kids Campaign focused on a variety of issues, some of which Maryland officials took issue with. For instance, it criticized Maryland for its "low $25 maximum fine" for a seat-belt violation.

"That's not accurate," said Maryland State Police Cpl. Rob Moroney. He said the fine for failing to properly transport a child is $48. The $25 fine applies to unbelted adults.

Maryland has issued 6,624 child-safety-seat citations and 951 warnings over the past two years, he said.

Moroney said Maryland police are dedicated to "vigorously enforcing the law and vigorously educating the public." State Police should get an A+ for their efforts, Moroney said.

Another issue was Maryland's law that waives fines for people who can show they purchased a child-safety seat between the violation and their court date.

"The law is not meant to be a revenue enhancer," said Beckett, but is intended to encourage people to go out and buy the seats.

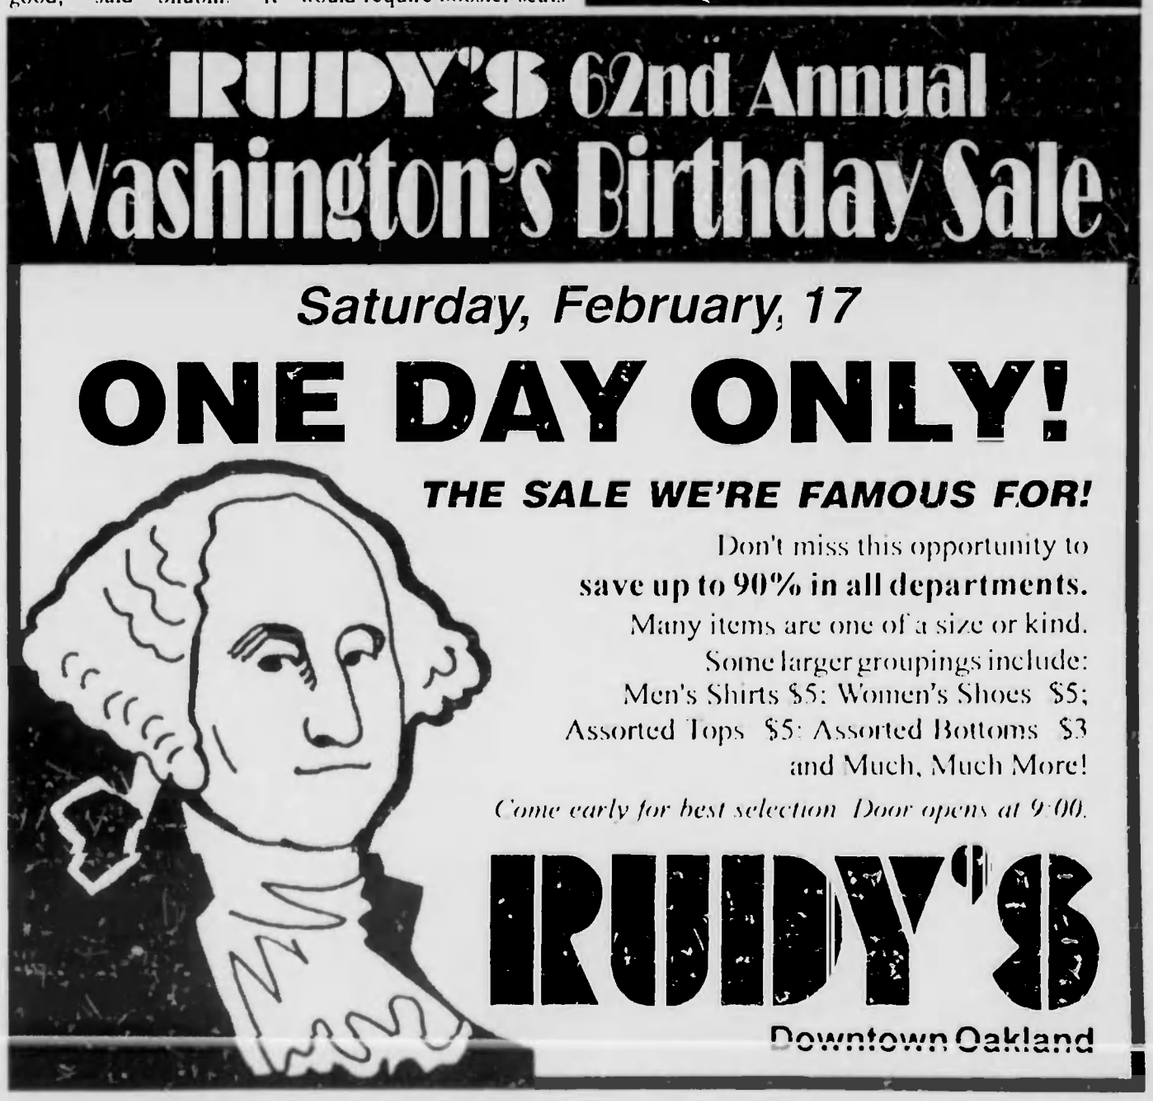
Alan Korn, director of public policy and general counsel for the National Safe Kids Campaign, said parents should not be able to get out of punishment because a message must be sent. While he defended the report, however, he enthusiastically agreed that Maryland would have done better if other factors were scored.

"If the report had graded programming, education and other factors, Maryland would have gotten an A++," Korn said.

Korn said Maryland, and particularly Montgomery County, is a model for the country in its education programs, fitting stations and child safety-seat checks. Crown noted that the national group recently gave Montgomery County an award for checking over 8,000 child-safety seats, the most of any county in the country.

Nonetheless, Korn said, the General Assembly has to catch up with the work around the state.

"The stringent standards of the study reflect our conviction that strong laws are catalysts to good behavior," Korn said.



Ram Streak Halted By Lions, Sentinels Before Win Over Colts

It's not only lonely at the top of team rankings, but being there means you are a target for every other team trying to take your place. The Southern High School boys' varsity experienced the pain of taking a direct hit on that position, not once, but twice in a 24-hour span this past week, as the Rams were defeated Friday night by host Tucker County, 46-41, and then dropped a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest to home-standing Fort Hill on Saturday night, 68-57.

But the Rams rebounded Tuesday night by handing visiting Victor Cullen a lop-sided 74-33 defeat. Friday's loss to Tucker halted the Rams' win streak at 13 games, and the 1-2 week dropped their overall record to 16-3 (7-2, WMIL).

The Mountain Lions of Tucker County were one of the few teams that was able to penetrate the Ram defensive unit this season, simply with some accurate outside shooting. They were 4-for-4 in three-point shooting, all in the first half, and connected on 10 of 13 shots from the floor in the first half for a sizzling 77 percent effectiveness.

Southern trailed most of the first quarter, but a three-pointer at the buzzer by Mike Saturday put the Rams up by one, 15-14. Tucker then out-scored the Rams by an 11-6 margin in the second stanza to take a 25-21 advantage into the locker room at halftime. They maintained a arm's length lead, and were up 35-29 going into the final quarter.

Bryan Panther paced Southern in scoring with 13 points, while Ricky Reams contributed seven points and Chad Panther recorded six points and seven rebounds.

Justin Hamrick, whose back-to-back three-pointers in the second quarter gave the Lions the lead for good, finished with a game-high 16 points, and teammate Scott Hebb was right behind with 14 points.

The Southern junior varsity added to its unbeaten streak (14-0) by winning the preliminary game by a 64-46 margin. Dennis Tressler hit 16 points for the Rams, while Nathan Fitzwater and Matthew Stephens each finished with 14 points.

When the Rams hosted and defeated Fort Hill last month (49-44), the Sentinels were forced to play most of the game without the area's top scorer, Jeremy Snyder, who went down with a turned ankle in the first quarter of that game and had just two points. But Snyder was healthy Saturday night and more than made up for his previous absence, as he ripped the nets for 36 points against the usually tough Southern defense.

The 6-5 senior used his superior size to penetrate the Ram defensive unit, but also had one of his best shooting nights of the season. He was 12-for-20 from the floor, hit five of nine shots from three-point range, and was a perfect 7-for-7 at the foul line.

The Rams never led in the contest, but stayed close enough throughout that the outcome was still in question until midway in the fourth quarter. Fort Hill held a 12-8 advantage at the end of the first quarter, was up 31-24 at intermission, and took a 50-39 lead into the fourth stanza.

Bryan Panther also had one of his best performances of the season for the Rams, as he recorded 23 points on nine of 15 shots, hit three three-pointers, grabbed a game-high eight rebounds, and blocked two shots. Chad Panther and Bryson Meyers each contributed nine points.

Also reaching double figures for the Sentinels was Adam Morgan with 12 points.

"I'm really not disappointed in how we played defensively," stated Southern coach Tom Bosley. "We played hard and didn't let up. Jeremy Snyder is the best player in the area, and I think he proved that. He certainly made the difference in this game."

The victory gave the Sentinels a 16-2 overall record, and they seized first place in the WMIL rankings from the Rams with a 6-1 mark.

Just as exciting was the junior varsity game, which the Rams won, 56-55, on a free throw by A.J. Bender with seven-tenths of a second left on the clock. It was the 16th win in as many starts for the Ram jayvees.

A pair of free throws by Southern's Joe Davis with 12 seconds left knotted the score at 55-55. The Sentinels had the opportunity for a final shot, but Bender stole the ball and was fouled, setting him up for his winning free throw.

Dennis Tressler continued to lead the Rams in scoring, as he finished with 21 points, while Nathan Fitzwater connected for 16. Leading the Sentinel jayvees were Andrew Owens and Randy Rice with 15 each, and Patrick Grove with 10.

Another game which the Southern varsity almost lost was a match-up with Victor Cullen Academy back on January 5, which was decided in overtime (73-68), but Tuesday night's rematch in Oakland was dominated by the Rams.

The Rams erupted for an 18-3 lead in the first period, led 31-13 at halftime, and were in total control with a 55-24 advantage at the end of the third quarter.

Not only did the Rams excel on defense, but they also hit 60 percent of their shots from the floor, and 11 players scored at least two points each.

Chad Panther led the way for Southern with 18 points, and hit 100 percent of his shots from the floor (eight of eight). He also recorded four rebounds, four assists, and four steals.

Bryan Panther, who hit five straight field goals in the first quarter, finished with 13 points.

Pacing Victor Cullen with 13 points was Hill.

The Southern junior varsity players whipped the VC jayvees in the preliminary game, 48-18, to up their perfect record to 17-0. Dennis Tressler and Nathan Fitzwater both reached double figures for the Rams with 14 and 10 points, respectively.

The Rams have three games to play in the regular season, all at home, with Keyser coming to Oakland this Friday evening. They will entertain Petersburg next Tuesday and then wrap up the regular season with a make-up game against cross-county rival Northern next Thursday.

Northern Bags Elks; Falls Prey To Panthers, Spartans

The boys' varsity basketball team of Northern High School started the week off right with a 60-54 victory over Salisbury last Thursday, but stumbled to lose a 56-55 heartbreaker to Hancock Saturday before being blown out by Bishop Walsh Tuesday, 75-36. The action leaves the Huskies with a 7-11 record heading into the final week of regular season play.

Guard Greg Speicher kept the rim dead in his sights Thursday night, and his 22-point performance helped bring down the Elks before a delighted home crowd. Speicher bagged four three-pointers and hit all four of his free throws, while sophomore forward Aaron Mitchell netted 16 points. Guard Jeremy Frazee hit a trio of three pointers in adding 10 points. Josh Swandol and Jensen Long dominated down low, as the big men snagged nine rebounds and blocked five shots, respectively.

The contest was a hard-fought battle throughout, as the two squads were locked in an 18-all tie after one period and were separated by just one point at the half, 27-26. NHS took a two-point lead, 40-38, as the final period opened, and a 20-16 Husky run over the fourth quarter sealed the win.

Salisbury (12-7) was led by Doug Vaughn's 19 points, while the Elks' top scorer, Jesse Hoover, was held to just nine points by the hustling Husky defense.

Saturday's trip to Hancock rewarded traveling Northern fans with some great basketball if not a victory. The hosts jumped out quickly to take an 18-11 first-quarter lead, but the Huskies roared back to claim a 23-22 advantage at the half. The score was knotted 36-36 after three quarters, and the outcome hung in the balance until the final buzzer.

With Northern holding a 55-51 lead in the closing moments, the Panthers' Danny Keefer hit a three-point shot to cut the Husky lead to one point. Keefer drew a foul on Hancock's next possession, and coolly stepped to the line with 23 seconds left to sink both his free throws. The two teams traded possessions before Northern missed its final shot attempt, and Keefer grabbed the rebound as the clock expired.

Long turned in a fine performance, scoring 20 points for NHS while Speicher contributed 11 points and Frazee added 10 points. Brandon Fling paced the Panthers (6-12) with 18 points, and Chris Wills scored 16 points.

Tuesday night's loss to visiting Bishop Walsh was a different sort of game altogether, as the Spartans opened with 15 unanswered points before Speicher sank a three pointer to put Northern on the board. BW continued rolling to a 21-8 first-quarter lead and a 41-19 halftime advantage, and the Spartans were up 61-29 after three quarters.

Speicher tallied 16 points to lead the Huskies, while Nick George led all scorers with 18 points for Bishop Walsh (13-10).

Northern's junior varsity unit ran away with a 55-36 victory over its Spartan counterparts. Rico Alston led the way with 19 points, while Andrew Frantz contributed 16 points. Alston's performance mirrored his Feb. 6 18-point output during the NHS jayvees' 57-50 victory over Westmar's junior varsity. Jason Rice added 16 points during that Husky victory, while Brandon Kimble and David Cavey scored 13 points apiece for the Wildcats.

The Huskies' regular season draws to a close this week, as Northern hosts Beall tomorrow night and Hancock Tuesday night. Both varsity contests get under way at 7:30 p.m., 90 minutes after the junior varsity squads tip off against each other. Tuesday night's game will include NHS's Senior Night festivities that will recognize the squad's departing seniors.

Speicher scored a team-high 16 points during the 75-36 loss, which dropped the Huskies' record to 7-11 with one week left in the regular season, and also netted a game-high 22 points last Thursday as NHS downed a powerful Salisbury squad, 60-54. Long recorded a contest-high 20 points during a heartbreaking 56-55 loss at Hancock Saturday evening. The Huskies close out their regular season this week in homecourt battles with Beall tomorrow night and Hancock Tuesday. Both contests get under way at 7:30 p.m., and each of the squad's departing seniors will be honored during Tuesday evening's Senior Night festivities.

Condoerr And Beckman's Win In League Play

Despite having only four players available, Condoerr maintained its undefeated status in the Mountaintop Basketball League in the last week of regular-season competition by defeating Mt. Top Glass (score not reported) on Sunday. In the second game, Beckman's Variety edged Midas, 61-59, to move up to fourth place in the league standings.

Condoerr regulars Tony Doerr and Tom Stem were sidelined from the game with Mt. Top Glass because of the flu, while Jon Hegeman and Tommy Adams were no-shows for Mt. Top. The four Condoerr players fell behind by as many as 10 points in the first quarter, but their scrambling-man defense tightened and held Mt. Top to just 11 points in the second period. Meanwhile, Condoerr's Dennis Gibson hit 14 of his game-high 28 points to cut Mt. Top's lead to just one, 37-36, by halftime.

Condoerr's defense was able to shut down Mt. Top's hot-shooting Mike Fazenbaker in the second half. Fazenbaker hit four three-pointers in the first half, but was limited to six points in the entire second half of action.

The game ultimately came down to free throws, with Condoerr converting five of six in the last minute to hold off Mt. Top and remain undefeated for the fifth straight year in the regular season.

Poke Winters and Mike Saturday also reached double figures for Condoerr with 15 and 14, respectively, Billy Martin led Mt. Top Glass with 21 points, followed by Fazenbaker with 18 and Ryan Adams with 17.

Beckman's won the second game when Johnny Orendorf canned his only field goal of the day, a three-pointer, with two seconds left on the clock. The score see-sawed throughout the game, with Beckman's unable to stop the quickness and penetration of Joey DiSimone, and Midas having no answer to overcome the size of Jared Beckman.

With 20 seconds remaining in the game, Beckman was fouled and hit his only two free throws of the evening to give his team a 58-57 lead. DiSimone answered seconds later with a pair of foul shots to give Midas a one-point lead, but Orendorf drained his three-pointer from the corner. Midas had a chance to win or tie at the buzzer, but the full-court pass from C.J. Getson to DiSimone was tipped and time expired.

Beckman finished with a game-high 34 points.

League playoffs will begin this Sunday at Southern High School, with #1 Condoerr and #2 Smiley's each having a bye, #3 Long Branch and #6 Mt. Top Glass meeting at 1 p.m., and #4 Beckman's taking on #5 Deep Creek Ready Mix at 2 p.m. Respective scorekeepers will be Beckman's and Long Branch.

Mettiki, Bosley, Quality Machine Rec. Hoop Victors

The Recreation Basketball League slate of the past week featured Mettiki's 65-60 win over the Barracudas, a hard-fought 72-71 victory for Quality Machine over Gonder Insurance, and Bosley Construction's 53-48 defeat of Patterson Boat Company.

Mettiki was paced to victory by Kevin Eller's 23 points and 19 points from Stan Skiles. Mike Browning scored 26 points for the Cudas, and Doug Copeland added 21 points.

The hardest-fought battle of the day was the one-point decision for Quality Machine, as Joe Refosco's 22 points paced the way. Teammate Mark Hickman contributed 16 points. Gonder's Jason Shank scored 23 points while Billy Braithwaite added 15 points.

Cory Bosley netted 17 points for Bosley Construction, and Joe McRobie added an even dozen to help sink Patterson Boats, which was led by Barry Louden's 15 points.

Rams Take WMIL Title With Perfect 10-0 Mark

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team laid claim to the WMIL crown this week after concluding the regular season with an undefeated 10-0 mark in league play. The Rams (17-5 overall) ended Allegany's three-year run as WMIL champions when they clinched the title by downing Westmar Monday 70-44. That win was bookended by a 60-49 loss to Tucker County last Thursday and a 39-28 win over Beall last night. Winners of their last 13 of 14 outings, the Rams will roll into the playoffs against an opponent that will be named after the bracket draws take place this coming week.

Thursday's homecourt loss to Tucker snapped an 11-game SHS winning streak. Even though Southern led for most of the hard-fought contest, 10-9 after one quarter and 20-18 at the half, the Mountain Lions roared back late in the third quarter to snag a 36-35 lead. A three point Tucker bucket as the period expired increased the guests' lead to 39-35 heading into the final quarter. The Mountain Lions held sway throughout the fourth period and held an 11 point advantage at the final buzzer.

Freshman guard Robbin Gregg scored 16 points to lead the Rams' offense, while junior backcourt teammate Ashley Liller added 15 points. Freshman post player Becca Flanagan hauled down 10 rebounds. Tucker's Rachel Campbell led all scorers with 19 points, 15 of which helped spark the Lions' second-half comeback.

The Rams' junior varsity squad took a 27-23 win over Tucker as Justine Pagenhardt recorded a team-high eight-point tally.

Southern wasted no time getting back into the win column Monday at Lonaconing, as the Rams demolished Westmar by 26 points. The scoring was spread evenly throughout the offense, as four Rams hit for double figures.

SHS jumped out to a 14-8 first quarter lead and was up by a 26-20 margin at the half. The Rams exploded in the third quarter to finish that stanza with a 42-30 lead, and the fireworks continued in the final period as Southern pulled away to leave the Wildcats in the dust.

Gregg hit for 16 points to lead the Rams, Liller added 15 points, junior forward Jennifer Bosley recorded 13 points, and Flanagan contributed 11. Liller also had eight rebounds, five assists, and six steals, and Gregg snagged five steals. Westmar's Natalie Sloan led all scorers with 19 points.

The junior varsity contest featured an excellent 23-point performance by Pagenhardt as she led the Rams to a 44-18 thumping of the Wildcat jayvees.

Last night's finale against Beall was the Oakland homecrowd's chance to say farewell to the graduating seniors, who were on the court for the majority of the evening. Led by forward Holly Shaffer's 13 points, the departing players recorded an 11-point victory with a ball-control offense. Shaffer's output was aided by Kate Dugan's eight rebounds and Amber Stewart's seven rebounds and five steals.

"We felt our seniors deserved an opportunity to play for the way they work in practice," commented SHS coach Don Stemple. Beall held a 4-2 lead after one quarter of the low-scoring contest, but the Rams responded to take a 15-8 lead at the half. The hosts held a 29-20 advantage as the final period got under way.

Southern's junior varsity unit closed its season out in resounding fashion, recording a 43-15 victory over the Mounties' JV. Pagenhardt finished the year by leading the squad with a 12-point performance, capping a season that saw her lead the Rams jayvees in scoring in each contest. Southern's JV records an outstanding 17-2 mark on the season, boding well for the varsity program's next several years.

SHS SENIORS SHINE FOR WMIL CHAMPS — The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team capped a 17-5 season (10-0 WMIL) last night with a 39-28 win over visiting Beall. The Rams, who had captured the WMIL crown Monday evening by downing Westmar, put their graduating seniors on the floor last night, and forward Holly Shaffer (#43, pictured above) responded with a team-high 13-point performance. Fellow senior Amber Stewart (#11) is shown below about to gather in a pass from junior Gina Reeves (#23). Stewart hauled down seven rebounds and snagged five steals on the night. The Rams await this week's playoff draws for news of who the upcoming bracket slots, but in the meantime bask in the accomplishment of dethroning Allegany from the WMIL's top spot, a crown the Campers had held for three years running.

Donkey B-Ball Game Set At Elk Garden School

A benefit donkey basketball game is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20, in the Elk Garden (W.Va.) School gymnasium. Sponsored by the school's eighth grade class, the contest will pit a team of eighth graders against a team of local volunteer firemen and other adults.

Shaw Brothers of Sayre, Pa., will provide the donkeys, which are literally described as "stubborn as mules." Among the special rules of donkey basketball is the requirement that any shot attempt must be taken while seated astride one's mount. "Fastbreaks" can be undertaken by riders who dismount and cajole (i.e., pull) their donkeys up and down the court.

Advance tickets can be obtained from any Elk Garden eighth grader for $4 each, or by calling the school at 304-446-5141. A discount is available for family groups of three or more individuals. Tickets at the door will be $5 each.

Freshman guard Lyndsi Butler led all scorers with 13 points, teammate Bridget Frazee hauled down 18 rebounds and scored eight points, and Heather Lander pilfered five steals. Salisbury's Jaci Green scored eight points for the Elks.

Teammate Christie Flockhart (#44) boxes out an Elk defender to give Frezee some room to maneuver, as fellow Huskies Amende Frentz (#20) and Krieten Lander (#10) begin their run to the other end of the floor. Northern's offense was led by freshman guard Lyndsi Butler (#34), pictured at left scoring on a fastbreak lay-up. Lakers Whip Essex And Anne Arundel; Record 21-4

The 2000-01 basketball campaign will be remembered as a 20 plus win season for the Garrett Community College men's team, which recorded wins number 20 and 21 this past week. The Lakers topped visiting Essex Community College on Saturday, 83-67, and then rolled over host Anne Arundel CC last night, 94-66, to up their overall record to 21-4.

Despite the 16-point margin of victory over Essex on Saturday, Laker coach Dennis Gibson was not pleased with his team's effort, calling it "our worst performance of the year."

The score was tied at 34-34 at halftime, but the Lakers ultimately pulled away in the second half, partially because of the deadly three-point shooting of Kortaa Hall, who hit all five of his attempts from that range.

Hall and Jontae Harrington each finished with 18 points, plus Harrington made it a double-double evening by grabbing a game-high 14 rebounds. Antonio Lappegard recorded 13 points and five assists, and Rob Hall finished with 12 points, eight rebounds, and five assists. The Lakers out-rebounded the visitors by a 51-34 margin.

Both teams finished with 29 goals, but the Lakers led in three-pointers (9-5) and converted 16 of 28 free throws, while Essex connected on four of nine attempts from the foul line.

Hasan Jones and Will Hawthorne led the scoring for Essex with 16 points apiece, while teammate Wendle Dixon was right behind with 15. Mike Segich pulled down a team-high eight rebounds.

Coach Gibson got a balanced scoring effort from his team last night against Anne Arundel CC, while Jontae Harrington recorded his 11th double-double night of the season with 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Kortaa Hall led the Lakers in scoring with 15 points, Dustin Long and Sheldon Lynch each netted 13, Ladon Garrett finished with 12, and Rob Hall contributed 10. Long also blocked five shots and Rob Hall dished out eight assists.

The Lakers took the lead early in the game and never relinquished it. They were on top by a 49-33 margin at intermission.

Leading Anne Arundel in scoring were Brandon Queen and John Panitz with 19 points each. Keith Williams had 13 points and Lee Williams had a game-high 13 rebounds.

The Lakers have but one home/regular-season game remaining, which will be against Chesapeake this Saturday. The time of that contest, however, has been changed from 7 p.m. to 5 p.m., and it will be Sophomore Night, with sophomore members of the team recognized before the tip-off.

GCC Falls To Hawks; Rebounds To Down Essex, CCAC-Allegheny

The Garrett Community College women's basketball squad will have to work to clinch a winning record heading into the regular season's two game home-stretch this week. The 11-12 Lakers lost by just five points, 73-68, to Hagerstown Community College last Thursday, but bounced back to defeat Essex 64-57 on Saturday and down CCAC-Allegheny 48-40 Tuesday evening.

Hagerstown took it to the Lakers in McHenry during the first half last Thursday, mounting a 45-38 lead by the intermission. The Hawks' defense forced GCC into turning the ball over a total of 29 times, and Hagerstown capitalized on a number of those miscues.

"We were playing in spurts," Garrett coach Ann Wellham commented. "A few minutes we're unstoppable, but unfortunately we suffer lapses where turnovers really hurt us. We need to be more consistent in order to succeed."

Laker guard JoEllen Kitt paced GCC with 17 points and nine rebounds, while center Tameka Graves recorded a double-double with 11 points and 15 rebounds. Forward Erica Henderson scored a dozen points. Hagerstown's Brook Russ led all scorers with 19 points and teammate Emily Middlekauff added 17.

Garrett rebounded two days later to snatch its seven-point, come-from-behind victory over Essex before a home Laker crowd. The battle was hard-fought from start to finish, and GCC found itself down by one, 29-28, at the half.

Freshman guard Christi Edgell took high scoring honors with 22 points, nine of which came on a trio of three-pointers. The freshman hit six field goals and each of her six free throws. Kitt added 11 points, and Donna Lyles yanked down 12 rebounds from her forward position. Essex was led by J. Brown's 18 points.

"Edgell stepped up for us today," said Wellham. "She is growing at the guard position, and if we can get our players to step up more consistently, we could be unstoppable."

Edgell heeded her coach's call at CCAC-Allegheny Tuesday, as the first-year player netted 12 points. She connected on three three-pointers for the second straight contest, and dished out three assists as well.

The Lakers and the Cougars played to a 22-22 stalemate at the half, then Garrett broke out for a 26-18 run in the second half to take the game by eight points. Free-throw shooting and rebounding were crucial to the win, as GCC converted 11 free throws to CCAC's five, and recorded a 34-22 rebounding advantage.

Joining Edgell near the top of the Lakers' scoring column was Henderson, who netted 10 points in a performance that included a 6-for-8 tally from the foul line. The sophomore also grabbed eight rebounds. The top scorer for the contest was CCAC's Marleue Williams, who recorded 18 points.

Two games remain on the Lakers' regular season slate, as they travel to Baltimore City CC tomorrow afternoon prior to Saturday's finale against Cambria County (Pa.), which gets under way at 3 p.m. The departing sophomores will be honored during that contest. The Maryland Women's JUCO Tournament commences at GCC Thursday, Feb. 22, and continues through Sunday, Feb. 25.

Husky Matmen Place Second To Kent Co. In State Duals

Their defense of the Maryland State 1A/2A Dual Meet championship fell just one victory short for the Northern High School wrestling team, as the Huskies were topped in the tournament finals on Saturday by Kent County High. Kent, which came into the tournament with a 14-1 record, finished as the runner-up to the Huskies in the tourney last year, but recorded a 42-26 team victory this year to take the title from Coach Scott Stough and his team.

Northern earned a spot in the finals by defeating Hammond High in a semifinal round, 33-20, while Kent made the championship round by topping Owings Mills, 35-25, in the other semifinal.

Five Huskies earned individual titles, as Blake Huber (112), Pete Stein (119), Dan Ganoe (124), Jeremiah Guard (145), and unbeaten Mark Wolf (171) each defeated their Kent opponents.

In the win over Hammond High School, Huber, Brandon Kamp (152), and Trey Brenneman (275) each recorded pin victories, while Adam DeWitt (103), Stein, Darrie Kamp (130), Brandon Kamp (152), and Wolf all won by decision.

Hammond's Marshall Porter (160) was the only member of his team to record a pin.

The Huskies won three of the first four matches against Kent County, with Huber getting a decision, and Stein and Ganoe following with pins. But they won only two of the remaining nine matches, with Guard and Wolf each recording pins.

Earning pins for Kent County were Artie Kaehler (103), Trey Chol (152), Ben Shaw (160), Joey Kirwan (189), and Willy Leonard (275).

"I'm still very pleased with our kids and their effort," Coach Stough said. "Besides skill, it takes a little luck to win states, and a couple of the matches were really close and could have gone our way."

The Huskies will undoubtedly meet many of the Kent County grapplers again in the regular state championships in a few weeks. They will be the favored team in the Bi-County Tournament, set for this Saturday at Beall High School, and in the 1A/2A West Regional Tournament, set for the following weekend.

Oakland Ministers Walk On Water To Land Fish

by David Foster

Rounding the curve at the Route 219 bridge on the way to work throughout this winter, I've had to blink my eyes time and time again when peering through the steam of my coffee cup. Rising like a mirage on the surface of the Sahara Desert, figures have often appeared where they seemingly don't belong — on the frozen surface of Deep Creek Lake.

Always in those moments I wonder aloud: "What would draw those folks out into the freezing cold to sit around holes in the ice and fish?"

The fish, dummy.

Among those hardy anglers who have been venturing out onto the lake's frozen surface this winter are Revs. Chip Lee of St. Matthew's and St. John's Episcopal churches and Mike Robinson of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. I visited the two ministers one sunny morning last week to get the scoop on icefishing. "We love it," the two fast friends stated in introducing me to the sport's rigors as they sat inside a windproof and carpeted (carpeted?) hut.

Even before I could issue the first of many reminders that I was a professional reporter here for a serious story Mike piped up, "I never thought I'd have lakefront property. Of course, the real estate is kind of temporary."

Sven and Ole were drilling their fishing hole one evening when a voice called out from above, "There aren't any fish under that ice." They glanced at each other, shrugged, moved their gear to a spot several feet away and had started drilling again when the same voice, this time louder, came down again — "There are no fish under the ice!" They moved to another spot farther off and were readying to drill again when the voice boomed out, "THERE ARE NO FISH UNDER THAT ICE!"

Able to contain themselves no longer, the two anglers cried out to the sky, "Is that you, Lord?"

"NO," came the resounding reply — "I'M THE RINK MANAGER."

"This is great, sitting on a bucket on the ice in the cold winter, staring down a hole," Chip said, as his line danced up and down. "Swedish Zen, we call it. No beepers, no phones—"

"You have a cell phone," Mike interjected, "and while we're at it, I want to go on record that I didn't bring that thing," he added, pointing to the battery-operated 'fish-finder' sitting between them. "I don't like it, and I don't want any serious fishermen to find out we have it out here." (Sorry, Reverend Mike.)

"You'll like it when you start catching da fish, yah boy," Chip responded in a heavy accent crossed between Swedish and 'Minniesoootan.' "Yah boy," he repeated.

Mike continued, not missing a beat, "Before we started doing this a couple of years back, I had gone icefishing just one time 12 years ago when I was living in Ohio. I liked it so much I never did it again until Chip got me out here—"

"Hey, dere's a fish down dere!" Chip broke in. "'Bout five feet under der ice." In an instant both men went silent, put down their coffee cups and leaned forward on their upside-bucket perches to peer intently down into the two black holes in the ice. After a minute or so with nary a strike, and no discernible activity whatsoever, the intrepid anglers leaned back in exhaustion.

"Yah boy," Chip sighed. "Dat was a big one, he was."

Sven wasn't having any luck, but across the ice Ole was hauling in fish left and right. "Hey," Sven called out, "what's your secret?" "Eef ur mrms orm," his buddy responded. "How's dat again?" "Eeef urr mrrms orrm!" Ole replied. "I don't underferstand what you're saying dere at all!" yelled Sven.

Ole spat into his hand and yelled back: "KEEP YOUR WORMS WARM!"

A popular activity when the weather allows it, icefishing can be a relatively solitary activity or a family outing. It's not recommended that one person fish alone, because there's always the possibility of an emergency when help may have to be summoned. (That's where a cell phone can come in handy.) Never venture onto the ice without testing its strength yourself or checking with others, and never attempt to walk on ice that's less than 6 or 8 inches thick. Dress warmly, especially with insulated and waterproof boots, and strongly consider wearing a lifejacket.

A fish finder, however, is apparently not an absolute necessity.

"Dere he comes again," said Chip, pointing to a red dot flashing on the device's tiny screen. "You see dat fish dere? Wait, I think dat's my lure going up and down — no, dat's Mike's lure. I don' know what's going on down dere, it's like watching a video game out here on der ice."

"This is the life," Mike waxed philosophically, as Chip leaned over to call down the hole: "Come here you little fishy!"

Thirty minutes later, after more jokes and laughter (and a little fishing in between) the excursion came to an end, and we packed up the gear and headed off in our separate directions.

With nary a fish — yah boy.

GARRETT COUNTY'S OWN SVEN AND OLE, local clergymen Chip Lee, left, and Mike Robinson, practice what they call "Swedish Zen" — iceflshing on Deep Creek Lake — as they relish quiet time away from phones and beepers (and from fish). As of late last week lengthy spells of frigid temperatures had frozen the lake two feet thick, and throughout the winter dozens of hardy anglers have been walking on water to get to their favorite flshing holes. The two reverends have even purchased a portable ice hut (a two-holer), right, and a power auger for drilling holes in the ico. "Chip's going to have holes drilled all over this lake," Mike commented, which is understandable after all the effort they expended earlier thls winter digging long thin trenches in the ice — for "Iceflyfishing," of course. Deep Creek Lake State Park naturalists will provide an informative demonatration of "hard water flshing" this Saturday during a 90-minute program slated to begin at 1 p.m. at the park's Discovery Center. Interested persons can call 301-387-7067 for more details.

Delegate's Bills

the hospital.

HB 113 has been assigned to the House Appropriations Committee.

Senate Bill 81, a companion bill, has been introduced by District 1 Senator John Hafer. SB 81 is assigned to the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee.

Another bill introduced by Del. Edwards, House Bill 274, is also a bond bill in the amount of $375,000 toward the planning, design, repair, renovation, reconstruction, and capital equipping of the Garrett County Courthouse. According to Edwards, that amount represents one-half of the project cost.

HB 274 has also been assigned to the House Appropriations Committee. A companion bill, Senate Bill 302, has been introduced by Sen. Hafer and has been assigned to the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee.

House Bill 199, which received its first hearing this week by the Appropriations Committee, is an emergency bill designed to allow the county commissioners to go to the bond market for up to $3.5 million to fund the costs of construction of the Garrett County Health Center. The county has incurred the initial costs of design and engineering, and the creation of bond authority is necessary for the project's completion, according to a report from the county commissioners to the delegate.

HB 199 involves no "new monies," according to Edwards, who explained that its purpose is merely to allow the county commissioners the authority to borrow funds already earmarked for the project.

Similarly, House Bill 761, introduced by Edwards to allow more flexibility in the use of funds already received by the town of Oakland through the B&O Railroad Station loan of 1999, would involve no new funding. Language in the original bill was too restrictive, explained Oakland Mayor Asa McCain, for the monies to be used effectively. The new wording in the bill will provide the town with more options in how the funds will be utilized.

HB391 — Office of Treasurer — Repeal

House Bill 391, requested by the county commissioners, would eliminate the position of elected treasurer in Garrett County and provide for the appointment of a supervisor of tax collection who would exercise "all the powers, duties and responsibilities" of the elected treasurer. The legislation, introduced by Edwards and assigned to the House Commerce and Government Matters Committee, would also provide for the appointment of a director of finance.

HB 230 — Bd. of Supervisors of Elections and Orphans' Court Judges — Compensation

Edwards has also introduced a piece of legislation that would authorize the county commissioners to set the amount of compensation to be paid to a substitute member of the Garrett County Board of Supervisors of Elections and a judge of the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, according to the recommendations made by the Garrett County Salary Study Commission. That bill has now passed the House, said Edwards.

HB 370 — Alcoholic Beverages — Wine Festival License

Assigned to the House Economic Matters Committee, House Bill 370 was introduced by Edwards for the purpose of creating in Garrett County a wine festival alcoholic beverages license to be issued under certain restrictions, such as excluding the display and sale of wine on Sunday. The legislation also stipulates that any applicant for a wine festival license must already have an existing retail alcoholic beverages license, a state class 3 winery license, or a state class 4 limited winery license.

HB 404 Program Open Space — Attainment of Acquisition Goals — Increase in Development Allocation

House Bill 404 would increase the amount a local government ($200,000 in Garrett County) can spend on development projects after it has attained its acquisition goals under Program Open Space (POS).

Del. Edwards explained that restrictions inherent in the current wording of the bill may have prevented some counties from reaching their POS goals. The delegate's bill would allow more flexibility in the land acquisition project development ratio.

The POS bill has been assigned to the House Appropriations Committee.

HB 376 — Md. Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation — Gas and Mineral Rights

Two bills introduced by Edwards are of particular interest to the county's farming community. House Bill 376 would prevent a natural gas company or other mineral rights owner or lessee to give up any rights to those interests in order for a farmer to be considered for the Agricultural Preservation Program.

As stated in a written request from the Board of Garrett County Commissioners to Edwards, "This situation is currently applicable when gas rights or other mineral rights are excluded on a property under which the landowner is making application to sell his development rights under the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Program. It is perceived that little impact to the surface farming rights of property will occur with any gas storage, gas drilling operation, or any subsurface mineral removal operation. Therefore, subordination for gas rights should be eliminated from the foundation's requirements."

HB 134 — Income Tax — Credit for Land Rented to Farmers

This bill would establish a tax credit against rental income for landowners who rent agricultural land to a farmer who began his farming operation within the last 10 years. The purpose is to encourage landowners to keep land in agricultural production rather than take it out, to help young farmers find land to rent, and to give retired farmers a tax benefit if they allow their land to be rented by a young farmer, according to the Maryland Farm Bureau.

If Tears Could Build A Stairway

If tears could build a stairway
and memories were a lane
I would walk right up to heaven to bring you home again.
No farewell words were spoken,
no time to say goodebye,
You were gone before I knew it,
and only God knows why.
My heart still aches in sadness
and secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you —
no one will ever know!
Sadly missed by family & friends.

TRAFFIC

Rated R - Running Time: 2:27 - Released 12/27/00

Steven Soderbergh's Traffic, his second highly acclaimed and award-nominated film this year (after Erin Brockovich), is a multi-layered look into the ever-present, ever-explosive subject of the Mexican/American drug trade. Its text, by former drug addict Stephen Gaghan (based on the 1989 British TV miniseries Traffik by Simon Moore), is made up of three separate threads expertly woven together to form a strong, compelling fiber. Not content to merely view the drug issue from a moralistic point of view, Soderbergh's film sees the issue from every side, pondering its inescapable truths and its exasperating politics, making a powerful statement about who exactly is the enemy in the so-called "war on drugs."

This multi-faceted viewpoint is emphasized by Soderbergh's use of varying film stocks and color filters, desaturation and oversaturation, multiple filming locations and different languages, and an immense cast of over 100 speaking parts. The film is epic in its way; however, its presentation is somewhat dry, business-like...while it bears some emotional content and some action-oriented material, and offers a few fascinating peeks into a world many of us remain happily unaware of, its general feel is more like a news story than a work of fiction. It may very well be that this is purely intentional.

In the first of three stories whose intersection is sometimes only visible on the large scale, we meet Mexican narcotics cops Javier Rodriguez (Benicio Del Toro) and his partner Manolo Sanchez (Jacob Vargas), whose investigation of a Tijuana drug cartel leads them to uncover the corruption of a dangerous general (Tomas Milian), and Manolo's own transgression gets them in even deeper trouble. Secondly, a well-placed Latino American smuggler (Steven Bauer) is dragged from his home in front of his horrified wife (Catherine Zeta-Jones) and child. His trial hinges on the testimony of a middle-man (Miguel Ferrer) who must live under constant supervision of two DEA agents (Don Cheadle, Luis Guzmán) lest he be murdered before the trial. Finally, respected Cincinatti judge Robert Wakefield (Michael Douglas) is appointed as the drug czar by the president, only to discover that his daughter (Erika Christensen) is addicted to crack. A straight-A student looking for meaning in her wealthy, pampered life, she learns the fine art of freebasing from one of her preppy friends (Topher Grace of TV's That '70s Show) and eventually moves on to heroin, forcing her father into a crisis of conscience and a re-examination of his principles.

All of these stories emphasize writer Gaghan's point that drugs are much more pervasive than anyone realizes, that, as he puts it, "the enemy is every one of us." While the film's protagonists attempt to stand above the issue and make war on the evils of drugs, it becomes a startling reality to each of them that in so doing they are making war on their partners, neighbors, loved ones, family members. Each is forced, in a sense, to compromise his or her beliefs and succumb to the neccessity of choosing between high-minded rhetoric and the realities of the complex world we live in.

Soderbergh's visual treatment of this story is compelling, the film's globe- (or at least America-) trotting style conveys the scale and scope of the subject matter. He does not overly concern himself with character development, though, and this is what gives the film its rather sterile feel. All the principal actors are convincing, of course, especially Christensen as the teen who has everything and yet feels the need to escape. ★★★★½

HANNIBAL

Rated R - Running Time: 2:15 - Released 2/9/01

Jonathan Denime's 1991 classic thriller The Silence Of The Lambs is no doubt one of the most famous films of its genre, it features career-changing performances for both Jodie Foster and Anthony Hopkins, and swept the Oscars in all the "major" categories. It followed Michael Mann's less well-known but critically acclaimed 1986 film Manhunter, which introduced the character of cannibalistic genius/serial killer Dr. Hannibal Lecter (played by Brian Cox) and the writing style of Thomas Harris, who wrote the novels on which all three films are based.

Producing a sequel to such monumental films would be a daunting task even if one were able to reassemble Lambs's entire creative team intact. Hannibal, directed by Ridley Scott, is perhaps the best that could be done lacking Foster, but that isn't saying much. The presence of Hopkins, reprising his role as fava-bean-and-Chianti connoisseur Dr. Lecter, helps, but his performance is not up to the level of Lambs (though it's still satisfyingly unsettling to hear him say "Clarice" in that way he does), and while Scott's direction and the eye-pleasing cinema of John Mathieson (who worked with Scott on last year's Gladiator) give the film an impressive look, it struggles greatly to live up to the legacy of its predecessor.

The most obvious weakness, of course, is Julianne Moore as FBI agent Clarice Starling, the role previously held by Foster. Her performance (especially her relationship with Hopkins) is nowhere near the intensity of the previous pairing; Moore is a favorite performer of mine, but she can't possibly hope to achieve the chemistry Foster shared with Hopkins — and they both seem acutely aware of that. Furthermore, writer Harris has replaced Lambs's secondary villain, played creepily by Ted Levine, with a character so outlandishly goofy he's almost comical. I don't know if it was just Gary Oldman's over-the-top performance or his ill-fitting prosthetic disfigured face makeup, but his portrayal of wheelchair-bound Mason Verger, one of Lecter's former victims who wants revenge, inspires more chuckles than horror.

It's 10 years after Agent Starling's famous connection with the now-escaped Lecter helped her solve a major case and made her a name in the agency, but lately she has fallen out of favor, having participated in a botched sting operation resulting in a fatal shootout. Meanwhile, Lecter is still at large. Just as Clarice is about to be put on probation, her old friend decides to "come out of retirement," appearing in Florence, Italy, and giving her a call to see if she's still interested. She contacts the Italian authorities, but FBI agent Rinaldo Pazzi (Giancarlo Giannini) is already on Lecter's trail, mainly for Verger's $3 million reward. While Clarice tries to convince him how dangerous Lecter is, her new sexist boss, corrupt Justice Dept. agent Paul Krendler (Ray Liotta), is working in cahoots with the vengeful, diabolically wacky Verger, who wants Lecter for himself so that he may repay him for the plastic surgery.

As if painfully aware of the weaknesses in his production, director Scott has used his considerable talent to dress up this film into an artful, visually impressive affair, but except for the startlingly macabre and much publicized shock scene near the end, the movie is dull and lifeless, with pretty scenery and scary music creating a kind of artificial tension that lacks the visceral-yet-cerebral quality of the previous Lecter flicks.

Moore is an excellent actress, but this just isn't her role. Hopkins seems to know he's in a second-rate rehash of one of his most memorable triumphs: until the final reel, he's just putting in time. And Oldman — well, his portrayal is so cartooney, I expected him to jump out of the wheelchair and say, "Sssssmokin!" ★★★½

SAVING SILVERMAN

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:30 - Released 2/9/01

I don't think I've ever seen a stupider movie with a cooler ending than Saving Silverman. From Dennis Dugan, the director of such dubious titles as Happy Gilmore and Big Daddy, comes another disposable teen-aimed comedy which centers around three friends who are driven apart when one of them, played by Jason Biggs of American Pie fame, falls in love. Most of this film, written by freshman team Hank Nelken and Greg DePaul, is filled with slapstick humor and abject silliness, but it does contain some guilty pleasures, like the wacky characterizations of Jack Black (High Fidelity) and Steve Zahn, and the completely out of context appearance of '70s pop icon Neil Diamond near the end, playing himself. Why a respected singer/songwriter like Diamond would choose to appear in this film, most of whose target audience has probably never heard of him, is beyond me. (His real fans, now in their 30s and 40s at least, would surely avoid this type of movie like the plague.) However, his part elevates the film considerably, providing a smash ending that may attract a new following of teenyboppers to his fan base.

Darren Silverman (Biggs) and his pals J.D. (Black) and Wayne (Zahn) have been best friends forever. Their history is outlined in an opening montage and voiceover by Zahn, encapsulating their childhood, their high school days, and their uniform obsession with pop singer Diamond. At present they all struggle with menial jobs but work together as a Neil Diamond cover band, cranking out rockin' covers of songs like "Cherry, Baby" on street corners while wearing sequined shirts and shaggy brown wigs (all three of them). Although their only actual contact with Diamond has resulted in a restraining order, they're still die-hard fans, and they spend all their time together in their gross, beer-soaked apartment. But then Darren, lovesick after his "one and only someone" moved away, begins a relationship with bossy, bitchy psychologist Judith (Amanda Peet), who is attracted to him mainly for his slave-like qualities.

After meeting J.D. and Wayne, and being justifiably disgusted with their piggish behavior, Judith informs Darren that either he quit the band and stop hanging around with them or there will be no sex. After offering some feeble resistance, he agrees, and J.D. and Wayne spend the rest of the movie trying to get him back. Their plan is helped by the re-appearance of high school friend Sandy (Amanda Detmer), Darren's "one and only someone" from high school, but her recent decision to become a nun tends to make matters difficult. J.D. and Wayne decide they must kidnap Judith, convince Sandy to renounce the convent, and re-introduce the two love-birds. Stupidity ensues.

Like many teen romances, this film is mostly insubstantial, but it has some redeeming qualities. The guys are funny, the girls look fabulous, and Diamond's good-natured self parody is amusing and perpelexing at the same time. Also present is former Marine R. Lee Ermey (who achieved some fame playing Gunnery Sergeant Hartman in Full Metal Jacket) as the boys' former football coach and co-conspirator. While the dumbness level is constant throughout, the feel-good ending is resoundingly effective, and one can't blame Diamond for attempting to court a new, younger audience. Besides, his songs still rock. ★★

COLUMBUS DIDN'T TURN BACK

Discovering places and things can be pretty discouraging. When Columbus arrived on this continent nearly 500 years ago, his crew was sick, disheartened, and ready to turn back. Even the medicines they carried were primitive and not sufficient to help with their problems.

Another more modern group of explorers are those who toil in research laboratories, looking for and testing new drugs. Fortunately, these pioneers did not turn back either, and today many once feared diseases have been cured. Hopefully, in the not too distant future more new disease fighting medicines will be appearing in our pharmacy laboratory.

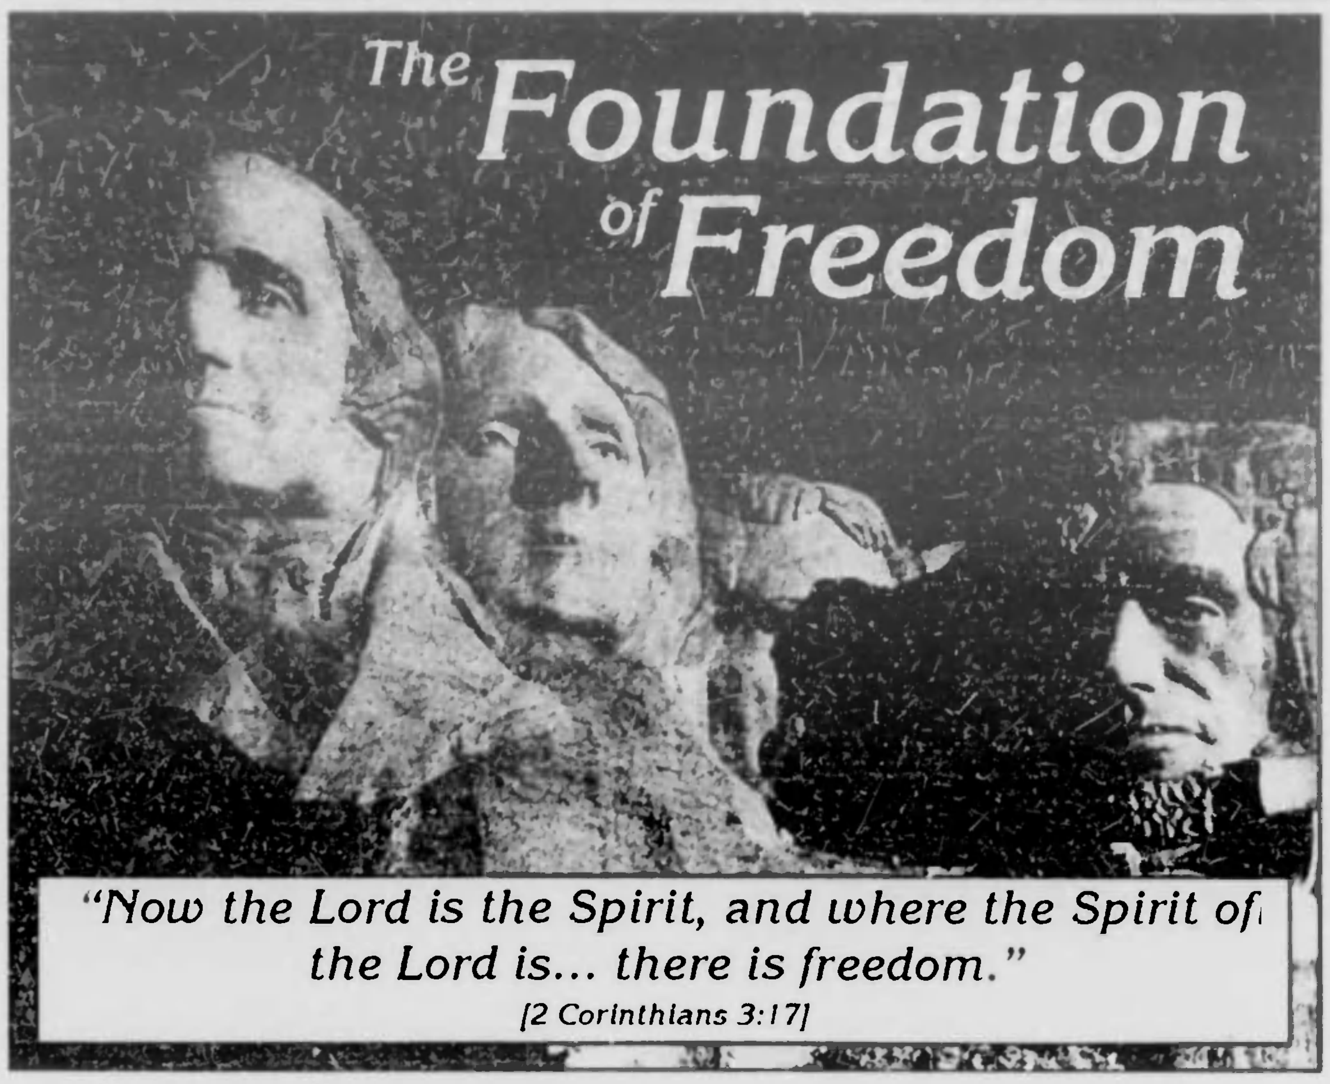
The Foundation of Freedom



"Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is... there is freedom."
[2 Corinthians 3:17]

As we approach Presidents' Day, we remember those founding fathers who built the foundation of our democracy and gave us our legacy of freedom. Such presidents as Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, and Abraham Lincoln come to mind, for it was those leaders who laid the plans and determined the principles of our nation. Our presidents gave us our heritage of freedom and we must continue to strengthen that foundation, led by the Spirit of the Lord.

The Bible tells us that though mankind changes, God's Word never changes. This is our spiritual foundation. Though technological advances dominate the news and our country is ever-changing, the Lord's foundation remains unblemished by time, and it keeps us and our nation strong and free.

Worship each week. Keep your spiritual foundation strong, for each stone must be sturdy if the foundation of freedom is to stand.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SAVE YOURSELF!
February 18, 2001

Background Scripture:
Luke 23 13-49
Devotional Reading:
Luke 23 50-56

The basic primal urge is to save one's self. We may hold out bravely for fidelity to others, devotion to a cause, and the fulfillment of a mission, but the insidious voice inside us keeps pleading with us to "save yourself." Christianity does not deny the existence and persuasiveness of that voice within, but it does call us to hear a voice that calls us beyond saving ourselves.

Jesus taught us about those voices, not so much with what he said, as with what he himself did. After his baptism, when he went out into the wilderness for 40 days and nights, he heard the primal voice that called him to save himself "If you are the Son of God, command this stone to become bread" (Lk 4 3). Jesus recognized this voice as that of the devil. In both the wilderness and at Calvary that voice spoke to him three times.

The first time at Calvary this voice came to him through the 'rulers' who scoffed. "He saved others, let him save himself, if he is the Christ of God, his Chosen One!" (23 35). Notice that, as in the wilderness, the devil said, "If you are the Son of God ..." on Calvary the rulers say "if he is the Christ of God." The devil seeks to undermine Jesus' understanding of who and what he is. Do not our temptations come to us in much the same way?

Self-Doubt

The next challenge at Calvary comes from the soldiers "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself" (23.37). The greatest temptations sometimes come to us through self-doubt and that is the thrust of the challenges to Jesus on Calvary. None of those challenging him expected Jesus to respond to their taunts. They didn't believe he could save others, nor did they believe that he was King of the Jews and could save himself.

One of the criminals who was being crucified at the same time, delivers to Jesus the third challenge "Are you not the Christ? Save yourself and us!" (23 39) Once again this was not a sincere request. When the criminal called to Jesus, "Save yourself and us!" he is not really asking Jesus to save him, he is mocking him. The other crucified criminal knows this and replies "Do you not fear God, since you are under the same sentence of condemnation?"

The other criminal continues "And we indeed justly; for we are receiving the due reward of our deeds; but this man has done nothing wrong." Turning to Jesus, he says "Jesus, remember me when you come in your kingly power" and Jesus replies "Truly I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise" (23 42,43). Although most of those who stood at the cross taunted and reviled Jesus, this criminal made the most important decision of his life and committed himself to the crucified Christ. In doing so, he saved himself -- not from death on the cross, but from the weight of his sins and the evil power of the cross.

Avoiding Crosses

Committing ourselves into the hands of Jesus does not mean that we will be saved from suffering and death in this life. Jesus is the prime example of this truth. He chose to go to the cross rather than saving himself with an eternal compromise. But, because he was faithful to that commitment, he was saved, not from the cross, but after or despite the cross. He saved himself by first giving himself, sacrificing himself. The pain of the cross and the threat of death could not break his commitment "Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit" (23 46).

Some people turn to Christianity to avoid crosses and then find that bearing crosses is what Christian discipleship is all about. In fact, the risk of bearing a cross increases when we truly follow Jesus "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me" (Mk 8 35). That doesn't mean the Christian should seek a cross to bear, but neither should he or she turn away from one if it stands as an obstacle on the road to discipleship.

"For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it" (Mk 8 35). There is nothing wrong with our basic human instinct to "save ourselves," so long as we remember that the only way to save ourselves is to give ourselves -- as Christ gave himself for us.

That '70s dad has a familiar face

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Who plays Hyde's dad on That '70s Show? I know I've seen him before, and it's driving me crazy. –Christine Stanley, North Port, Fla.

A Robert Hays, perhaps best known for starring in the comedy film Airplane! and its sequel, plays Bud Hyde, the long estranged father of the character played by Danny Masterson.

Robert Hays

Q: Whatever happened to Tisha Campbell, who played Gina on Martin? Is she married? –Robert Vargas, El Paso, Texas.

A The actress, who left Martin after suing its star, Martin Lawrence, for sexual harassment, married actor Duane Martin in 1998 and appeared as a regular on the Showtime sitcom Linc's. Now working as Tisha Campbell-Martin, she returns to series TV as Damon Wayans' co-star in the midseason ABC sitcom My Wife and Kids.

Q: I can't convince my neighbor that Donna Reed was on Dallas for a while. Am I wrong? –JoAnn in Florida.

A No, but it was not a happy experience for the Oscar and Emmy winner. Barbara Bel Geddes asked to be released from the role of Miss Ellie in 1984 following a series of health problems. Reed took over the part, but her pinched portrayal failed to win over either critics or fans. Bel Geddes returned to the role in 1985, whereupon Reed sued the show for breach of contract. The case was settled out of court for an undisclosed seven-figure sum. Reed died of cancer in 1986.

Q: Did Gloria Winters, who played Penny on Sky King, ever do any other movie or TV work? –John Putnam, Moravia, N.Y.

A Former child star Winters, now 68, parlayed tiny movie parts into her first series role as daughter Babs in the first TV version of The Life of Riley starring Jackie Gleason in 1949. Sky King followed in 1951 after a few more minor movie roles.

Her role as Penny King made her a familiar face to young viewers, and during the show's 1951-54 run, she fell in love with and married the show's sound engineer. After making several TV guest appearances in shows such as The Life and Legend of Wyatt Earp, Richard Diamond, Private Detective, and Brave Eagle, among others, Winters retired from show business but remained close to her TV uncle, Sky King star Kirby Grant, until his death in 1985.

Q: Is the guy who plays Mr. Noodle in the "Elmo's World" segment of Sesame Street the same person who played "the flying man" on Northern Exposure? –Stacy Wilson, Ferdinand, Ind.

A Nice catch, Stacy! Yes, Bill Irwin of Sesame Street also played Enrico Ballati, the Flying Man, who courted Marilyn Whirlwind on Exposure.

Spruce Forest Village Seeking Summer Staff

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, located in northern Garrett County between the Casselman Bridge and Penn Alps Restaurant, is seeking volunteers who would like to work for the nonprofit organization.

"Our summer season runs from May through October, and during this time Spruce Forest welcomes scores of volunteers who give of their time to host two of our most popular log cabins on campus — Miller House Peace Center and Compton School," Trish Morgan, village administrator, said. "We're looking for some people to add to our volunteer hosting program, and I'm happy to extend this invitation to local folks who might enjoy talking to village visitors from all over this country and abroad."

Volunteers would have the opportunity to work at Spruce Forest, either for one day, several days, or an entire week from Monday through Saturday. Each person who hosts one of these buildings will receive an information packet in early April that gives the background of the building, as well as other information. The host welcomes visitors as they enter, and shares information and stories or answers any questions they may have. Volunteers work each day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"Our good neighbor Penn Alps offers an incredible discount to our volunteers, as well, so the entire volunteer package makes a great way to spend some time sharing with others this summer," said Morgan.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village consists of authentic, restored log cabins harboring talented artisans who demonstrate their old-time craftsmanship throughout the week. Buildings date to the pre-Revolutionary War era and are handicapped accessible. Artisans include Lynn Lais, potter; Ann Jones, weaver; Jody Best, blacksmith; Connie Stark, teddy bear artist and herb specialist; Peggy Nixon, slate painter; Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, stained glass ar-tists; Meriam Brode, basketweaver and spinner; and Gary Yoder, bird sculptor. Some of these artisans work in the village year-round.

Volunteers must have their own transportation to Spruce Forest and are encouraged to dress in conservative or period dress during their volunteer service. Students are welcome to apply and may earn community service hours for their time spent at the village.

For more information, or to obtain this summer's schedule and hosting packet, those interested may contact Morgan at 301-895-3332, weekdays, or visit the organization's web site at www.spruceforest.org.

Deadline For Application To Take GED Noted

A Maryland high school diploma GED exam is being offered on May 5 at Garrett Community College. Only individuals 16 years of age and older who are not currently enrolled in the public school system may apply to take the exam. The application deadline is April 1, and the cost is $45, payable at the time of application.

Individuals who tested and passed portions, but did not pass the entire five parts of the GED exam in the last five years, may only retest those portions they did not pass until December 2001. Beginning in January 2002 this will not be possible. The Maryland State Department of Education will implement a new exam at that time. When the new test is in place, individuals will need to take the entire exam.

Those who currently need to retest are advised to do so before the exam is revised. Those who would like to retest or have questions about the exam may call Patricia Baer at the Oakland Center of GCC at 301-334-8304, or the GCC Continuing Education office at 301-387-3069.

Area Fresh Air Fund Volunteers Attend Conference

Nearly 300 local Fresh Air Fund volunteers, including Michelle Harris, Western Maryland Fund representative, Rose Grieber, Cumberland chairperson, Alice Orendorf, Grantsville chairperson, and Eleanor Yoder, Grantsville co-chairperson, gathered recently in New York City for the fund's annual Friendly Town conference. Each summer, nearly 6,000 disadvantaged children, ages 6 to 18, spend free two-week vacations with volunteer host families in suburban and small-town communities. Local Fresh Air Fund volunteers recruit and interview host families, check references, and coordinate Friendly Town program activities across 13 northeastern states from Maine to Virginia and in Ontario, Canada.

Friendly Town Conference 2001 was held from January 26-28 at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in Manhattan. The weekend's events included a keynote address by Margaret Hill, principal at Mother Hale Academy, a Fund community registration agency in the Bronx; workshops on managing the Friendly Town program; and a visit to Harlem's Center for Community Enrichment. Volunteers were also treated to a performance by the New York City Housing Authority Children's Choir.

Since 1877, the Fresh Air Fund, an independent, not-for-profit agency, has provided free summer vacations to more than 1.7 million disadvantaged New York City children. Local volunteers are currently recruiting host families for the upcoming summer season. Families interested in hosting may contact Michelle Harris at 301-759-4757, or the Fresh Air Fund at 1-800-367-0003.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 19, 1800, three months after he overthrew the French Revolutionary government in a military coup, Gen. Napoleon Bonaparte assumes the office of first consul, and with the visible support of the army, effectively becomes dictator of France.

• On Feb. 23, 1942, in the first bombing raid against the continental United States in World War II, the Japanese submarine I-17 fires approximately 13 shells at the Barnsdall Oil Refinery in Ellwood, Calif., about 12 miles west of Santa Barbara. No one was injured in the attack.

• On Feb. 20, 1962, Lt. Col. John Hershel Glenn Jr., is successfully launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., into space aboard the Friendship 7 spacecraft on the first orbital flight by an American astronaut. More than 36 years later, Glenn, then a 77-year-old former U.S. senator from Ohio, became the oldest human ever to travel in space.

• On Feb. 21, 1965, in New York City, Malcolm X, an African-American nationalist and religious leader, is assassinated by rival Black Muslims while addressing his Organization of Afro-American Unity at the Audubon Ballroom in Washington Heights.

• On Feb. 24, 1988, the U.S. Supreme Court defends the right to satirize public figures when it votes 8-0 to overturn the $200,000 settlement awarded to the Rev. Jerry Falwell for his emotional distress at being parodied in Hustler, a pornographic magazine.

• On Feb. 25, 1996, Dr. Haing Ngor, a Cambodian refugee, physician and Academy Award-winning actor, is shot to death in Los Angeles, allegedly during a robbery by three members of an Asian-American youth gang.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It's well-known that war is expensive, but it's not just modern wars. In 1862, the Union effort in the Civil War cost $1,300,000 per day.

• "It's not that I don't know what to do. The problem is where to start." This was said centuries ago by an Eastern prince upon being given a gift by his father — 50 concubines.

• Cough drops have been around for centuries. It was in Egypt in 1000 B.C. when confectioners first made hard candies from honey, and it was soon discovered that sucking on the candy soothed coughing.

• Surprisingly few people realize that the powerful ruler of Russia, Catherine the Great, was a servant as a child.

• Every April, people gather in Kansas to trade samples of barbed wire at the Kansas Barbed Wire Swap.

• The harlequin tree frog, like most frogs, has webbing between its toes. Unlike other frogs, however, it doesn't use this webbing to swim; it uses it to glide through the air.

• An item to add to the list of odd place-names: Lickskillet, Georgia. Evidently, there was once a large fish fry event held in the town, and one man who came was exceedingly fond of fish. He offered to lick the skillet that the fish was fried in; hence the name of the town. Reportedly, there's also a Lickskillet in Alabama and one in North Carolina.

• Ancient Peruvians dabbled in medical science. They believed that some illnesses could be cured by drilling a hole in the patient's skull. Forty percent of those who underwent this procedure died immediately; there are no statistics to show how many died later, of complications from the primitive surgery. Not terribly scientific, it seems.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Toys of any kind are popular collectibles, and among the most popular are automobiles. Toymakers realized that children liked to play with copies of adult items, and toy cars were made almost as soon as full-sized cars. The iron or lithographed tin toy cars of the very early 1900s sell today for thousands of dollars. Some are exact replicas; some are "fantasy" cars that do not copy real cars. The most desirable have passengers, usually made of iron. Rubber tires and moving parts, like a steering wheel that turns or a trunk lid or car door that opens, add to the value. The original box could double the value. Collectors do not often find toys made earlier than 50 years ago, but many of those made since 1950 also have value if they are in good condition.

Q: My son gave me a plain, solid, wooden side chair that he claims is an antique. The Pennsylvania dealer who sold it to him said he bought it in Florida. There's a label on the bottom that reads, "No. 332-I, Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Co., Chicago, Ill., USA."

A: Heywood Brothers & Co. merged with the Wakefield Co. in 1897. The merged company's name became Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Co. In 1921, the company's name changed again, to Heywood-Wakefield Co. Your chair was made between 1897 and about 1921 — probably after 1906. Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Co., based in Gardner, Mass., operated a factory in Chicago where rattan furniture was made. The Chicago factory also made baby carriages and wooden chairs after 1906.

A First Fish

Q: My uncle gave me a small tropical fish for my birthday. Are there any special things I should be doing to care for it?

A: Fish are generally regarded as easy pets to take care of, but they still require regular care. In the case of tropical fish, a little extra attention may be needed.

Not knowing the exact species you've received, I can't give any specific guidelines on its care. However, since it is exotic, you should head to the pet store and pick up a book on your type of tropical fish. In the meantime, some general guidelines will help keep your new pet healthy.

Keep your aquarium and its water clean, and at the prescribed temperature and pH balance. Clean the tank about twice a week, exchanging 10 to 25 percent of the water each time. (Fish prefer "familiar" waters.)

Minimize stress by keeping the tank out of direct sunlight and high-traffic areas. Tropical fish usually need to be kept in very low light. Also, never tap on the glass tank.

Don't overfeed your fish. Give it a regular, varied diet (depending on its species) and observe its feeding habits. Many common problems with a pet fish can be discovered just by watching how, when and how much it eats.

Be careful when introducing companion fish to the tank; make sure the new fish is compatible with your tropical fish, and that it is disease-free.

And please, don't flush a live exotic fish down the toilet, or set it free in a local waterway! Without natural enemies, these species can destroy native fish populations. The same goes for aquarium plants.

Allegheny Energy Launches New Grant Program

Allegheny Energy recently launched its new $300,000 TechConnect Program for 2001 by sending more than 1,500 grant application packages to public and private schools in its five-state service area, which includes parts of Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia. The TechConnect Program grants are part of the company's corporate contributions program aimed at enhancing students' access to technology in classrooms throughout the region, according to a company spokesperson.

Public and private schools, grades kindergarten through 12, are eligible to submit proposals for using the TechConnect grants to purchase computer hardware, printers, servers, and other equipment that focus on students' science and math instruction. A committee of educators and business leaders will evaluate the grant proposals and select winning applicants. Allegheny Energy will award 10 TechConnect grants of $30,000 each to schools during October 2001.

"The goal of TechConnect is to help schools ensure that students in our region have the tools and knowledge they need to succeed," said Victoria V. Schaff, Allegheny Energy's vice president, external affairs. "Our grants will assist schools in advancing their technology programs in math and science, and better prepare students for higher education and beyond."

In the 1980s, the company recognized a need for students to have access to technology and created a program that donated more than $6 million in computers to area schools. In a pilot program last fall, Allegheny Energy awarded its first $30,000 TechConnect grant to South Hagerstown High School in Washington County.

To find out more about the new TechConnect Program, persons may visit its web site at www.alleghenyenergy.com/techconnect.

Allegheny Energy Inc. is a diversified energy company headquartered in Hagerstown, and includes Allegheny Power, which delivers electric energy and natural gas to 3 million people in parts of Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

St. Paul's UMW To Host Missions Worker In Latvia

The United Methodist Women of St. Paul's UM Church-Oakland will gather next Wednesday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Good Shepherd Room for a program presented by Gita Mednis, who is visiting with family in the area.

Mednis and her husband have been living in Latvia and working among the people there while she continues her studies for ordained ministry at the University of Latvia. She has been preaching to local congregations and teaching about the work of the United Methodist Church in the world. In addition, she is coaching missionary teams in the country, and serving as a consultant to a global ministries agency.

During Mednis's presentation she will share some of the insights gained and experiences she has had while working among the people.

Mednis said that, while churches of other denominations remained open when Latvia was part of Russia, United Methodist churches were closed. Now the task is to re-start Methodism in the area. Mr. and Mrs. Mednis are attempting to determine what they can do to assist the people to understand the work of the United Methodist Church in Latvia and the world, and to help the people regain a sense of trust of the "outside world," as they relate to them on a personal level.

The program is open to the public and is free of charge. On the same evening, from 5 to 8 p.m, the United Methodist Men will serve a spaghetti dinner in the fellowship hall to raise funds for their projects during the year.

The church is located on the corner of East Oak and Fourth streets in Oakland. The pastors are Roger A. Harrison Sr. and Ann W. Harrison.

Normandy Award Medal Available For D-Day Vets

Local survivors of the D-Day invasion of Nazi Europe are eligible for the Normandy Award Medal of the Jubilee of Liberty, Sixth District Congressman Roscoe Bartlett announced this week. "This is an excellent opportunity to not only honor those men who served in one of the most heroic battles in history, but a chance to teach the subsequent generations the lessons of World War II," said Bartlett.

The Normandy Award Medal was initially minted at the direction of the Regional Council of Normandy and the governor of the province of Lower Normandy for presentation to veterans who returned to France for the 50th anniversary observances of the Normandy Invasion (Operation Overlord). Many of the campaign's veterans could not return to the anniversary celebration in 1994, so the governor of Normandy Region has authorized that the medal be presented, in appropriate ceremonies, to living Normandy veterans in the United States.

Eligibility for the medal was service in the U.S. armed forces and participation in the Battle of Normandy between June 6 and Aug. 31, 1944. Service must have been performed in the area of eligibility in at least one of the following categories: actual combat operations or in support of combat operations; permanent assignment; or temporary duty for 30 consecutive days or 60 non-consecutive days.

Documentation required for verification of eligibility is any one of the following: DD Form 214; DD Form 215; NGB Form 22; or any special orders for awards and citations for awards. For applications or further details interested persons may contact Gregg Cox of Congressman Bartlett's office at 301-694-3030. The deadline to obtain an application is Sunday, April 15.

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTON HEAD, S.C. – A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.

Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000™, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception -- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

A four week supply of Bio-Rex is just $19.99. Available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446. www.phillipsgulf.com

Sarbanes Expresses Need To Enact New Farm Bill

Senator Paul S. Sarbanes has joined 18 of his colleagues from a cross-section of the country in sponsoring legislation expressing the need to enact a new farm bill this year.

The legislation, S.Res. 13, which is considered a "sense of the Senate" resolution, notes that despite the economic prosperity enjoyed by Americans during the past several years, "many agriculture-dependent rural economies have continued to experience serious economic hardships."

"Our Maryland family farmers confronted a serious situation in 1999 with a double whammy of low commodity prices and severe drought, which depleted their financial resources," said Sarbanes. "When I visited drought stricken farms and talked with members of our agricultural community, they expressed the need to reform our current farm policy. This resolution puts me and my colleagues on record in urging the leadership of the Senate to move forward this year in passing a new piece of legislation that is fairer to these hard-working family farmers."

The measure notes that despite the fact that the current "Freedom to Farm Act" has been promoted as a means of limiting farm program spending, the "current farm policy has necessitated record levels of program spending and emergency assistance packages." The resolution also notes that many agricultural producers and, of concern to Sarbanes, a large number of Maryland farmers are "extremely frustrated and dissatisfied with the inconsistent criteria for receipt of disaster payments, the unpredictability of those payments, and the inequity of those payments among producers, regions of the country, and various commodities."

The resolution asks the Congress to not only enact a new farm bill this year, but also to provide sufficient funds to provide an adequate farm income safety net, as well as providing funding for other farm bill priorities involving rural development and telecommunication, conservation, research, nutrition, and food safety.

In 1999, Sarbanes voted against an agriculture bill he felt did not adequately provide enough disaster assistance to meet the needs of Maryland's drought-stricken farmers. He has also fought to stave off the closing of Farm Service agencies in the state of Maryland. In 2000, he authored a provision to legislation which approved an increase in the amount of money family farmers could receive for their farm commodities.

Farming In Maryland.....

March 15th Deadline For Organic Certification Program Applications

Starting in 2002 with the implementation of the national standards, all Maryland farms marketing their products as organic and with annual sales greater than $5,000 will be required to be certified. The deadline for applying for organic certification with the Maryland Organic Certification Program for the 2001 inspection season is March 15. For the first time in the 10-year history of the program, applications are being accepted for animals and animal products as well as for crops.

"Certification is vital for the organic farming industry," said acting Secretary of Agriculture Hagner R. Mister. "The certification program assures consumers that products labeled as organic meet approved standards. The addition of animals and animal products to the Maryland Organic Certification Program will greatly expand the availability of these products to a growing market."

Applications may be requested by contacting Valerie Frances, program manager, or Donna Hill, program secretary, at 410-841-5770. Information about Maryland's Organic Certification Program and current certified organic farmers and retailers can be found on the Internet at www.mda.state.md.us/organic/organic.htm.

"With the anticipated changes in fees and the new certification program, farmers who may be considering a transition to organic should strongly consider doing it this year," said Frances. "We encourage interested farmers to contact us as soon as possible."

Crop Insurance Deadline Just Around The Corner For West Virginia

The final date for obtaining crop insurance on most spring-planted crops in West Virginia is Thursday, March 15. For those insured last year, the insurance contract will normally continue for 2001; however, March 15 will be the last day to make policy changes for the 2001 crop year (e.g. changing coverage levels, unit arrangements, etc.).

Crop insurance subsidies have increased significantly for 2001, particularly at the higher coverage levels. As a result, farmers may wish to consider increasing their coverage in order to take advantage of the enhanced premium subsidies.

Insurance is available on most crops, including small grains, corn, and nursery crops. If actuarial tables are not published for an insurable crop in a particular county, a producer may apply for coverage by individual written agreement if certain criteria are met. Insurable crops in Preston County are corn, oats, wheat, and nursery crops.

Producers are strongly advised to contact a crop insurance agent as soon as possible for further details. A list of crop insurance agents is available from the county Farm Service Agency (FSA) office or on-line at: http://www.3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents. You may also telephone the Raleigh Regional Office, Risk Management Agency, USDA, at 919-875-4880.

Foreign Investors Are Reminded of Reporting Rule

The Preston County Farm Service Agency reminds foreign investors who have bought or sold agricultural land in the county to report the transaction to the office within 90 days.

The Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) requires all foreign owners of U.S. agricultural land to report their holdings, acquisitions, dispositions, leases of 10 years or more, and land uses to the local Farm Service Agency office. This law remains in effect, and those who fail to report or are late in reporting face possible fines.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is defined as any tract of more than 10 acres now in farming, ranching, forestry, or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased, as well as land later converted to agricultural use. Foreigners who own or have an interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on these acres exceed $1,000.

Individuals or companies that specialize in land holdings, land transfers, or management services should contact the Preston County Farm Service Agency at 304-329-1923 or visit the office at 300 Tunnelton Street in Kingwood for details.

Dairy Processing Course Offered In Frederick

With their dense, diverse, and wealthy populations, Maryland and surrounding states offer an excellent market for a wide variety of premium dairy products. Few of these products, however, are made in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Dr. Scott Rankin, Extension dairy processing specialist with the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, hopes to change that situation. To that end, he has organized the second annual Farmstead Milk Processing technical program for cow, goat, and sheep milk producers interested in manufacturing legal, high-quality dairy foods on the farm. The program, sponsored by Maryland Cooperative Extension, will be held March 24 at the Dutch's Daughter Conference Center in Frederick.

"The manufacture of a variety of dairy foods, such as premium ice creams and specialty cheeses, can be an attractive alternative income opportunity for milk producers," said Rankin. "However, the success of such an enterprise depends on several critical items, including regulatory compliance, marketing, and appropriate processing technologies. Our goal is to introduce program participants to both the opportunities and challenges of farmstead milk processing by providing a realistic and practical overview of the subject."

Participants will discover what products are in demand, how cheeses are bought and sold, and what technical training is available in the United States. They will hear about equipment options, potential co-marketing opportunities, and the personal experiences of owners of successful small-scale operations.

A highlight for many will be a presentation on the diverse world of premium cheeses by Jim Path, who oversees the Specialty Cheese and Wisconsin Master Cheesemaker programs at the University of Wisconsin. A recognized expert in the world of specialty cheese manufacture, Path was inducted last year into France's Commanderie de Fromages Society, which honors individuals who excel in promoting specialty cheeses. He is one of only five Americans — and the only one from academia — inducted into the society in the last 30 years.

Advance registration is required. The fee for registrations postmarked by March 16 is $35; after that, the price increases to $45. Payment covers tuition, course materials, continental breakfast, break refreshments, hot buffet lunch, and wine-and-cheese tasting. For more information, persons may contact Dr. Scott Rankin at 301-405-4568 or rankins@wam.umd.edu, or check out the program web site at http://ansc.umd.edu/dairyfoods/index.html.

FOOD CHECK-OUT DAY - The American Farm Bureau Federation's message is: "Food in America is affordable, thanks in large part to America's productive farmers and ranchers. Food Check-Out Day is a celebration of the bounty from America's farms and ranches and how that bounty is shared with American consumers through affordable food prices." According to the latest statistics provided by the Agriculture Department, the average American devotes only 10.4 percent of his or her disposable personal income to pay for food. When applied to calendar days, the average American will have earned enough income to pay for his or her family's annual food supply in just 38 days. This year Feb. 7, which is the 38th day of the year, was commemorated as Food Check-Out Day. Farm Bureau said that compared to other expenses facing America's families, food is a bargain. While Americans must only work until Feb. 7 to pay for their yearly food supply, last year they had to work until May 3 just to pay for their taxes. "America's farmers and ranchers are the most productive in the world. We're proud of our contribution to society, and Food Check-Out Day gives us the opportunity to share some of our success with others," a Farm Bureau spokesman said. Locally the Garrett County Farm Bureau Women's Committee commemorated Food Check-Out Day by donating food to Hoyes Church, Friendsville, which was this year's food pantry collection center affiliated with the House of Hope. Women's Committee co-chairperson Debbie Barnard said, "As we celebrate the efficiency and productivity of America's farmers and ranchers, we should not overlook the fact that farmers and ranchers are currently going through difficult economic times." She explained that low commodity prices, shrinking foreign markets and escalating regulatory costs are threatening the very fabric of the family farm, and that prices at the supermarket certainly don't reflect the historically low commodity prices producers are receiving today. "Farmers are receiving a record low for the products they produce," she added. Pictured above, from left to right, taking part in Food Check-Out Day at Hoyes Church are Al Receveur, Food Pantry worker; Barnard; Rebecca DeBerry-Tasker, Women's Committee co-chairperson; Don and Carol Moss, food pantry workers; and Carolyn Receveur, Hoyes Church Food Pantry director. "Producing safe, quality food is our job, and we hope that consumers take note of Food Check-Out Day and join us in this celebration of American agriculture's success," DeBerry-Tasker said. She added that anyone wishing to donate items to the Food Pantry may call 301-334-3257.

NRCS Opens Sign-Up For EQIP Conservation Funding For Farmers

David P. Doss, state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Maryland, has announced that Maryland received $1.67 million in fiscal year 2001 conservation funding through the USDA Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). NRCS is USDA's lead technical agency for conservation programs.

"Over the past five years, NRCS Maryland has provided farmers approximately $7.67 million in EQIP funds to pay for conservation projects that address natural resource concerns and protect water quality," said Doss. "EQIP will help Maryland farmers address some of their most pressing local natural resource concerns, such as soil erosion, water quality, and grazing lands."

According to Doss, farmers should contact their local Soil Conservation District office, located at USDA service centers, for more information on the sign-up period, application process, and receiving conservation assistance through EQIP. The sign-up period for submitting an application for EQIP funds ends on March 30, 2001. NRCS has leadership responsibility for implementing EQIP and consults with USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) on planning and implementation policies related to Farm Bill programs.

"Maryland's FY2001 EQIP program consists of 12 locally designated geographic priority areas (GPA) and one statewide natural resource priority concern area," said Chris Gross, NRCS Maryland EQIP program manager. "The boundaries of the GPAs were determined by local conservation groups specifically to target EQIP funds to areas with natural resource concerns. Any land not located in a GPA boundary is eligible for EQIP funding through the statewide natural resource priority concern area.

"EQIP provides farmers with a flexible and effective program that offers financial assistance to install conservation practices related to local watershed concerns involving animal waste/manure storage, farmstead runoff control, soil erosion, nutrient management and cover crops, integrated pest management, and prescribed grazing management," said Gross. "EQIP has proven itself to be one of USDA's most popular conservation programs in Maryland."

NRCS Maryland is funding conservation improvements to land in FY2001 with EQIP proposals for GPAs in Maryland, including:

- Water Quality Statewide Natural Resource Priority Concern Area for Agricultural Operations, statewide for any area not contained in an individual GPA, and
- Western Upper Potomac River-Grazing, Allegany.

EQIP provides cost-share assistance for up to 75 percent of the cost of certain conservation practices, such as grassed waterways, filter strips, manure management facilities, contour buffer strips, livestock exclusion, and prescribed grazing. Incentive payments can be made for up to three years to encourage farmers to perform land management practices such as nutrient, manure, and integrated pest management. Total cost-share and incentive payments are limited to $10,000 per person per year and $50,000 for the length of the contract, which can run from 5 to 10 years.

One emphasis for EQIP is the leveraging of EQIP funds with other conservation programs to provide even greater stewardship of natural resources. In addition to USDA EQIP funding, the Maryland Department of Agriculture provides cost-share funds for selected conservation practices, and the combined conservation funding makes it possible for farmers to install conservation management systems that before would have been prohibitively expensive.

Farmers who address the primary conservation concerns in the locally designated GPAs will be given preference for an EQIP contract. The program is limited to persons who are engaged in livestock, poultry, or agricultural production. Nationally, one-half of the funds are targeted to livestock-related natural resource needs and the remainder to other significant conservation priorities associated with crop production.

Geographic priority areas were determined by a process that began with local work groups coordinated by Soil Conservation districts. The local work groups are made up of representatives from Maryland Soil Conservation districts, NRCS, FSA, FSA county committees, Maryland Cooperative Extension, environmental groups, and other federal, state, and local agencies interested in natural resource protection. These local work groups (convened by local conservation districts) conducted a natural resources needs assessment and, based on that assessment, develop proposals for geographic priority areas. These local proposals are ranked according to natural resource concern priorities in Maryland and provide a basis for funding decisions.

The 1996 Farm Bill prohibits providing EQIP cost-share assistance to large confined livestock operations for the construction of animal waste storage or treatment facilities. However, technical assistance will be provided to all operations. EQIP defines a large confined livestock operation as one with more than 1,000 animal units.

NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has worked hand-in-hand with farmers and landowners for more than 65 years to conserve natural resources on private lands. Maryland's landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting NRCS Maryland through USDA service centers collocated with their county's Soil Conservation districts or by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Univ. Of Md. Schedules Ice Cream Course

Small-scale ice cream manufacturers and individuals considering ice cream manufacturing as a business are urged to register now for the University of Maryland's renowned Ice Cream Course, March 17-20, in College Park. Organized by Dr. Scott Rankin, dairy processing specialist with the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources' Maryland Cooperative Extension, this unique educational opportunity is designed to provide operators of batch freezers (and those interested in operating them) with in-depth exposure to the business of manufacturing quality frozen desserts.

"We offer the most intensive, hands-on ice cream course in the United States," said Rankin, "and our students appreciate that. As one of last year's participants commented, 'You can read the texts and take correspondence courses, but until you get hands on experience, you can't say you know how to make ice cream. I can now say I know how to make ice cream. I give this course five scoops out of five.'"

Because of its emphasis on hands-on experience, the course is limited to 24 people. In addition to lectures focusing on fundamental concerns of quality evaluation, flavor selection, and processing procedures, these individuals will attend manufacturing sessions held in the university's $14 million, state-of-the-art dairy processing plant. Working in teams of three under skilled supervision, they will produce and evaluate dozens of different products, emphasizing premium ice creams, sherbets, and sorbets. And at the end of each lab session they will taste and evaluate products produced the previous day.

The registration deadline is March 1. But because last year's course sold out, interested individuals are encouraged to register early to avoid being relegated to the waiting list. A fee of $850 includes tuition, lab fees, course materials, break refreshments, a dinner banquet, and a certificate of participation. For more information or a course brochure, persons may call Dr. Scott Rankin at 301-405-4568, send an e-mail message (rankins@wam.umd.edu), or check out the course web site at http://anse.umd.edu/dairyfoods/ICSC1.htm.

Vegetable Gardening Tips

Consider your garden successes and failures from last season and begin to map out your garden plan for 2001. Try to rotate crops in your plan. Rotation helps in controlling diseases and insects. Order your garden seeds now so that you will be ready to sow seeds at the proper time.

Consider purchasing some floating row cover material to protect crops against insects and promote early growth. You can start sowing seeds of spinach, lettuce, kale, mustard, sorrel, corn salad and other greens indoors under fluorescent tubes. These plants will be ready to transplant outdoors in 2-3 weeks and should be protected by a cold frame or floating row cover. Plan sowing dates in conjunction with the time you will be transplanting to the garden. Or you could direct seed these crops in loose, fertile garden soil cover with a cold frame or under a floating row cover. Row covers will provide frost protection, not a hard freeze. Plan to start cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower seeds during the first week of April in Garrett County. Warm season crops like tomato, pepper, and eggplant should be started during the last week of April, and cucumbers, squash, and melons can be started the first week of May. Dust off those fluorescent bulbs and be sure that your growing containers, flats, and media are ready to go.

When growing flower or vegetable transplants follow a few simple guidelines: Use a soilless growing medium containing peat moss, perlite and vermiculite. Keep the medium moist, not soaking wet. Speed up germination by providing bottom heat and keeping temperatures at 70-75 degrees F. Use cool white fluorescent tubes and run them 14-16 hours each day. Keep seedlings 1-2 inches from the lights. Pot plants up to larger pots so they don't become root-bound. Fertilize transplants that have to be grown for more than 6 weeks with a weak soluble fertilizer according to label directions.

It's a good time to check the germination rate of old, questionable seed. Place 20 seeds between moistened paper towels, roll up the towel and place it in a plastic bread bag. Put the bag on top of the refrigerator or other warm location and check after 5-7 days to see what percentage has germinated. Discard seed lots with less than 75% germination.

Fruit Tips

Now is a good time to select and order fruit plants from reputable mail order companies. Select recommended, disease-resistant varieties when possible and be sure you indicate a desired shipping date. For apple trees, be sure you know the exact rootstock you are ordering. "Getting Started With Small Fruits" or "Getting Started With Tree Fruits" are fact sheets also available upon request. The Maryland Home Fruit Production Guide will be available for sale in late March.

Dormant oil sprays are very effective at reducing populations of some tree fruit pests like aphids, mites and scale insects. If you've had problems with these pests, spray trees thoroughly with a dormant oil spray before bud break, making sure that temperatures are expected to remain above 40 degrees F for the 24-hour period after spraying. It is only necessary to spray dormant oil one time. Do not spray dormant oil within 10 days of using a sulfur-containing spray.

Liquid lime sulfur is a safe and inexpensive material that can be sprayed on raspberry, blackberry, and blueberry plants prior to bud swell to prevent cane diseases. It should also be applied to peach trees when buds begin to swell but before green tissue is visible to help prevent peach leaf curl disease. Apply to plum trees at bud swell to prevent plum pockets disease.

Fireblight damage on apples and pears should be pruned out during the cold periods in February. This will lessen the chance of spreading this bacterial infection. Bordeaux can be applied to apple and pear trees prior to bud swell to reduce the incidence of fireblight.

If you experienced poor growth in blueberries this season have your soil tested and amend your soil accordingly. Maintain mulches around small fruit plantings unless field mouse feeding is observed. Consider covering your strawberry patch with a piece of floating row cover. This material can help prevent winter injury and promote early growth in the spring.

Prune out the dead raspberry and blackberry canes that fruited this past summer. Fall fruiting raspberries like Heritage can be mowed to the ground now. Prune small fruits and tree fruits the latter part of this month, but wait until bud break to prune peach trees. Order a copy of EB97, "Pruning Fruit Plants in Maryland" for more specific information.

Home Heating With Electricity Or Wood Pellets; Which Is Cheaper?

Editor's note: The following article is written by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen, president of Western Technology Inc. Sheahen, a physicist and energy engineer, owns a home at Deep Creek Lake.

With the cost of various fuels going up, many Garrett County residents in recent years have chosen to heat their homes via a stove that burns wood pellets. For some homes, the alternative is natural gas, for some, propane, and for some, baseboard electric heating, which is widely assumed to be very expensive.

The recent shortage and very rapid escalation of the price of wood pellets calls all this into question. It may be that electric baseboard heating is not all that bad by comparison.

To understand this, we must look at the topic known as "fuel switching."

Let's begin with electricity, which in our region costs 6 1/2 cents per kilowatthour ($0.065/kWh). However, the unit customarily used for heating is the British Thermal Unit (Btu). By a conversion factor for units, one kilowatt-hour of electricity, when run through an electrical resistance heating device, puts 3,412 Btu into the air of the room. So for 1 million Btu (1 MMBtu) it costs $19. That's a pretty expensive way to heat a building. Natural gas is much cheaper. But lots of people aren't near the gas pipeline, and must heat their home some other way. Some of those choose wood pellets as their source of heat.

Wood pellets used to sell for about $140/ton, or 7 cents per pound. Lately the price has risen to about $200/ton, or 10 cents/pound. That 40% increase in fuel price makes a big difference.

How many Btu are produced by burning various fuels? As a benchmark, bituminous coal has a "heat value" of 9,000 Btu/pound. Wood varies from one species to another: soft maple has 9,600 Btu/pound, hickory has 8,500 Btu/pound, and various other species (spruce, pine, etc.) have still smaller heating values. Since wood pellets are made out of pressed sawdust, a reasonable guess based on average wood mix is 7,000 Btu/pound. The wood is burned in a stove or furnace that typically sends about 1/3 of the heat up the chimney; that is, the efficiency is 2/3, or 67%. For a better-than-average device, let's suppose that 70% of the heat actually enters the room. Then the effective (or "useful") heat value is 4,900 Btu/pound (= 7,000 x 0.7).

At 10 cents/pound for pellets, the cost of 1 million Btu works out to $20.41 — more expensive than electrical baseboard heating! Back when pellets only cost 7 cents/pound, the equivalent calculation would yield $14.30 per mmBtu — much better, and indeed only 3/4 the price of baseboard electric heating. In fact, even if fairly crummy pellets were used, having a heat value of only 6,000 Btu/pound to begin with, and the stove had only 62% efficiency, pellets at 7 cents/pound would still beat baseboard electric by a tiny margin of about 1%.

It is also possible to calculate the "break even" price for pellets, always assuming that electricity stays at 6.5 cents/kWh. Again using wood of heat content 7,000 Btu/pound, and assuming 70% efficiency, the break even price works out to 9.3 cents/pound, or $3.73 for a 40-pound bag.

What is going on here is that it's pretty cheap for a power company to produce electricity by burning coal; coal is a whole lot cheaper when bought as a "unit train" rather than in 40-pound bags. Despite the three-to-one loss of heat value when going from coal to electricity, Allegheny Power is able to sell electricity to Harry Homeowner for 6.5 cents/kWh. (People in California are happy to pay DOUBLE that, when they can get the power.)

Incidentally, nuclear power is often cheaper still; the nuclear plant at Lake Anna, Va., regularly wins awards for producing power at 1.6 cents/kWh; and even after mark-up for transmission costs, profits, etc., that power still is very cheap. The people of Illinois have enjoyed cheap nuclear power for decades now, with no shortages. It would be even better if the few of us around here could all live off Deep Creek Lake hydropower, but there isn't enough of that to meet our needs.

For people in Garrett County who have a choice between baseboard electric heating and wood pellets, there is a "maximum" price for wood pellets, beyond which it makes more sense to go electric. That number varies with stove-efficiency, pellet quality, etc., but it's somewhere in the range of $3.50 to $4 for a 40-pound bag.

If you pay a delivery charge of $20/ton, that's 1 cent/pound added to the price of the pellets. By contrast, the delivery charge for electricity is already built into the rate charged by the utility.

If you're thinking of investing in a new means of heating for the future, you better do some careful calculations before making a final decision. What will go up faster in price? natural gas? propane? pellets? firewood? electricity? Living in this part of the country, coal will likely remain inexpensive, and that will slow down the rise in electricity prices.

Moreover, if you're going to spend, say, $2,000 for a new stove, you should expect to get your money back in about five years or less — which means that you'd better show a savings of $400/year or it's a losing proposition. If you can buy pellets for $140/ton (= 7 cents/pound), then you're saving 2.3 cents per pound compared to heating with baseboard electricity. If you burn 3 tons of pellets in a year, you save 3 x 2000 x $0.023 = $140. That's quite a ways short of the $400 figure you need to "break even" on your investment.

On the other hand, if you can get firewood for free by cutting it all summer on your own farm, then a wood-burning stove looks very good. There are lots of other trade-offs that can be worked out.

In summary, those of us living in Garrett and surrounding counties are blessed with comparatively low-cost electricity. That in turn allows us to have a wider choice of how we heat our homes.

Mrs. Slotnick's reading group was recently studying the legend of John Henry, who always tried to prove that man was better than machine. On Thursday, Feb. 8, the students participated in an activity of "man versus machine" by pitting a hand saw against an electric saw, a sewing machine against hand stitching, typing against writing, an electric mixer against hand mixing, a bike in a race against a student, and many more. The students kept a tally sheet in which man sometimes won over machine, but the winner of the whole survey was machine. "This proved to be a great learning experience for the students," stated Mrs. Slotnick.

STUDENT VISIT TOWN HALL

Second and third graders from Mrs. Paul's and Mrs. Slotnick's classes recently visited Friendsville Town Hall to help in their study of community government. After the Pledge of Allegiance, concerns of those students present were noted.

Mayor Schlosnagle talked about the municipal election and what it's like to be the mayor. He also spoke on the history of the town and the town council. Students asked such questions as: how old one has to be to run for mayor (18 years old) and how much a town council member makes ($15 per meeting).

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

As usual, the weather seems to be the biggest news in Bittinger, rather than people. Last week I forgot which night it was, but believe it was Friday night we had the most vicious wind ever, which was a steady blast from the north. It tore the roof off of the old turkey house where thousands of turkeys were raised by my father and his family. Since the early part of the twentieth century it has withstood many big storms. In recent years it has served as a lounging place for our horses. Luckily they choose the barn to stay out of the bitter cold wind. Some of the rafters and joists were thrust in the ground in the pasture south of it.

Carol said she spotted some very strange shadows in the field the next afternoon when she was down to feed the horses. She dragged the lumber and big sheets of tin into a few big piles. It is still blowing pretty hard, and I hope that it will not destroy her work and spread the piles out again. I don't think she is up to another session.

After the fact, it appears to me that the roller coaster weather means that the groundhog's prediction is pretty much right. One day it is over 50 degrees and sunny and it feels warm enough and almost spring-like. Then the next day the temperature drops to about 40 degrees or maybe just above zero. Even during the same day it goes between extremes.

I know that Liz Gilbert of Oakland and I were caught off guard as to how cold it got on Saturday evening compared to earlier in the day. Liz and Jeff Gilbert attended the Northern Band Boosters' spaghetti dinner, and we did not wear warm enough coats. The dinner was a big success since they ran out of sauce by 7 p.m. and still had another hour to go. They got busy and made another big batch of sauce. Like many big school or community events, you get to see people who you do not see every day. I especially enjoyed admiring the 3-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Aiken. His big brother seems very proud of little Noah.

I still have some packs of dish cloths that the band is selling to raise funds for its big trip to Nevada. If you are in need of some dish cloths let me know or contact any band member.

Eastern Star Chapter Meets

Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday, Feb. 6, at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. Worthy Matron Dottie Csamer and Worthy Patron Richard Csamer presided. The Worthy Matron's opening thought was "Friends."

Election of officers for the year 2001-2002 was held. The following officers were elected: Worthy Matron, Bette L. Welch, Associate Matron, Nancy Harsh, Associate Patron, Theodore Raynovich, Conductress, Johnna Jones; Associate Conductress, Cheryl Miller; secretary, Juanita Bosley; and treasurer, Richard Csamer.

The Worthy Matron's closing was a Valentine's Day game. Guests for the evening were Tom and Betty Beckman and David and Judy Hall from McKinley Chapter in Cumberland. Refreshments were served by Nancy Harsh and Debbie Raynovich.

The next meeting will be February 20 at 6 p.m.

LITTLE RASCALS VISIT CUPPETT & WEEKS NURSING HOME — Students of Little Rascals Early Learning Center visited Cuppett & Weeks this week to crown the King and Queen of Hearts. Rachel Warnick, 4, the Queen of Hearts from Little Rascals, crowns Garland Yeager, 95, as the King of Hearts of Cuppett & Weeks. Michael McEwen, 5, the King of Hearts of Little Rascals, crowns Iris Maroney, 81, as the Queen of Hearts of Cuppett & Weeks.

Last weekend was a big weekend for the big dance (Northern Snow Ball), for which Claire looked fabulous. I just can't believe that my once little baby was that tall, gorgeous blond young lady in her pale lavender gown.

One step up were a couple college lovelies from Bittinger attending some big dance at various college-university campuses. Leah Stanton was at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg for the ROTC semi formal. Unfortunately, her friend from Bittinger, Michele Housley, was away from campus, as she was attending the law school semi-formal at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Ellen and Sam Housley took their little nephew, Paul McIlster, to watch his big cousin Brent play on the Northern JV basketball team in Hancock. Ellen said Paul was thrilled to sit on the bench of the team, and he was thrilled that Brent's team won the game. Another young Bittinger man, Landon Southerly, played in the varsity game. How these kids grow up so fast! It seems that just yesterday they were only knee-high to a grasshopper. Now they attend semi-formal balls at college or are playing high school sports.

Lenny Poholsky enticed son Torrey and Matthew Bass to Pittsburgh to see the Penguins play on Saturday. The Pens won an exciting game in overtime. They are in the Stanley Cup hunt, led by Mario. Maybe someday Torrey will play hockey either in college or even pro. Who knows? He should get out on his family's pond like his mother Sally, Aunt Cindy, and I used to do every chance we got. It still looks like it is frozen solid enough to skate, with the recent cold snap we once again are having.

On Saturday, the week before last, Lenny and Torrey stood in a very long line at the Pirates Fest at Carnegie Science Center. They collected autographs, viewed the model of the new stadium, saw the new uniforms, and just had a ball, except Lenny told Sally I wouldn't stand in line like that for anything except Torrey.

Kevin Dodge bemoans the lack of open (unfrozen) water in the Bittinger area, because it cuts his species count in the mid-winter bird count. In spite of lack of water, he still counted 37 species. He recently gave a talk at the Frederick Bird Club and exchanged news of one of their former members, my cousin Courtney Englar, who, by the way, has already moved into his new house on an old former farm on Everly Road in the Cove. He has plenty of birds there to watch and count.

Kevin was busy last weekend with a gathering of white owl experts from Maryland and West Virginia. They slogged around in the swamp and cleaned and repaired the owl forest box. He said he never saw such deep water in the Cranesville Swamp. They took a breath from the swamp on Sunday when another owl enthusiast brought up his 3-year-old daughter to visit. He and Kevin and Reana Dodge checked out the rushing water over Muddy Creek Falls. There was a huge amount of water going over the falls, according to Kevin. Both Kevin and I hope the amount of snow we got this year will recharge the ground water supply around here. The spring on Rock Lodge Road was gushing the other day.

The Pittsnogles' home was filled last weekend, as Keith's three children were here to visit. The hottest injury of the new millennium seems to be rotator cuff problems in the shoulder. Early in December, our friend, Walter Haydel, had surgery on one of his shoulders. The other one is also bad. He was almost due to have the other one done, but a fall on Christmas Day retore the first one, so this week on Valentine's Day as well as it being his wife's birthday, he is going to undergo the knife to again repair the damage. So he will have to have the other one done in a few months. Hopefully he will not have to undergo surgery on that shoulder twice too.

Leora Yaste recently fell and also injured her rotator cuff. She is not sure as of this date if she will have to have surgery to repair the damage. My mother, Ruth DiPaolo, has had quite a lot of pain in her arms and shoulders, and guess what? It has been diagnosed as rotator cuff tears. She doesn't want to have surgery and opted for a shot of cortisone in the shoulder and another one in March.

Another Bittinger resident, Sandy Nesline, can attest to the difference surgery can make. She had surgery several months ago and says her shoulder is as good as new. Personally, I am sure I tore my left rotator cuff in a bad ski accident when I was a senior in high school. I just let it go, but it never fully recovered. Several times a horse dislocated my shoulder, and now that I hear about all the problems with the shoulders, I imagine an ache, which I guess is sympathy pain.

The Haydels hosted a birthday party for their younger daughter Jamie on Saturday evening and, of course, a sleep-over. Jamie is my Caitlin's best friend, so of course she was there.

Sally and Lenny Poholsky visited with Sally's brother, Dave Beachy, and his wife Nancy in McHenry last Friday evening.

Mary Simpson, who resides "across the mountains," is a patient in Garrett Memorial Hospital after undergoing knee replacement. She is currently receiving physical therapy.

Jim and Donna Glotfelty spent last week on a "Gospel Jubilee at Sea Cruise" to the Bahamas with Templeton Tours aboard the Norwegian Cruise Line's Norwegian Sea. The Glotfeltys traveled to Hanover Sunday afternoon, where they were overnight guests of Jeff and Sheli Gray and daughters, then departed from BWI Airport for Miami Monday morning and boarded ship Monday afternoon. They listened to the singing of many southern gospel music groups and messages by inspirational speakers. Upon their return to Miami, they were treated to a helicopter tour of the city and suburbs, and returned to their home here Saturday morning. The trip was a gift package in celebration of the couple's recent 50th wedding anniversary.

SWANTON NEWS

Rose Laub, Confluence, Pa., and Mildred and Brenda Umbel of Friendsville visited Freda Teets on Wednesday.

Mary June Harvey was an overnight guest of Sandy and Brian Schofield in Bittinger on Friday. On Friday morning Mary June and Sandy motored to New Martinsville, W.Va., where they visited Betty Harvey. They returned to their homes Saturday afternoon.

Chris Riley and daughter Ellen of Mt. Airy visited Orval and Mareva Teets on Friday. On Saturday Ellen stayed overnight with her grandmother, Joan Riley.

Mareva and Orval Teets visited their granddaughter, Lawre Virts, and her children, Zach and Hannah, on Saturday afternoon at their home in Chestnut Grove. They were accompanied by Ellen Riley of Mt. Airy.

Chris and Ellen Riley returned to their home in Mt. Airy on Sunday.

Murder Suspect Transferred To GC; Hearing Set

Tucker County resident Michael Todd Messenger, charged in connection with the shooting death of a Mtn. Lake Park woman outside a Gortner tavern 11 days ago, is being held in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $100,000 bond. A preliminary hearing in Garrett County District Court is set for Wednesday, March 7.

The 34-year-old Messenger waived extradition last Friday morning during a court appearance in Parsons, W.Va., and was immediately transported to Oakland, where three arrest warrants were served by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation. Messenger faces charges of one count of second degree murder; five counts each of attempted second degree murder, first degree assault, second degree assault, and reckless endangerment; two counts of use of a handgun in the commission of a violent crime; and one count of malicious destruction of property.

A number of those charges were added last week as the GBI investigation into the Feb. 12 events at Shorty's Bar and Grill continued to unfold. While shooting victim Sharyn Jane Burch, 21, was the only person struck by the four to seven shots Messenger allegedly fired from a 9mm revolver, "there were five people in the parking lot at the time, and [we believe] he [Messenger] basically shot into the group," said Jeff Murphy, the GBI's lead detective in the case.

Burch was reportedly standing next to a truck when a single bullet struck her in the abdomen from 55 feet away. Messenger, who had been removed from the bar following a physical altercation with others inside, allegedly fired the weapon while he was seated in his truck. He then left the scene and traveled home to Davis, where he was apprehended without incident the following morning at his residence.

Burch, who died during emergency surgery approximately one hour after the shooting, was buried last Friday in Rose Hill Cemetery, Thomas, W.Va.

HONOR BAND CONCERT FRIDAY - Garrett County's top high school and middle school musicians will present their annual Garrett County Honor Band concert at Northern High School this Friday, Feb. 23, beginning at 7 p.m. The youth have rehearsed together for two days this week, with the high school honor band being directed by Bill Robinson of Northern and Rick Clover of Southern. The middle school honor band is directed by Sharon McLaughlin of Northern Middle and Marge Clever of Southern Middle. Pictured above foreground at a rehearsal is Katy O'Donnell (piccolo) of Northern High School. Playing French horns are Northern's Autumn Kitchen, left, and Southern's Suzanne Gilbert, right. Trumpeters in the photo include Brett Lambert (partially hidden at left) and Jason Snyder (second from right) of Southern, and Kurt Taylor of Northern (right). Standing are Laci Slagle and Daphne Brindel of Northern. There is no admission charge for Friday's concert.

Officers Make Ambulance Theft Arrest Tuesday

A Garrett County sheriff's deputy and a Maryland State Police trooper worked together to apprehend a Pennsylvania man who was driving a stolen ambulance through Mellenry early Tuesday morning. John Andrew Sidor II, 25, Uniontown, faces a charge of auto theft filed by the sheriff's office in connection with the incident and is currently held in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $2,500 bond. Charges are pending in Pennsylvania.

At approximately 2 a.m. Tuesday Pfc. Robbie Zimmerman noticed a Uniontown ambulance traveling in a suspicious manner through Mellenry. After witnessing the vehicle turn from Garrett Highway onto Deep Creek Drive and come to a full stop in the middle of the road for no apparent reason, he approached the driver to see if assistance was needed.

Sidor, the lone occupant of the 1999 Ford, reportedly told the deputy that he was lost and was looking for the airport. Zimmerman gave him directions and sent him on his way, and just after the ambulance left the scene Pfc. Greg Becker arrived and Zimmerman shared his suspicions with him. Becker noted that he had followed the same ambulance from Accident to the police barracks and that the vehicle had been operating slightly erratically, as if the driver were lost.

The two officers contacted Garrett Central and asked dispatcher Drew Sheally to check with Uniontown authorities to see if an ambulance was missing, and he was told that an ambulance had been taken from the Hopwood, Pa., fire hall earlier in the evening. The officers began a search of the area, and

Proposed DCL Speedboat Race Rejected By DNR

Public Meeting Set On Tour Boat Proposal

A Pittsburgh promoter's proposal for a June weekend power boat racing event on Deep Creek Lake has been rejected by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. Citing "overwhelming opposition" expressed by several lake-affiliated organizations, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, and citizens, DCL State Park manager Paul Durham announced the decision this week.

Mark Balenzentis of Pride Promotions first proposed the race late last year as a fund-raiser for the Michael J. Fox Foundation for Parkinson's Research. The event would have featured boats racing at speeds approaching 120 miles per hour on the waters in the vicinity of DCL State Park, and would have required a waiver of a rule limiting boat noise to 90 decibels.

"The comments we received from the public were overwhelmingly against the race," Durham said in a letter addressed to Balenzentis, which listed noise, crowding, and safety factors as major concerns raised during the public comment period. Special concern was raised that "the noise generated by the race conflicts with the quality of visitor experience that has traditionally characterized Deep Creek Lake."

The letter also cited potential ill-effects to the state park experience as well. "The size and type of the event you had proposed is inconsistent with the original purposes of Deep Creek Lake State Park. The presence of the tournament pit area and the expected number of spectators would interfere with the regular park uses expected by our day visitors and campers. The size of the racecourse also displaces a good number of boaters and recreational users who have come to depend on this section of the lake as being open for public use."

The Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association strongly opposed the race in writing as well. "Deep Creek Lake is not Ocean City, and I could think of nothing [more] that would shatter the tranquility of the lake, endanger those on the lake and change its entire character. . . ," wrote association president Roger Titus.

The proposed race had been listed by the chamber in its 2001 Calendar of Events published at the start of the year, but, as Chamber president Ken Wishnick stated in a letter to Durham dated Feb. 9, "the Chamber does not now and never has supported or offered assistance to the proposed power boat races." Wishnick explained that the chamber's events calendar is strictly an informational publication, and that inclusion of any event in the listing in no way signifies an endorsement.

"This policy is being re-examined by the chamber so that, in the future, applications will be evaluated by the chamber for community appropriateness, though in-

Healthy Families Program Awarded Grant Funding

A Healthy Families program that will improve access to health care for Garrett County residents was recently awarded a total of $67,994 from the Maryland Health Care Foundation. The funding will provide free medical transportation vouchers as well as venipuncture lab collection services for those qualifying county residents who are homebound, according to Garrett County health officer Rodney Glotfelty.

Healthy Families Garrett County (HFGC) is a Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families program administered by the Garrett County Health Department, and provides home visiting services to all expecting parents and families in Garrett County with a newborn baby under 3 months of age.

Glotfelty explained that the most important stages of learning in a child's life takes place from birth to age three. He stated, "Parents are the strongest influence in their children's lives, but parenting is a difficult job and children do not come with an owner's manual."

The HFGC program provides support to ensure that children are healthy and enter school "ready to learn," said Glotfelty, who added that HFGC staff answer parents' questions, help parents to know what to expect as their baby grows, and help parents to learn how to teach while playing with their child.

The transportation vouchers, he said, are available for individuals without transportation who are not covered under another medical transportation program. Transportation is provided by the Garrett County Community Action Committee's Garrett Transit Service (GTS) for medical and health-related appointments, such as doctor and health department appointments, eye exams and follow-up, physical therapy, and Women, Infants and Children (WIC) and food stamp appointments. One voucher can be used for one adult or for two children to ride GTS one way from pick-up to drop-off for each appointment, noted Glotfelty.

Qualifying residents may have vouchers mailed to them by calling the Healthy Families office at 301-533-

Loch Lynn Rape Suspect Turns Self In Sunday

A Loch Lynn man wanted in connection with a reported rape of a 15-year-old girl at his residence early Saturday morning turned himself in at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office the following day.

Jeffrey Charles Minnick, 35, remains held in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $200,000 cash bond as he awaits trial on charges of first degree rape, first degree assault, second degree assault, reckless endangerment, and false imprisonment, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

The incident reportedly took place shortly after midnight Friday night, as the alleged victim went to Minnick's residence looking for a friend she thought was there. Minnick reportedly invited her into his apartment and is accused of raping and choking her repeatedly over a two-hour period.

The victim eventually escaped and notified authorities, who reportedly located numerous items of pertinent evidence at the apart-

Spay Day Set For Feb. 27 By Humane Society

The Garrett County Animal Shelter, in cooperation with the Garrett County Humane Society and several local veterinary clinics, will be celebrating Spay Day on Wednesday, Feb. 27, and have designated the month of March as Spay/Neuter Awareness Month.

"We are kicking off the program with a shelter open house on Thursday, March 1, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., stated Candy Virts, humane society representative, who added that tours of the Garrett County Animal Shelter, free spay/neuter information, animal adoptions, and refreshments will be available.

Virts, along with other humane society representatives Nancy Helbig (president) and Annette Robinson, and Garrett County Animal Shelter manager Bonnie Zimmerman, appeared before the Garrett County commissioners this week for their approval and endorsement of the program, which was given.

Virts stated that anyone adopting animals out of the shelter during the month of March will receive certificates good for $25 off the cost of any spaying or neutering procedure. She added that some local veterinarians are showing their support for the program by offering an additional $10 off the cost during the month.

As stated in a letter from the humane society this week to the county commissioners, "The Garrett County Humane Society feels that since millions of animals are euthanized each year nationwide, this is the perfect opportunity to get the public involved in making a difference by spaying or neutering some of our Opening Ceremonies will begin Sunday evening when 400 spectators will witness the arrival of the Special Olympics flag via a dog sled team. Law enforcement officers will then parade the "Flame of Hope" down the mountainside and pass it off to Special Olympics athletes. Finally, the cauldron will be lit to signify the official opening of Winter Games.

Deputies Locate Pair Of Military Deserters In GC

A pair of U.S. Army soldiers wanted for desertion from their assignments were located in Garrett County by sheriff's deputies Tuesday evening. The pair were incarcerated in the local detention center pending extradition by military authorities.

The first subject, Pfc. Dennis Eric Martinez, 20, was located at a Bumble Bee Road residence in the Sunset Ridge area at approximately 5 p.m. Additional information was received shortly thereafter that a second deserter may be in the area, and Pfc. Christopher Robert Tout, 22, was subsequently arrested at a home along Foster Road.

Both soldiers had been stationed at Fort Stewart, Ga., at the time they deserted their unit.

Elk Garden Man Sent To Jail For Various Charges

David Wayne Tasker, 31, Elk Garden, W.Va., received a total of 2 1/2 years in the Garrett County Jail last week for charges related to three separate motor vehicle incidents, according to the office of the State's Attorney for Garrett County.

Tasker pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and attempting to flee on foot for an incident that occurred in August 1996. Charges of failure to obey a lawful order of a police officer and displaying license plates issued to another were dismissed upon his plea. Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Tasker to one year for each charge, to run concurrently.

Tasker was charged by Garrett County Sheriff's deputies who had received a broadcast lookout for a suspected drunk driver in the Kitzmiller area. When the vehicle was located, Tasker was found to be the driver, according to the police reports.

While the deputy was assessing Tasker's condition and confirming his identity, Tasker attempted to flee on foot, but was apprehended shortly by that officer's K-9 unit.

Tasker had failed to appear for the original trial date in 1996, and the bench warrant issued by the court at that time had remained outstanding until last year.

Tasker pleaded guilty to attempting to elude police for an incident involving a chase in June 1997. On that occasion, Sheriff's deputies responded to a Kitzmiller area residence for a disorderly subject. He reportedly was intoxicated and was driving a truck with a juvenile passenger, according to police records.

Officers located the truck, but Tasker fled in the vehicle. After a short chase, Tasker effectively eluded the officers. The officers filed the charges at that time, and the warrant had remained outstanding until last year. Charges of speeding and reckless driving were dismissed by the state upon his plea.

For this incident, Judge Sherbin sentenced Tasker to six months in the Garrett County Jail, to run consecutively to the one-year sentences.

A third incident involving Tasker resulted in charges being filed for a second time in June 1997. A Maryland State Police trooper attempted to stop the car Tasker was operating along Route 135 when a chase ensued. As the trooper was able to determine the identity of the driver, he discontinued the chase and filed charges, which were also outstanding until last year, according to reports.

A total of 15 motor vehicle violations were filed. Tasker pleaded guilty to one speeding violation, for traveling 100 mph in a posted 50 mph zone, and to one charge of fleeing from police. Judge Sherbin then sentenced Tasker to one more year in jail and fined him $300.

In other Circuit Court news, Jonathan Wilham Platter, 44, Salisbury, Pa., pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. Judge Sherbin sentenced Platter to six months in the Garrett County Jail and fined him $1,000.

Platter was charged by a Maryland Natural Resources Police officer last March. When officers stopped to determine if the driver of the vehicle needed assistance, they determined the driver, Platter, had been drinking, according to police. After Platter failed a series of field sobriety tests, he was charged.

In another incident, Vincent Andrew Baxter, 22, Upper Marlboro, pleaded guilty to two counts of possession of marijuana. Baxter received two one-year sentences to run concurrently. The jail sentence was then suspended, and Baxter was placed on 18 months of supervised probation, according to reports. Conditions of his probation include making $160 restitution to the Maryland State Police and completing the Teen Challenge Program.

Baxter was indicted by the September 2000 term of the grand jury for two counts of distribution and two counts of possession of marijuana, for incidents that occurred in December 1999. On two ocassions that month, Baxter had sold small quantities of marijuana to a police informant. According to court reports, the distribution charges were dismissed when Baxter pleaded guilty.

GC College Small Business Courses Being Offered

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College (GCC) is offering several classes during the month of March, one of which is designed for employees of any local business "to more effectively represent their employers and serve the public," according to GCC program director Julie Yoder. "Building Quality Customer Service" will cover a number of topics during the eight-hour class, including "making all customer contacts positive, using actions that build trust, improving communication and phone skills, and calmly dealing with difficult customers," said Yoder.

The three session class will be held on Tuesday, March 6, Thursday, March 8, and Tuesday, March 13, from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m., in the Continuing Education and Training building at the McHenry campus.

Tuition and fees for the course are $40 for Garrett County residents. Discounts apply for businesses sending three or more employees.

An 8-hour seminar addressing the issue of living and working in an "Internetworked" world is also being offered, according to Yoder. The seminar and discussion-style course will focus on today's technology, including "where it came from and where it's going," she said.

Through readings and presentations, the course will include a "rapid but comprehensive overview of the Internet phenomenon that is beginning to affect the foundations of most aspects of our lives," said Yoder.

Robert Coyne, Ph.D., of Solution Technology International, will serve as the facilitator.

The class will meet on four consecutive Thursdays, March 8 through March 29, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the McHenry campus. Tuition and fees for the course are $50 for county residents.

"Presenting with PowerPoint," a four session course, is designed to provide individuals with a hands on experience in the use of Microsoft PowerPoint. Topics to be covered include creating, saving, opening and editing presentations, adding slides, clip art, charts and graphs, methods for fine-tuning and enhancing presentations, and designing a complete presentation.

The class will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, March 6 through March 15, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., in Room 261. Cost of the eight-hour course is $52 for county residents.

Anyone interested in registration information should call 301-387-3101.

GCC's Adventure Sports Program Sets Busy Slate

The Adventure Sports Program at Garrett Community College will feature a number of new students as well as a variety of new activities during the spring semester, according to program director Mike Logsdon.

Thirteen new students have joined the program, hailing from six different states — Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Colorado — and the Baltic nation of Estonia. Eight of the new students have transferred to GCC from other universities, while one is a U.S. Army veteran.

These and other adventure sport students have been training Garrett County elementary and high school students for volunteer work at the Winter Special Olympics, set for this Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 26-27, at the Wisp. Twelve college students in the Adventure Sports for Special Populations course, along with instructor Steve Tomb, have been meeting with the younger students on Thursday evenings to train them for the event.

Another group of Adventure Sports students attended the recent International Adventure and Travel Show in Chicago, where they were accompanied by professor Steve Storck.

A major project that will be undertaken by Adventure Sports students this spring will be the improvement of the public access facility on the North Branch of the Potomac River at Bloomington. The project will be carried out in cooperation with the Garrett County Sanitation District and the Garrett County commissioners on the property of the Bloomington Waste Water Treatment Plant. It will include site preparation for convenient access for boat take-out, placement of signs and announcement board, preparation of space for portable toilet facilities, and construction of two public paddler changing enclosures.

Other activities in which AVS students are participating this spring include management and operation of the equipment rental center and climbing wall at the college, participation in snowboarding and skiing competitions, mountain bike races, and freestyle padding competition. During the summer a number of students and staff will be involved in the Adventure Education Guide Service for summer camps and other groups.

Reality Garbage...

Reality television is what they call it, and it is evidently captivating a huge segment of our society, not to mention those of a number of other nations that are following a similar lead with their programming. What a sad reflection on our nation that evidently has little better to do than to glue ourselves to the idiot box to watch fellow human beings "survive" various ridiculous escapades, activities, and food stuffs on what is described as a deserted island. Deception, back-stabbing, and betrayal are all part of the game, such fine, wholesome benavior among alleged adults for our younger generation to witness. One of the shows even throws in sexual temptation as a tool for trying to destroy personal relationships between men and women.

Last week on the show called "Survivor," the contestants were seen chasing a pig around the island, catching it, and then dining upon it. Thank heavens they caught it, for starvation was just seconds away. What quality TV!

We suggest a new show that places some Yuppie Americans in the heart of Afghanistan where, right now, today, about one million refugees are freezing and starving to death. Or let's put them on the streets of any one of many South American villages that have been wrecked by storms and/or earthquakes and see how they get along. Maybe they could actually pitch in and help these people. The problem is, no one would watch that on television, and thus it would not generate any money for the producers. Bad idea.

Can't we at least put a pig or two among some of the millions of people in this world who are truly and literally starving to death? Can't we drag our floppy butts off the couch and away from reality television, and get involved in trying to change what is indeed reality for some fellow human beings? At least the producers of these shows could make a hefty contribution to help some people whose survival really is in jeopardy.

We should be ashamed.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Many of us here in Garrett County lost a dear friend last week with the death of Don Carstens. Don was a commanding presence wherever he went, with a voice to match his stature.

Those of us who worked with him here at the college and in the business community will always remember his indefatigable spirit and his wonderful sense of humor. Even throughout his long illness, his spirits remained high. He was a man of honor and integrity with strong moral convictions. He gave his best in whatever he did, and he never compromised with truth or honesty. If he perceived a wrong, he fought to correct it. Beneath his brusque exterior was a heart of compassion. Above all, he was unswervingly loyal to his friends.

During their years in Garrett County, Don and his wife Helen gave unselfishly of their time and energies to this community, for which we will always be grateful.

To the Editor:

In these rural hills located in the far western part of the state, winter arrives earlier and stays longer than it does in the rest of the state. The first snow usually arrives sometime in early November, and the last, sometime in March. Spring gets here, well, eventually.

This year I saw the first signs of spring in the middle of February. During an unseasonably warm spell that was accompanied by lots of rain, the accumulated snow melted way down, and I saw the first Buds of the season — and a few Heinies. Then I noticed some of the larger trashflowers that had previously been hidden under the snow. I never cease to be amazed at this unfolding scene because, like wildflowers, it's hard to tell what I might see next. Unlike wildflowers, however, the trashflowers are "planted" during the winter; kind of a cruel joke on Mother Nature. Not aesthetically pleasing, either.

The terrain where I live lends itself very nicely to this "crop," you see, because there is a hill that slopes very steeply down from the road aw. Also, some mysterious force seems to be at work because I get whole bags of "seedlings" blown onto my property from time to time (the last bag had some very interesting information, as Gary Love, landfill czar, can attest).

This year doesn't seem to be as bad as last year when I received a trashflower which I believe is included in the water lily family, only mine was a water heater. In fact, now that I think of it, there was a water theme last year because I also received a trashflower that I believe is related to the drumhead shark, except mine was a 55-gallon drum. Also one that seemed to be related to the Hellbenders found in some Garrett County streams, except mine was a bunch of metal pipes bent like hell.

Ah spring, sweet spring!

George Falter

P.S. Don't bother, Gary, I'll deliver it myself; your people have enough to do already.

To the Editor:

Yesterday I stood up! In a couple of weeks, my legs will be strong enough to take my "first" steps. What's the significance, you ask? I'm 32 years old. Since November 10, 2000, I've been unable to use my legs for anything. As you may know, I was hit by a drunk driver.

All I ask, as I stand up again today, is for each and every one of you to stop and think about it for a minute. What would you do if you needed daily assistance to bathe, dress, eat, and take care of all other daily aspects of hygiene? How would you handle it? Eleven weeks in a bed is a long time. However, I'm not complaining, because it could have been worse. With the grace of God, I will walk again. With the grace of God, I am alive! Some people, unfortunately, aren't as lucky.

I beg each and every one who drinks alcohol, if you can't refrain from drinking, please use common sense. Don't drink and drive! For everyone else out there, do your part. If someone you know is getting behind the wheel drinking, do everything possible to stop them! After all, you are in your clear mind-set. You could save your loved one or the life of a stranger. Too many times we turn our heads and look the other way. All I ask is that you stand up and take notice, because you could save a life. Wouldn't you feel better knowing that you possibly saved a life than hearing the next day someone died as a result of your "not wanting to get involved?"

If you had to bury your loved one, or look at your loved one lying in the hospital, wouldn't you wish that someone would have kept that person from getting behind the wheel? Only you can make a difference! As I can tell you, it's never to soon to start!

To the Editor:

On the evening of Jan. 29, my family and I joined over 100 friends and distinguished public officials to attend a surprise buffet dinner honoring my father, Charles Tressler. The dinner was in recognition of his retirement as mayor of Loch Lynn, after serving 26 years.

I listened with pride as each official acknowledged the accomplishments achieved by my father during his service. I was mostly impressed with all the admiration that was expressed for him by the friends and families he served.

The excitement and love that these good people expressed toward my dad left him utterly speechless. He managed to carry a great-grandson in one arm and shake each person's hand. He received countless hugs as he made his way through the crowd. The dinner seemed more like a large family reunion. The hours passed like minutes until the dinner ended. He recalled everyone's name and brought a smile to every person. I am very proud of my dad and take much comfort in knowing that he only retired his position as mayor, and that he'll never retire the position of a friend to his community.

Dad, we love you and we are very proud of you. We are looking forward to extra time that you'll now have to spend with us. You have always been a great role model to our family. We appreciate your unconditional love and support.

On behalf of his five children, 14 grandchildren, and six great grandchildren, we extend our heartfelt gratitude to Sheila and all who organized and participated in this wonderful occasion. We are truly honored by your efforts. The people have always been a source of Dad's dedication and love, and not the politics. He proved that anyone can be a politician, but it takes a true person to be a friend.

Sincerely,
Cathy Tressler Shomo

To the Editor:

This is primarily for the good folks at the Casselman Inn. The Baltimore 4 Wheelers Inc., a four-wheel-drive club based in the Baltimore area, has made the trip this weekend to Garrett County for the last seven years to go to a special area of the Savage River State Forest to enjoy our Jeeps and four-wheel drives in the snow. Because of the freezing weather and snow typical for this time of the year, we are able to enjoy our sport with little or absolutely no negative environmental impacts whatsoever.

This year, for the first time, nature dealt us a bad hand. With the rapid thaw and snow melt, coupled with tremendous rains, the soils have become much too soft to bring a large group out to the forest on those primitive roads.

The Savage River Complex manager, Ranger Mike Gregory, just advised us of the conditions and said it would not be suitable for a trailride. Thus, in the spirit of "Tread Lightly" and good forest stewardship, we had to respect Ranger Gregory's judgment and cancel the ride on that area.

So, most of the members planning on going opted not to come up. Some of us are still coming to drive on the hard gravel roads and sightsee.

While it is a big loss to us, as many of us had planned for this trip several months ago, we understand that this is also more of a loss to the businesses in and around Grantsville, especially the Casselman Inn, as originally we had the place booked up.

The members of the Baltimore 4 Wheelers deeply regret any inconvenience this has caused those folks. But, please understand, to drive 3 to 4 hours to see a lot of mud is not tops on most folks' list. Plus, destroying our natural resources is against our code of ethics.

We will be back, for sure. A very warm "thank you" to the Casselman and the citizens of Grantsville, as well as Garrett County for being such great hosts when we are there.

Respectfully submitted,
Preston Stevens
Land Use Director

Race Rejected

clusion will still not equate to chamber support, only to the absence of chamber opposition," Wishnick clarified. He closed stating that "the chamber believes the [boat race] proposal is impractical, inappropriate, and dangerous on Deep Creek Lake."

Tour Boat Proposal

The Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board has slated a public meeting for 10 a.m. Saturday, March 17, at the tentative site of Garrett Community College to gain public input on the proposal to permit large tour boats to operate on the lake. The board had previously approved a regulation change that would have facilitated DNR approval, but has since suspended approval pending additional public comment.

Last year local marina owner Robert Browning requested that the lake's regulations be changed to permit the operation of a 62-foot tour boat, complete with a concession service, that he had purchased. At this point Maryland law prohibits vessels more than 26 feet in length from operating on the lake.

The Policy and Review Board, along with members of the DCL Property Owners Association, want specific requirements for such operations written into Maryland law, according to board member Fred Thayer. Changes to such state regulations would require the consent of the Policy and Review Board through a process that would mandate public hearings. DNR initially suggested that it was unnecessary to make tour boat parameters part of the regulations, which helped lead to the board's suspension of its approval.

Following receipt of additional public comment, the Policy and Review Board is expected to reach its final decision in late March or early April. The exact location of the March 17 public meeting will be announced in The Republican upon final confirmation.

View From My Window

GEORGE W

One of my favorite lines from the 2000 A.D. presidential campaign was offered by then-candidate Bush as he arrived in Philadelphia for the Republican National Convention. "I am following the footsteps of our first president who came to Philadelphia more than 200 years ago, George Washington, whose friends called him George W."

Today is the birthday of that first George W. whose friends, I suspect, called him, "General." It is impossible to imagine that diffident and elegant gentleman in our modern political circumstances. Today he would have a better set of dentures, and that would help him some.

There is the difference in the eras, of course, but in many ways polities was then as it is today, a rough and tumble game where the rules are for losers. Even allowing for the historical differences Washington just does not fit somehow in the current political set up.

George Washington wrote little, spoke less, and was universally esteemed. He had that advantage, which continues to be an advantage today, of being tall. He stood, literally, head and shoulders over most of his countrymen. He was a man to whom command came naturally. There are other qualities, however, hidden from our eyes 200 years later, for Washington received the kind of universal respect which has happened only once in the history of our republic.

George W. Bush does well when he emulates President Washington, even if he cannot imitate him. In many respects, 200 years later, President Bush faces the kinds of problems that President Washington faced. In fact, Bush faces the kinds of problems about which Washington warned posterity in his farewell address, the problems of faction and party.

The spirit of party and faction, Washington wrote, "...is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind.... The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism."

Since Washington's day no president has tamed the spirit of faction. Some have ridden it into office (Andrew Jackson and Warren Harding). Several have managed the spirit of faction. Lincoln did so with that simplicity, which was his genius. Both Roosevelts managed that spirit by being bigger than it was. Eisenhower and Reagan managed the spirit through geniality. Clinton outrode faction through a shamelessness that amazed the shameless in all factions. Faction got the best of Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter, and Bush the elder.

The current George W. has his work cut out for him, and he seems to know it. Why else would he invite the Kennedy family to watch a movie with him at the White House? What did Senator Ted Kennedy — the great liberal — say the next day? "This is a man we can work with." That is only a paving stone in a long road, but one paving stone after another will get George W. where he needs to go.

Someone might say, "George W is no George Washington." He isn't. That is clear. He knows he cannot master factionalism. He knows that he cannot be bigger than it is. He does seem to have a chance of managing the strife of our nation's capital by following the examples of Eisenhower and Reagan. Geniality, when it is genuine and not merely a veneer, can carry a person at times when many other qualities fail as political transportation.

We can hope for George W. Bush, and pray for him. There is an unfortunate political adage, "Go along to get along." A more virtuous and ultimately more successful approach is to get along to go along. Our country advances when we can work together, perhaps because working together is a kind of progress of its own.

Dale Earnhardt: "Good-bye, Good Friend"

by Bernice Kepple

How can I say that Dale Earnhardt was my good friend? No, I'd never met the man and never saw him in person, but he spent almost every Sunday afternoon from February to November in my living room. He entertained us, thrilled us, and let us get to know and respect him, not just as a driver, but as a husband, a father, and, oh yes, a friend.

He was a "man's man," intensely competitive, backing down from no one. From his own father he learned to "establish his territory and defend it," and early in his career he became the master of "intimidation." He was honest and responsible, and after a race, he never made excuses to the press or other drivers for things he'd done. Whether they liked it or not, he'd just say, "that's racin'."

But he had a softer side that appealed to me, too. I saw it in the laughter he shared with his friends at the track, the comradeship he had with his car owner and pit crew, the love and affection he gave to his wife Teresa before and after each race, and the compliments he gave her in front of all his peers at the banquet last year when he credited her for much he had accomplished and told her she was "getting prettier year after year." The love and pride he had for his son Dale Jr. was evident, but that love and pride also extended to his other son, Kerry, both drivers following in the footsteps of their father and grandfather. He enjoyed attending daughter Taylor's dance recitals, and had a grandfather's intense pride in daughter Kelley's new baby.

He was easy to relate to; his manor and confidence reminded me of the men in my own family. He enjoyed driving a tractor and feeding the livestock on his farm, another trait he had in common with my men. Then there is that other similarity: His family had three generations in stock car racing. My own has two, my husband and my son, and what happened to Dale will be on my mind every time my son drives onto the track. Even though he doesn't compete at the same level as Winston Cup, and even though I know he and his father have made his car as safe as possible, and that he uses all the necessary safety equipment when he races, the fear of a crash is always there. For those reasons, I'm very empathic with Dale's wife and children, and feel a special bond to them all.

Should Dale's sons quit? Should my son quit? That's not even an option. They've inherited a love of the sport and the competitive spirit to go along with it. Dale's sons will continue because they feel that's what their father would want. NASCAR will go on as usual, because that's what Dale would want. Our lives will go on as usual, because that's what we have to do, but it will be with heartbreaking sadness, regret, and a deep sense of loss. And each Sunday we'll miss having him as a guest in our house. Dale Earnhardt, we'll miss you. Good-bye, good friend.

Kitzmiller Rd. Mishap Injures Accident Man

An Accident resident was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a Saturday, Feb. 10, single-vehicle mishap near Kitzmiller. No charges were filed in the accident by Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Raymond David Piper, 35, was operating his 1991 Chevrolet truck northbound along Kitzmiller Road when it slid off the wet roadway and struck a telephone pole. The Southern Garrett Rescue Squad was summoned for the transport, and the Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Funding Sought For 4-H Center Improvements

Two bills have been cross-filed in the Maryland State Legislature that would provide funding in the amount of $120,000 to improve and expand the Western Maryland 4-H Education Center. House Bill 673 was co-sponsored by District 1-A Delegate George Edwards and Senate Bill 361 was co-sponsored by District 1 Senator John Hafer.

The funds will help the Maryland 4-H Youth Development Program enhance the educational facility by providing approximately 75% of the cost of constructing asphalt trails and paths between buildings, and handicapped accessible ramps to residential cabins, buildings and bathhouses.

"These improvements will provide greater access to expanded audiences and help to increase the occupancy rate of the facility," stated Jim Simms, county extension director. He added that, if these monies are obtained, it would be the first time the facility has ever benefited from state monetary assistance for capital improvements. He explained that the program has always operated on a profit-and-loss basis.

The Western Maryland 4-H Educational Center is a 1,100-acre facility that was developed in the 1930s by the Civilian Conservation Corps. Within the center is a public access park area that encompasses more than 200 acres, and a 100-acre resident camp with a capacity of 150 campers and staff. The remaining 800 acres are public access forested woodlands that are also widely used by Maryland Department of Natural Resources educational programs.

According to a report from the Maryland 4-H Foundation, approximately 100,000 youth and adults from throughout the state have participated in hands-on learning and informal natural resources education at the center since its inception. Topics offered have included youth leadership development, forestry, aquatic biology, ornithology, wildlife, geography, geology, and astronomy, among others. The facility has also been used for corporate and professional retreats, as well as for various special interest topics.

Traditionally open only during the warm weather months, the 4-H center has undergone a series of capital improvements during the past several years which should allow for the expansion of the programs into the winter months, said Simms.

The facility includes 18 cabins, a dining hall, bath houses, a group assembly building, a natural resources education building, a 25-acre lake, several pavilions for small group instruction, and a low-elements challenge course.

The pending legislation also seeks to fund improvements and/or renovations at the Patuxent River 4-H Center in Prince George's County, the Harford County 4-H Camp at The Rocks, and the Thendara 4-H Center in Dorchester County.

The identical bills have been assigned to the House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee, respectively.

Gov. Reappoints Suzanne Beachy To GCC Board

Gov. Parris N. Glendening recently submitted the name of Garrett County resident Suzanne C. Beachy among his "Green Bag" appointments to the General Assembly, continuing an annual rite begun more than 50 years ago and a tradition that dates back to 17th century England. Beachy is being reappointed to the Garrett Community College board of trustees.

In all, 265 men and women were named to serve on state and county boards, commissions, task forces, and boards of elections. The Green Bag represents the bulk of the governor's appointments for 2001 that require Senate approval.

"With such varied and diverse backgrounds, these appointees will bring their collective experience, dedication, and wisdom to serve their state and their communities in a dynamic way," Gov. Glendening said. "These women and men represent the finest in civic participation and we are thankful for their contributions on behalf of all Marylanders. This is the essence of government by the people and for the people."

Beachy and her husband Gerald, who is also the mayor of Grantsville, manage a family-owned pharmacy. She was the charter president of the Grantsville Lioness Club and served as women's guild president of St. John's United Church of Christ.

"I enjoy working with the board members," Beachy said. "I am glad to be able to give something back to my community."

The historic "Green Bag" procedure of submitting gubernatorial appointees for confirmation is part of a tradition begun in the English House of Commons, which was revived sporadically in Maryland during the 1800s and then resurfaced in Annapolis in 1951. In 1983 a handcrafted green leather pouch embossed with the state seal became the governor's "Official" green bag, lending authenticity to what has become a special Maryland custom.

Stiffer Drunken-Driving Laws Urged; Maryland Studying Over 20 Bills

by Lauran Thomet
Capital News Service

Maryland's drunken-driving laws are too loose, and the General Assembly should approve the more than 20 bills introduced this session to stiffen them, witnesses told the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday.

The marquee drunken driving legislation this session is a measure to lower the legal driving while intoxicated threshold from .10 to .08 blood-alcohol concentration. The committee heard that bill and more than a dozen others, including one to prohibit open containers of alcohol in the passenger compartment of a vehicle.

Maryland stands to lose $5.2 million in federal assistance for fiscal year 2004 if it doesn't reduce its blood-alcohol-level threshold by 2003, according to the Maryland Department of Transportation. The state would also lose a $2 million federal safety incentive grant if it doesn't comply with the law by 2003.

Last year, 205 people died in drunken driving related accidents, said Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, the first of more than 30 witnesses to press their cases in a packed committee room.

"These are deaths that do not have to occur. We can stop them," Townsend said.

Testifying in favor of the bills were members of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, the State Police, the Motor Vehicle Administration, the American Automobile Association, and victims' friends and families.

The new DWI threshold will not, by itself, stop drunken driving accidents, said Delegate Dereck Davis, D-Prince George's, the lead sponsor of the DWI legislation.

The Judiciary Committee should consider the drunken driving bills as a "package, said Davis, Townsend, and Delegate Sharon Grosfeld, D-Montgomery.

That package could include two bills outlawing open containers in the passenger compartment of a vehicle that also were heard Wednesday.

The measures would prevent "partying while driving," said State Highway Administrator Parker F. Williams.

Because Maryland has no open container law, the federal government has forced the State Highway Administration to funnel 1.5 percent of its highway construction money into safety programs since 1998, Williams said.

Sanctioning Maryland through federal highway funds is a way for the federal government to force Maryland to comply with the .08 threshold, said Joseph A. Schwartz III, Maryland State Licensed Beverage Association lobbyist.

"This is like Groundhog Day, the movie, all over again," said Schwartz, who has opposed .08 legislation for the past three years. "Except (this time) federal carrots and sticks are put in front of the committee."

In the comedy Groundhog Day, Bill Murray, playing an arrogant television weathercaster, relives Groundhog Day innumerable times. Two other beverage and restaurant lobbyists and two members of the Maryland Criminal Defense Attorneys Association flanked Schwartz in opposition to the DWI bill.

The five opponents who showed up to oppose the .08 legislation were outnumbered by a small army of supporters fed up with alcohol-related deaths.

"We're asking you to take away the ability to drive from people who drive drunk," said Anne Ferro, MVA spokeswoman.

But some committee members asked if Maryland's two-tier drunken-driving system would make sense if the DWI threshold were reduced to .08.

Maryland now has a driving under the influence charge for drivers with a .07 blood-alcohol level, as well as the .10 standard for a charge of driving while intoxicated.

"I would like to see Maryland lose the two-tier system," said Delegate Thomas E. "Tim" Hutchins, R-Charles, retired commander of the State Police training academy.

But Townsend and Ferro asked the committee to keep Maryland's two-tier system intact for now.

"Reject any delay of this bill," Ferro said. "Those who say it's a large pill to swallow. Swallow it."

Dog Stolen In Friendsville Area

Authorities are seeking leads in the apparent theft of a 14-year-old Chihuahua from its Friendsville Road residence during the middle of the day, Tuesday, Feb. 13, according to the Garrett County sheriff's office.

Shortly after noon on that date a creme-colored mid-size sedan was observed backing out of the home's driveway, and the dog was immediately noted as missing. The Chihuahua is described as a creme-colored 8-pound male that bears an old bullet wound on its shoulders. The animal's monetary value is set at $200.

Oakland Men Face Domestic Assault Charges

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested two Oakland men this week after separate domestic incidents at their respective residences.

Randy Wayne Dalton, 26, was charged with second degree assault after he allegedly beat and threw items at his girlfriend at their Sand Flat Road home shortly after 12 a.m. Saturday morning. He has since been released from jail after he posted a $5,000 bond as set by a district court commissioner.

Dean Francis Norton, 38, was charged with second degree assault late Tuesday night after he allegedly beat his wife at their Boiling Springs Road residence. He fled the scene prior to the arrival of police officers, but deputies and Maryland State Police troopers located him shortly afterward hiding in a wooded area near the home. Alcohol was cited as a contributing factor in the incident. The victim refused medical treatment by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad.

Norton was released from jail on a $2,500 bond.

We would walk right up to heaven,
And bring you back again.

No farewell words were spoken,
No time to say goodbye,
You were gone before we knew it,
And only God knows why.

Our hearts still ache in sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you,

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Beth Long Correspondent

A the Long home over the weekend there was a lot of activity. On Sunday night as "Dad" Long returned from work he heard a lot of noise in the barn and discovered a litter of piglets. "Patch," the mother pig, was my market hog at the Garrett County Fair last year, but was purchased and donated back to me. So Patch was spared and got a "husband" at the Daymond and Lori Schmuck farm. They are now the proud parents of six piglets.

Because it was so cold Sunday night and two were very small when they were born, they ended up in a box by the wood stove in the house. We started feeding them with an eye dropper, but have graduated to a baby bottle pretty fast since they are eating like pigs. So with hourly feedings there has been very little sleep at the Long home. Oh, yes, they do have names already: Eye Dropper and Runt. We understand "Papa" pig at the Schmuck farm is very proud.

MOUNTAINEERS MEET

Treasurer Maria Harsh called to order the Feb. 12 meeting of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club in the absence of the other officers. Devotions were on the theme "Love," and were presented by Recreation Committee members Craig Rembold and Tyler Harsh. Tracy Teets led the 4-H pledge and the pledge to the U.S. flag. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read, with the roll call being answered by the 12 members present.

Five photos were entered in the Preston County competition by Maria Harsh, Kari Harsh, and Sara Lewis. Linda Lewis, organizational leader, asked members for enrollment charges and announced that Windsong Amanda Bergman of Shepherdstown will be in the county for a spring program. She is a graduate of Yale University and spent six months in Taiwan.

The club voted to reimburse the Preston County 4-H foundation for club insurance. Two more members are needed to participate in the Preston County 4-H Day.

The next meeting will be March 12, with the Music Committee in charge of devotions and the program. Members are asked to bring their self-determined contracts to be reviewed and signed by the leader.

Craig Rembold told about his self-determined project concerning paint ball shooting and the needed guns, balls, and safety equipment. He also spoke about their cost. He used his own equipment to illustrate the talk. Caitlin Roth demonstrated how she made her clover exhibit for her "This Is 4-H" project. Tracy Teets told about different breeds of hogs, their meat types and characteristics, and used a sketch showing the various cuts to locate them. Maria Harsh spoke about resumés and interviews needed as a member grows older, how they pertain both to school and to projects, and particularly how hers can relate to her health project. She encouraged the record keeping to begin early to accommodate the necessary resume.

Following adjournment, the members and parents had healthy finger foods in special observance of Heart Health Month.

Healthy Heart Events Noted By Health Dept.

As February's observance of American Heart Month enters its final week, the Community Health and Outreach Division of the Garrett County Health Department reminds all citizens that physical activity and diet are two of the most important factors in maintaining a healthy heart. Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in Maryland, accounting for over a third of all deaths.

"More than half of Maryland's citizens do not get enough physical activity or eat enough fruits and vegetables," stated registered dietitian Amy Ritchie of the Health department, add-ing that members of the Community Outreach team have been promoting Heart Month by presenting Healthy Heart programs in the schools and at 4-H club meetings. "Walking is a great way for almost everyone to get the U.S. surgeon general's recommended '30 minutes of moderate activity on most, if not all, days of the week.'"

The health department sponsors several ongoing healthy heart activities, including the Walk-a-Weigh program. Initiated in February 1998, the self-paced program provides healthy heart information and incentive awards, including patches, to participants who submit their mileage figures to the health department. Persons interested in information on the Walk-a-Weigh program may call 301-334-8122 or visit the health department office, located north of Oakland along Garrett Highway.

Walk-a-Weigh participants, and all other interested persons, are encouraged to take part in the upcoming Railey Realty Waffle Run, a 5K run/2-mile fun walk, slated for Saturday, April 7, at the Wisp. Applications for the race can be picked up at both the Garrett Highway and Maryland Highway health department offices. As with the Snowflake Chase, a special patch will be given to all Walk-a-Weigh participants who take part in the Waffle Run.

Among the other avenues for walking in the county are the Tuesday through Friday walking sessions that take place from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Oakland National Guard Armory. Health Department AmeriCorps members are on hand at each session to provide healthy heart information and low-fat recipes, take blood pressure readings, and sign participants up for prize drawings.

Children's Dental Health Month

by Dr. Bill Yant, Dr. Dan Koch, and Dr. Tim Longest

The way children care for their bodies today will have an impact on their health in the future. The good news for parents is that preventive dental care has dramatically improved the oral health of American children. It's now possible for many children to reach adulthood without ever experiencing tooth decay.

February is National Children's Dental Health Month, and we of the Dental Health Group in Oakland offer these tips for parents and caregivers:

- Take your child to see the dentist regularly, beginning by the child's first birthday.
- Put only water in a child's naptime or bedtime bottle.
- Start brushing as soon as the child's first tooth appears.
- Begin flossing when two teeth begin to touch.
- Brush and floss your child's teeth daily until the child can be taught to do this alone.
- Make certain your child gets the fluoride needed for decay-resistant teeth. Ask your dentist how this should be done.
- Ask your dentist about dental sealants, a thin protective barrier that shields the chewing surface of back teeth against tooth decay.

Good oral health practices should begin in infancy and continue throughout adult life. In your child's early years, you must provide this care. Later you will need to instruct, monitor, and motivate your child to help maintain good oral health habits.

Tooth decay is caused by bacteria, which are present in a thin film of plaque that constantly forms on the teeth. The bacteria in plaque use sugar to produce acid, which attacks tooth enamel. If sugary liquid or food is allowed to remain in the mouth, acid can attack teeth for several minutes. Tooth decay can occur after frequent, repeated acid attacks.

It's not just what children eat or drink, but how long their teeth are exposed to decay-causing acids. For example, if you offer a bottle or snack containing sugar or high carbohydrate content many times a day, the teeth experience more acid attacks. Allowing a child to fall asleep with a bottle during a nap or at night also can harm teeth. While the baby sleeps, the flow of saliva decreases. Harmful sugary liquids collect and remain around the teeth, inviting acid attacks.

Attitudes and habits established at an early age are critical in maintaining good oral health throughout life. We encourage all parents to take an active role in maintaining their children's dental health so their teeth can last a lifetime.

GCMH Director Earns Certificate Of Appreciation

Eric Tribbey, director of Cardio Pulmonary Services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, was recently awarded a certificate of appreciation from the Maryland/District of Columbia Society for Respiratory Care. The certificate was given after Tribbey completed a two-year term as the Western Maryland Chapter representative serving as a liaison for Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland Memorial Hospital, and Washington County Hospital. Tribbey has now been installed as treasurer for the society and will serve as a board of directors officer in that capacity until 2003.

"Garrett County Memorial Hospital has been supportive of my activities and has enabled me to contribute to the Society of Respiratory Care," Tribbey said.

Miss Glotfelty and Mr. Tichinel Exchange Vows In Nov. Ceremony

Amy Lynn Glotfelty, daughter of Cecil C. Glotfelty, Oakland, and Darlene M. Glotfelty of Germantown, and Daniel Frank Tichinel, son of Stan and Naomi Tichinel, Swanton, were united in marriage on Saturday, Nov. 11, 2000, at 3 p.m. at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland. The Rev. Ann Harrison performed the double-ring ceremony.

The ceremony began with the lighting of candles by Aaron Glotfelty, brother of the bride, and the mothers of the bride and groom. Given in marriage by her family and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a white satin sleeveless gown with a basque waistline and bouffant skirt. The intricately detailed gown was embellished with hand-sewn pearls and sequins. The skirt and semi-cathedral train featured open appliqués and a scalloped hemline.

The bride carried a bouquet of 12 long-stemmed roses tied with white satin ribbon. The maid of honor and attendants carried three long-stemmed white roses with a touch of bear grass hand tied with white satin ribbon. White tulle bows intertwined with navy ribbon decorated the candle louvers. Jan Florist in Oakland designed all the fresh flowers.

Angie Glotfelty of Oakland and sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. The bride's attendants were Sheila Keating, Frostburg, Heather Sherbin, Oakland, and Katie Custer, Oakland, all friends of the bride. The bridesmaids all wore Arianna dresses by Rachel Kaye. The floor-length dresses were made of navy brushed silk with a shawl drape effect across the scooped back. They all wore silver necklaces with a pear-shaped sapphire and matching earrings, given as gifts by the bride.

Steve Zilka of Aliquippa, Pa., and friend of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mark Snyder, Rochester, Pa., Melvin Custer, Oakland, friends of the groom, and John Tichinel, Winchester, Va., brother of the groom. The groomsmen all wore Balboa black notch full dress tail tuxedos by Oscar de la Renta with navy paisley vests and ties. The groom's aud groomsmen's boutonnieres were each made of a single white rose. Marvin's Men's Wear, Oakland, coordinated all tuxedos.

Heather Sweitzer, of Swanton and friend of the bride, attended the guest registry and distributed programs and bubbles. Gerald McGee, Oakland, provided pipe organ music for the service. Photographer for the wedding was Shari Harris of the Precise Image located in Oakland. Lorne Brenneman, friend of the couple, videotaped the ceremony.

A buffet dinner reception, catered by Brian Shaffer, was held at St. Peter's social hall in Oakland. An hors d'oeuvre and cocktail hour was held as guests arrived. DJ Bob Lupton of Westernport provided music for the dinner and reception. The wedding cake was baked and designed by Rita Savage of Swanton.

Out-of-town guests attending the ceremony came from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, and Illinois.

The bride was honored with a bridal shower on Sunday, Oct. 29, by her attendants at Uno Restaurant, Deep Creek Lake.

The bridal party and families were treated to a sit-down rehearsal dinner by the bride and groom at the Board Room, Oakland.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Southern High School and was employed by the state of Maryland. The groom is a 1983 graduate of Aliquippa High School, Aliquippa, Pa. He is employed as an operations supervisor for Weirton Steel.

After their honeymoon trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica, the couple established residence in Weirton, W.Va.

FRIENDSVILLE

Bill Parks of the State Highway Administration presented an overview of the extensive Streetscape Project which will be undertaken this spring. This $488,000 upgrade of First Avenue from Route 42 to Maple and of Maple Street from First to the Yough Bridge — which includes milling and resurfacing of the roadway, concrete drainage improvements, new sidewalks and curbs, ADA modifications, landscaping, etc. — has been totally funded by the state. It was noted that a local field office will be opened in town for the duration of the project.

Mayor Schlosnagle requested an increase in patrols by the sheriff's office, with the approach of warmer weather and more activity in town.

Mayor Schlosnagle recently attended the annual Maryland Mayors' Conference in Annapolis, where he met with various officials and attended several workshops of local significance.

The Friendsville Lions Club was granted the use of the Community Park on Saturday, July 3, for the annual Fiddlers Contest.

The local RAD group was granted the use of the Community Park on Saturday, April 7, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for its annual Easter egg hunt and related activities. The mayor and council donated $100 in support of this event.

The lease-purchase of a tractor for mowing, snowplowing, and hauling work was approved.

After a thorough review by the Maryland Municipal League, the town attorney, and the mayor and council, the franchise agreement between Adelphia Cable and the town was approved. An upgrade in cable services is scheduled to begin in the near future, with many more options being made available to local cable subscribers.

The county commissioners will attend the March 20 council meeting to discuss matters of local concern.

The annual $100 donation to the Northern High School After-Prom Activity was approved.

Mayor Schlosnagle hosted a tour of Town Hall for several classes from Friendsville Elementary School last week.

The clerk-treasurer presented the annual Delinquent Tax Report to the mayor and town council. This has been forwarded to the county treasurer for inclusion in the annual tax sale. If any local property owner has a question regarding the status of a municipal tax account, the clerk-treasurer is available at 301-746-5919 and 301-746-5847.

Mayor Schlosnagle and the current council members commended outgoing council members Wayne Friend, Shirley Metheny, and Jess Whittemore for their "dedication and hard work" on the town's behalf.

The next council meeting is scheduled for March 5.

Lakers Whip Chesapeake, Mash Essex In JUCO Tournament

The Garrett Community College Lakers wrapped up their regular season on Saturday by crushing visiting Chesapeake, 84-57, in a Maryland JUCO Conference contest, and then got off to an excellent start in the JUCO Tournament by routing Essex CC Tuesday night, 109-73, also in McHenry. The pair of wins gave Coach Dennis Gibson and the Lakers an overall record of 22-4 and a 14-4 mark in the conference.

The Lakers took the lead in the opening moments of Saturday's game against Chesapeake and never looked back. Freshman Kortaa Hall led four Lakers in double figures by netting 15 points. Rob Hall finished with 13 points, seven assists, and three steals, while Antonio Lappegard recorded 12 points, 10 rebounds, and six assists. Also reaching double figures was Jontae Harrington with 11 points.

Leading Chesapeake was Larry Henson with 18 points. Justin Burton finished with 16, and William Augustono recorded 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Kortaa Hall set a GCC record in Tuesday's convincing playoff win over Essex, as he missed his first three three-point shots, but then hit nine of the next 10 and finished with a career-high 31 points.

The Lakers hit 55% of their shots for the game, and had what Coach Gibson called "one of their best shooting halves this season" in the first half. Garrett held a lopsided 54-20 lead at intermission.

"Kortaa and Rob Hall, and Antonio Lappegard just couldn't be stopped," he said, "and we played very well as a team."

Lappegard had another double-double for the Lakers, as he pumped in 18 points and grabbed 10 of GCC's 43 rebounds, while Harrington scored 16 points. Rob Hall also had a double-double evening with 11 points and 15 assists, and Kortaa Hall pulled down nine rebounds and had four steals. Damon Hamby finished with five steals.

Wendle Dixon led Essex in scoring with 21 points. Malick Parone finished with 15 points and nine rebounds, LaShawn Artis netted 14 points, and Hasan Jones contributed 10 points and five assists.

The Lakers' next opponent will be Prince George's CC in a quarterfinal match at Frederick Community College this Friday at 3 p.m. If they are victorious, they will most likely meet Allegany College of Maryland on Saturday at 7 p.m. The tourney finals will be played Sunday at 1 p.m.

Garrett Crushes Cambria 71-50; JUCO Opens Tonight In McHenry

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team will ride a three-game win streak into the Maryland JUCO tournament tonight after pouring it on to crush visiting Cambria County 71-50 Saturday. GCC (12-12 overall) is slated to host the Maryland JUCO Tournament, which begins tonight in McHenry and runs through Sunday. (See separate box for the tourney schedule.) The Lakers also have one more regular season battle ahead, set for this coming Wednesday in McHenry against Potomac State College.

Garrett coach Ann Wellham hopes the big Cambria victory is a signal of things to come in the JUCO. "I think our depth helped us against Cambria, and if we could get some consistency we could do some real damage in the JUCO," Wellham commented after Saturday's 21-point victory.

Pacing the charge over Cambria was Laker sophomore center Tameka Graves, who mounted a true "Tameka attack" by netting 24 points and snagging 18 rebounds, both game highs. She connected on 12 of her 17 shots from the floor. The Lakers' balanced offense was rounded out by sophomore guard JoEllen Kitt, who had 16 points, four assists, and five steals, and by freshman guard Christi Edgell, who hit three three-pointers on her way to a 13-point tally. Forward Donna Lyles, also a first-year player, had 10 rebounds.

The first half ended with Garrett up by seven, 34-27. The second stanza witnessed a 37-23 Laker explosion that sank Cambria for good. "We started out the first half taking open shots that just wouldn't fall," Wellham observed. "Tameka was having a great game in the post that kept us in the first half of the game.

"In the second half, Christi hit her first three three-point attempts to open what was a very close game. JoEllen also stepped it up as well."

Cambria was led by a 17-point, 11-rebound performance by Heather Mandel. Stacy Lintner had 14 points and 10 rebounds.

Bosley, Quality, Gonder Take Rec. League Victories

The Recreation Basketball League action of this past Sunday featured one tight contest, Bosley Construction's 73-71 victory over the Barracudas, while the other two contests had identical 55-45 final scores as Gonder Insurance cashed in over Patterson Boat Company and Quality Machine put the screws to Mettiki.

Bosley Construction needed every point it could get to drop the Barracudas by a bucket, and Tom Stem rose the challenge by pouring in a day-high 36 points. The 'Cudas were paced by Mike Browning's 28 points and Doug Copeland's 25.

Jason Shank led Gonder's to victory with a 15-point performance, while Bill Franklin scored 14 points for Patterson Boats.

Quality Machine capitalized on Joe Refosco's 8 points to put Mettiki away. The defeated squad was paced by Mike Saturday's 16 points.

LAKERS ON THE BREAK — The Garrett Community College women's basketball squad ran over Cambria County Saturday afternoon with a fast-breaking attack that helped lead the way to a 71-50 GCC win. Former Northern High School standout Heather Nugent (#22 in the white jersey), is shown above going to the basket with a Cambria defender in hot pursuit. (Cambria had troubles getting its uniforms to McHenry, so its players suited up in Garrett's blue jerseys.) One of the night's top performers, guard JoEllen Kitt (#25) is shown below going up for two of her 16 points, which she augmented with four assists and five steals. Hosts to the Maryland JUCO Women's Tournament, which gets under way tonight in McHenry, the eighth-seeded Lakers will open the tourney with a 6 p.m. match-up against ninth seed Montgomery-Rockville. See story on Page A-13.

HUSKY SENIORS LEAVE IGLOO IN STYLE — The Northern High School boys' basketball team closed out its homecourt regular season schedule this week by defeating Hancock Tuesday evening, 68-59. The game-high scorer for the Senior Night contest was, appropriately enough, hustling senior Greg Speicher (#14), shown leaving a Panther defender flat-footed in his wake as he prepares to take advantage of the blocking work of junior teammate Josh Swandol (#34). Speicher netted 20 points and handed out five assists. Swandol is pictured below going up to score after he had ripped down one of his nine rebounds on the night. Senior teammate Collen DuBose (#52) is to the big forward's left, working for position against a Hancock defender. The 9-12 Huskies visit Southern tonight for the regular season finale, and will return to the Rams' gym Monday evening for a 1A playoff quarterfinal match-up. Both tip-off times are set for 7:30 p.m., and both contests will be broadcast on 92.3FM.

Huskies Down Beall, Hancock On Way To Battles With Rams

Northern High School's boys' varsity basketball team led from start to finish in both of its homecourt victories this week, with a 60-54 win over Beall Friday and Tuesday's 68-59 defeat of Hancock. The action upped the Huskies' record to 9-12 as they head into a pair of 7:30 p.m. battles at Southern, the first coming tonight in the season finale and the second set for Monday as the two squads butt heads again in their Maryland 1A quarterfinal playoff opener.

NHS ran up 14 unanswered points against Beall on its way to a 22-7 first-quarter lead, and the Huskies held a 36-26 lead at the half and a 44-39 third quarter margin. Northern's excellent team shooting from the free-throw line, 27-of-37 for 73 percent, took the sting out of Beall's 20-15 field goal advantage.

Guard Greg Speicher paced the Huskies with 18 points, while guard Jeremy Frazee and big forward Josh Swandol contributed 10 points apiece. Center Jensen Long used his 6-6 height to swat down five blocked shots before fouling out. The Mounties' Darren Johnson turned in a game-high 31 points.

Northern's junior varsity fell 59-50, although Jason Rice poured in 30 points for the Huskies and teammate Rico Alston added 14 points. Mahlon Harper scored 25 points for the Mounties.

Tuesday night's contest saw the Huskies bolt out to a 12-7 first quarter lead over Hancock on the way to a 39-27 halftime advantage. The Panthers pulled to within nine, 51-42, at the opening of the final period.

Speicher turned in an excellent performance in his final home game, netting 20 points and handing out five assists to make the Senior Night observance even more festive. Fellow senior Jeremy Frazee scored 14 points from his guard slot, junior Long contributed 15 points and hauled down eight rebounds, while classmate Swandol snagged nine rebounds. Sophomore Aaron Mitchell dished out five assists of his own. Hancock's Brandon Fling scored 17 points.

In addition to Speicher and Frazee, the Senior Night contest marked the final Igloo bows of fellow seniors Denny Thorp, A.J. Thomas, Mike Fletcher, and Collen DuBose. "We played hard tonight, and it was great to send our seniors out with a win," commented NHS coach Paul Edwards. "We've won three of our last five games, and seem to be putting it together at the right time to make some noise in the playoffs."

NHS took the junior varsity contest in by a convincing 52-39 margin, as Alston scored 18 points and Rice added 14. John Poffenberger scored 18 for the Panthers' JV.

Rams Hang On For Wins Over Keyser, Petersburg

Two formidable opponents became victims of the Southern High School boys' varsity this past week, as the Rams prepare to conclude their regular season this evening with a make-up game at home against Northern, and then enter the 1A West Region playoffs next Monday, also at home against Northern.

The Rams were strongly challenged by upset-minded Keyser on Friday in Oakland before defeating the visitors, 59-54, and then rallied to defeat visiting Petersburg on Tuesday, 65-58. The pair of victories upped the Rams' overall record to 18-3.

Keyser came into Oakland with an unimpressive 4-13 record, but either led or stayed within a few points of the favored Rams throughout the game. The Golden Tornadoes were ahead by two, 15-13, at the end of the first quarter, Southern held a 32-30 halftime lead thanks to a basket by Josh Sharon at the buzzer, and the Rams were up by just one point, 43-42, after three periods were completed.

The Rams hit 13 of 25 shots from the floor the first half, with Bryan Panther netting 11 of his final total of 13 in that half. But Keyser made good on 13 of 24 shots to stay virtually even with the home team.

The Tornadoes took a one-point lead with just 2:08 remaining in the game when Jared Altobello hit a three-pointer. A pair of free throws by Chad Panther put the Rams back on top for good, as Keyser missed on its next possession and Jamie Bosley hit two more foul shots for Southern.

Southern finished with a 19-for-25 effort at the line, and hit 10 of 11 in the fourth period. The Rams were out-gunned from the floor by a 23-20 margin, but Keyser had only eight free throws and connected on five of them.

Chad Panther finished with 13 points for the Rams, as did Bryan Panther, while Ricky Reams was right behind with 12 points. Sharon contributed five rebounds and six assists.

David Miller paced Keyser in scoring with 13 points, and Altobello and Rusty Clay each netted nine.

The Southern junior varsity team tasted defeat for the first time this season in the preliminary game, as Keyser's Brian Wilson nailed a 25-foot bank shot at the buzzer to give his team a 37-35 victory. The loss was the first in 18 games for the Rams this season, and only the fourth loss for the jayvee team in the past two seasons. All four of those defeats were on successful last-second shots by their opponents.

Wilson led Keyser with 12 points, while Dennis Tressler paced the Rams with 11.

Chad Panther and Ricky Reams led the way for the Rams offensively on Tuesday against Petersburg by recording 21 and 17 points, respectively, in a game that was also nip-and-tuck until the fourth quarter.

The Vikings, who came in with an 11-9 record, won the first half of action, as the Rams got off the one of their slowest starts of the season. Petersburg led 14-11 at the end of the first quarter, and 32-31 at intermission.

The Rams finally seemed to take the momentum away from the Vikings in the third quarter and built a 44-39 lead, only to have the lights go out because of an area-wide power outage and stall the contest for 17 minutes. After play resumed, the Vikings scored seven of the next 10 points to narrow the Rams' lead to 46-43 by the end of the third period.

The Rams added to their advantage in the fourth quarter, thanks in large part to clutch free-throw shooting. Reams converted seven straight foul shots in the fourth period, and Southern finished with an impressive 17-for-22 effort (77%) for the game.

Bryan Panther also reached double figures for the Rams with 14 points.

Hitting a game-high 23 points was Petersburg's Simon Buric, while John Harman recorded 15 and Matt Vance scored 11.

The Southern junior varsity got back on the winning track by winning the first game, 51-43, behind a 23-point performance by Dennis Tressler. Todd Heare paced the jayvee Vikings with 11 points.

The varsity Rams, who received a bye in the first round of the 1A West Region playoffs and are the top-seeded team in the region, will be favored to win the re-match with the Huskies this evening, having won by a large margin at the Cove last month. Tip-off for that contest is set for 7:30.

Monday's playoff game will begin at 7 p.m. at Southern. The winner of that contest will play again Wednesday at 7 p.m. at a neutral site.

HUSKIES TAKE IT TO THE HOOP — Northern High School's girls' varsity basketball team ended its regular season on a sour note last night in a 55-41 loss to visiting Westmar. Junior Christie Flockhart (#44) is shown at the left going up for a bucket after she had snagged an offensive rebound, one of her eight boards on the night. Bridget Frazee (#43), who hauled down 16 rebounds, works for position in the background. The Senior Night contest marked the final regular season homecourt appearance for lone senior and team captain Kristin Lander (#10) shown above cutting to the hoop with the help of a screen from Flockhart. The Huskies finished the season at 11-11, and will seek revenge against the Wildcats in Tuesday's 1A Region playoff opener, set to begin with a 7 p.m. tip-off in Accident.

Arsenal U-12 Girls Win Title At Bridgeport

The Arsenal Football Associates (soccer) U-12 girls' team took the Bridgeport Soccer Association's Tournament championship for the second time this winter indoor season this past weekend. In their five matches, the Arsenal girls collected 14 goals while relinquishing only one. They compiled a 4-0-1 record during their run on Sunday. Goals were scored by Amanda Perry (3), Lauren Shue (5), and Ashley Rohrbaugh (4). The scores in the five games were 2-1, 0-0, 4-0, 2-0, and in the final, 4-0.

The U-11 team fared well playing in the U-12 division this weekend and, though they were unable to record a victory, showed marked improvement by losing their final two matches by 1-0 scores.

The Arsenal U-18 girls' team fared well for the day, compiling a 1-1-1 record. In the first game against eventual champion Parkersburg, Arsenal fell, 4-0. Alasha Rush recorded 11 saves for the match. In its second game Arsenal rebounded to record a 2-0 victory over Bridgeport on goals by Megan Burner and Miriam Sinecll. Rush made 11 stops in the game and Jennifer Hickman assisted on one of the scores. In the third game, Arsenal tied the Blue-Gray United "Showtime" team, 1-1. Becky Martin scored the lone goal unassisted for Arsenal, while Rush collected 10 saves.

The two Arsenal U-12 boys' teams, like the U-11 girls' team, showed marked improvement in their contests this weekend, as the score differential was reduced to the lowest to date. The scenario was the same for the younger U-14 girls' squad, which recorded its first indoor victory this season on two goals by Ashley Stuck. The older U-14 girls' team recorded two victories in three games and nearly went to the final match.

In the boys' U-18 division, Arsenal's three teams continued to come closer to getting to the championship rounds, with one team making it to the semi-final match. Against the Northern Huskies, this team lost its opening match, 3-1. Dustin Slider scored the only goal, while Jon Neville made 8 stops in the net.

In the second match against Bridgeport, this team tied 1-1 on a last-second goal by Chris Remley. Filling in for an injured Neville, Chris Menker recorded 4 saves.

In the third contest, Arsenal won easily against Blue-Gray by a 7-0 score. Goals were scored by Bryan Schwalm, who also had two assists, plus Dustin Slider (2), Chris Remley (3), and Chris Menker. Neville returned to goal to master 11 stops. In the semi-final match, Arsenal lost to Team United by a 2-0 score, with Neville collecting 9 saves.

The club's second team in this division posted an 8-0 loss to a strong Blue-Gray team, with Kyle Rives making 7 stops in the goal. In the second contest, Arsenal posted a 3-3 draw. Goals were scored by Clem Chauzat, Kyle Rives, and Rill Browning, with an assist by Brian Cathell. Cathell also made 12 saves in goal. In the final match, Fairmount recorded a 6-0 victory over the Arsenal, with Clem Chauzat stopping shots 12 times.

The final group in this division, and the youngest, played well against older opponents, losing three matches by modest scores. Sean Buckel performed the goalkeeping duties and collected 27 saves in the three matches.

"The club teams continue to show improvement, in spite of the very limited space and time available for practices. The players are making good strides in preparation for high school play in the future," stated Mel Menker, Arsenal director.

All teams will be playing this weekend at West Virginia University in the Soccer-In-Schools second indoor tournament of the winter season. The U-12 boys' and girls' teams will play Friday evening, the U-14 boys and girls and U-19 girls will play Saturday, and the U-19 boys will play Sunday.

Mountain West Soccer League Expansion Noted

The second spring season will begin for the Mountain West Soccer League on Sunday, April 1. The league consists of teams from Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland, Somerset County in Pennsylvania, and Preston, Mineral, Hardy, Grant, Hampshire, and Morgan counties of West Virginia. It is a combined effort of the Maryland State Youth Soccer Association and the West Virginia Soccer Association.

Last year the fledgling season saw 25 area teams compete in the competitive travel league. This season will mark 40 teams in participation, a 60% increase over the initial year. The purpose of Mountain West remains to provide a more centrally located competitive league for the region in order to give players an opportunity to develop for their local high school programs, according to Mel Menker, league coordinator.

In a related story, Nelson McAvoy, a member of the Mountain West executive board, along with Jack Aylor, Avalon LeDong, and Mel Menker, reached an agreement with the Mineral County Parks and Recreation Department to use 20 acres of flat land in the Burlington, W.Va., area to develop seven soccer fields to be used by the league for games and tournaments. The flat land has been unused land that is part of a larger Mineral County park complex and will require minimal preparation for development of the fields, Menker said. The park already has parking and toilet facilities. "This will provide a centralized location for the league, which will reduce the travel time to play matches, as all clubs in the league will be a maximum of one hour from the centralized site," Menker said.

For more information about Mountain West Soccer League, persons may contact Menker at 301-334-5906.

Heather Lander contributed nine points and five assists. BW (16-8) got a triple-double from Karen Knight, who tallied 24 points, 12 assists, and 10 steals, while teammate Desiree DuVall scored 22 points and snagged 14 rebounds.

Northern dropped the junior varsity contest by a 34-28 margin. Jodi Durst netted nine points to lead the Huskies, while Quinn Coulihan scored 12 points for the Spartans.

The Huskies jumped out of the box early Monday night to run up a 20-6 first quarter lead over visiting Hancock. NHS was up 27-16 at the half and 40-23 after three quarters of play.

Frantz scored a team-high 10 points for Northern, and Frazee hauled down seven rebounds, Lyndsi Butler dished out four assists, and Kristen Lander purloined four steals. Lacy McCusker scored 12 points for the Panthers.

Hancock took a hard-fought JV contest from the Huskies by a narrow 32-28 margin, despite superb performances by Kayla Kamp, who had 10 points and nine rebounds, and Keri Kamp, who ripped down 15 rebounds.

Northern exploded early again last night, taking a 29-22 halftime lead over Westmar en route to what seemed to be a homecourt win for Senior Night. The Wildcats came out roaring in the second half, however, and outscored NHS 18-6 in the third period to gain the lead and eventually coast to the win by connecting on nine of 10 free throws down the stretch.

Frantz led the Huskies in scoring again with her second straight 14-point performance. Frazee turned in an outstanding night on the boards by hauling down 16 rebounds, and Christie Flockhart grabbed eight rebounds. Natalie Sloan scored 16 points for Westmar (6-16), seven of which came in the 'Cats' second half run.

The NHS jayvees won a nail-biter when Durst swatted away a sure Westmar layup at the buzzer to preserve a 31-30 win. Keri Kamp scored 11 points and grabbed 14 rebounds for a double-double. Katie Harvey scored 15 points for the Westmar JV (3-18). The Huskies' junior unit finished the year at 12-8.

Northern and Westmar will meet again in their playoff opener at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Accident.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonkc

Recent warm weather has left a ring of open water around Deep Creek Lake, effectively stopping most ice fishing action. Without a prolonged cold snap, future ice fishing for this year anyhow is in question and sure won't help eliminate symptoms of cabin fever.

A weak but valuable substitute for real time angling is time spent caring for and prepping tackle for the spring fishing season that really isn't that far over the horizon. Now is a great time to inspect rods for damage, loose windings, and worn guides. Any frayed windings can be coated with clear epoxy and cracked or worn guides replaced.

Reels should be cleaned thoroughly inside and out. Reel grease on the gears and lube on the bearings and other moving parts applied sparingly is important. Now is the time to replace line.

The DNR has released the Trout Stocking Schedule for the spring 2001 season. Thousands of trout will be released into Maryland waterways from March to May; 114,000 are scheduled for Garrett County. DNR's trout stocking program is funded entirely by the sale of freshwater fishing licenses and trout stamps, and federal Sportfish Restoration Program (Wallop-Breaux) funds.

BLACK BEAR STAMP DESIGN CONTEST NOW

The DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division is accepting original artwork submissions for the 2001 Black Bear Conservation Stamp design contest. This year's design contest — the second annual — will be hosted by the Patuxent National Wildlife Visitor Center as a part of its 12th annual art show. Entries are open to all and not limited to Maryland residents, and will be accepted through March 23. Submission guidelines can be found on the Black Bear Conservation Stamp web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbstampcontest.html, or by calling Mary Goldie at 410-260-8546.

Artwork should be mailed or hand delivered to: DNR, Wildlife and Heritage Division E-1, 580 Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, MD, 21401, to the attention of Mary Goldie. Entries will be judged April 1 at noon at the Patuxent National Wildlife Visitor Center, 10901 Scarlet Tanager Loop in Laurel.

Since 1997, the DNR has published an annual Black Bear Conservation Stamp. The proceeds from the sale of the $5 stamp are used to compensate farmers for property damage caused by black bears. The Conservation Fund program began in 1996, and has since paid approximately $40,000 in claims.

The 12th annual Patuxent Wildlife Art Show will begin March 30 and run through April 1. Admission is free. The show features 40 wildlife artists and artisan crafters. Additional show information can be found at the Patuxent Research Refuge National Wildlife Visitor Center web page, http: www.friendspwrc.org.

ON THE ART OF HUNTING WHITETAIL DEER WITH A BOW

Jim Koricich, noted Pennsylvania outdoorsman and hunter, shares his secrets for successful archery hunting in his book Undercover, The Ultimate In Concealment. In this work, Koricich offers a comprehensive look at how whitetail deer use their senses to avoid danger. His premise is that, by having a thorough knowledge of how deer behave and taking advantage of their vulnerabilities, archers can become more successful on a regular basis. The techniques and products discussed are focused on concealment and the elimination of human scent, along with effective use of camouflage and elimination of noise.

Undercover, The Ultimate In Concealment is offered in a 6" X 9" paperback for $15.95 plus $1.50 shipping in check or money order directly from Jim Koricich, 1019 Schendel Road, Irwin, PA 15642. One of Koricich's favorite wilderness areas is our own Savage Forest, and he hunts there as often as possible.

EAGLE COUNT

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources announced this week that 336 bald eagles and two golden eagles were counted in Maryland's annual mid-winter bald eagle survey. This is a record number of eagles observed, during one-day surveys in January, at the state's three main winter concentration areas. Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge staff and volunteers counted 99 eagles, including two golden eagles. One hundred eighty-eight bald eagles were counted at Aberdeen Proving Ground (APG), and 51 bald eagles were counted along the Susquehanna River by APG staff.

State officials said that most nesting bald eagles were not counted in this survey and note that there are nesting bald eagles along the Potomac as far west as Washington County. We also know that these eagles, whether they nest here or not, are seen regularly in Garrett County. I know I've spotted them over Deep Creek Lake and in the Savage River valley.

and desserts prepared by church volunteers. A panel of judges will present awards in two contests, one for the best tasting wild game dish and the other for best outfitted hunter. The winners will receive gift certificates to local sporting good stores. The door prize list includes an inline muzzleloader, a portable tree stand, and other gifts.

The featured guest speaker will be professional taxidermist and noted hunter Mark Morgan, who will present a seminar on whitetail bowhunting. The Michigan native, now a resident of Watertown, Wisc., has 30 years of deerhunting experience with bow, shotgun, and rifle. He has one whitetail entered in the Pope and Young record book and one listed in the Michigan Commemorative Bucks record book. Morgan credits time spent with renowned hunters such as Fred Bear, Bob Munger, and Larry D. Jones with helping him master the sport.

There will also be a presentation of an unofficial 2000 harvest report by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, along with a message from the Friends of the National Rifle Association.

The Pleasant Valley Community Center is located at 975 Joni Miller Road, next to Rigidply Rafters. For further information on the dinner interested persons may call pastor Dennis Leatherman at 301-334-3234 or 301-334-4042.

State Police File Charges After Mishaps

An Oakland man was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated by Maryland State Police Monday following an accident that occurred at around 4 p.m. on Oakland-Sang Run Rd.

Robert V. Winters, 30, was reportedly operating a 1989 Ford pickup truck southbound in an erratic manner, crossing the center line and striking a 1994 Nissan operated by David Levesque, Friendsville, who was traveling northbound at the time.

As a result of the mishap, both drivers were injured, according to police reports, and were both taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released. Tfc. Robert Sharp investigated.

An accident that occurred early Saturday on Rt. 219 north of Hoyes Rd. resulted in injuries to a Friendsville woman who was transported to Ruby Memorial Hospital, where she was last listed in fair condition.

Jodi Frazee, 21, was a passenger in a car driven by Reid Cross III, 35, Friendsville, who was reportedly involved in two separate accidents early Saturday before his arrest for leaving the scene, driving while suspended, driving while intoxicated, and possession of drugs.

Cross had been operating a Chevrolet Cavalier northbound when his vehicle travelled across the center line, striking a Toyota Corolla, driven by Wendi Givens, 25, Vienna, Va., according to police.

A second passenger in the Cross vehicle, Joy Stewart, 30, Accident, was also reportedly injured and transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

A Wednesday morning accident in the McHenry area slightly injured a Charles County woman who was subsequently charged by state police.

At approximately 7:59 a.m., a 1998 Isuzu Trooper, operated by Nancy Carroll DeWalt, 53, Waldorf, was traveling north on Garrett Highway when it rear-ended another northbound vehicle that was making a left-hand turn onto Oakland Sang Run Road. DeWalt was transported by the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Michael Dehus, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, who was waiting to make the turn in a 1990 BMW sedan, was not injured.

DeWalt was charged with failure to avoid speed to avoid a collision by Tfc. Bond.

Entries Sought For DNR's Bear Stamp Contest

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Division is seeking submissions of original artwork from across the country for its black bear conservation stamp design contest. This year's design contest will be judged at the 12th annual Patuxent National Wildlife Art Show at the Patuxent National Wildlife Visitor Center in Laurel, set for the weekend of March 30 - April 1, and the winner will be announced on the final day of the show.

Contest entries will be accepted through Friday, March 23. Artwork should be mailed or hand-delivered to Mary Goldie, DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division, Room E-1, 580 Taylor Ave., Annapolis, MD 21401. Complete submission guidelines can be obtained on the black bear conservation stamp web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbsstampcontest, or by calling Goldie at 410-260-8546.

DNR has published a black bear conservation stamp annually since 1997. Proceeds from the sale of the $5 stamps are used to compensate farmers in western Maryland who had experience eligible property damage caused by black bears. The Conservation Fund program began in 1996, and has paid out approximately $40,000 in claims since then.

The Patuxent Wildlife Art Show will feature 40 wildlife artists and artisans/crafters. Admission is free, and further information is available on the center's web page at www.friendspwrc.org.

Make Arrest

Zimmerman came upon the vehicle shortly afterward as it was pulling out from McHenry Plaza onto Garrett Highway. Sidor allegedly admitted to taking the vehicle as the officers spoke to him, and Zimmerman took him into custody.

Drug Arrests

In other sheriff's news, two local men face drug charges following their recent arrests in separate incidents.

William Philip Hebb, 18, Oakland, was arrested at Southern High School during the school day of Thursday, Feb. 8, on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Deputies were called to the school by staff members who had been questioning the student in the administration office. A bag of suspected marijuana and a glass pipe containing suspected burnt marijuana residue were reportedly located in his jacket pocket. Hebb was subsequently released from jail on a $500 bond.

Lance Lee Logsdon, 25, Oakland, was charged with marijuana possession yesterday after being served with a warrant charging him with failure to pay child support. A search following the non-support arrest located a quantity of marijuana on his person. He was subsequently released from jail after he posted a $1,000 bond.

DWI Arrests

Sheriff's deputies arrested several subjects on driving while intoxicated (DWI) charges recently. They are Brad Clinton Lewis, 22, and John Jeffery Kurilla, 38, both of Oakland; and David Alvin Tichinel, 31, Swanton.

Mountain Lake Park Observer

by Dan Whittelsey

Our neighbor, Bob Moriarity, has opened a restaurant, Pappy's Place (used to be Piddle's Griddle). The food is excellent and the price is right. Bob is particularly qualified as a restaurateur, having worked for several years as an executive chef on the Delta Queen.

Several weeks ago I mentioned the maximum amount of time a councilman or mayor of Mountain Lake Park could hold that office. One would imagine that a councilman who had finished his or her term might drift to other things. I, however, don't believe so. I believe that he or she will continue to support Mountain Lake Park by taking part in new developments. The eventual outcome means that there are a greater number of residents assisting in the governing of our town.

Of course, after a set period of time ex-council members may run again for the council or mayor. Before we strip the council and mayorship of experienced members, it would be necessary to build a supportive infrastructure, such as an assistant to the mayor on a permanent paid basis, capable of carrying out daily tasks. Non-paying supportive rolls would be a town architect and a parliamentarian.

Voter registration books are open at the town hall, Monday through Friday, 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m., until May 9.

The next town meeting will be Wednesday, Feb. 28, at 6 p.m.

Legislators Studying Bill That Would Suspend Executions For Two Years

by Eric Kelderman
Capital News Service

Maryland's death penalty is set to go on trial today, as a senate committee is scheduled to hear a bill to suspend executions for two years.

Senate Bill 316 would place a moratorium on executions pending completion of a University of Maryland study of racial disparity of death penalty convictions. The study began in the fall and should be finished in September 2002. The moratorium would run a year longer so lawmakers could consider the results.

A similar bill was introduced last year in the House of Delegates and was killed without a committee vote, but events around the state may signal a shifting attitude toward capital punishment.

An informal poll of Judicial Proceedings Committee members shows a 50-50 split, and Chairman Walter M. Baker, D-Cecil, said he is "waiting to hear the evidence" on the bill.

Five Maryland death sentences have been overturned in the past year. In June 2000, Gov. Parris N. Glendening commuted the death sentence of Eugene Colvin-El, who was scheduled to die for the stabbing death of 82-year-old Lena Buckman.

Glendening said he commuted the sentence because he lacked 'absolute certainty' of Colvin-El's guilt. Colvin-El remains in prison on a life sentence.

In July, Joe Roy Metheny's death sentence was overturned by the Court of Appeals. Metheny pleaded guilty in 1998 to the murder of Catherine Magaziner, but the court said there were no aggravating circumstances necessary for the death penalty.

Late last year, Jean Clermont's death penalty was overturned by a Prince George's County circuit judge because of ineffective counsel during his original trial, and he was re-sentenced to life in prison.

In January, the conviction and death sentence of Eugene Wilder was overturned by the Court of Appeals. Wilder will face another trial.

Finally, the death sentence of Wallace Ball was overturned this year by a Charles County circuit judge, but the state is appealing that decision.

There may be increased pressure on Glendening to support a moratorium this year. Four prisoners are in the final phases of their appeals, and the governor's decision on their fate will be closely scrutinized. Glendening's spokeswoman said he evaluates each case on its merits, and will continue that until the university study is finished.

The state completed two previous death penalty studies, which detailed the overrepresentation of African-Americans on death row, but each failed to conclude the system was tainted with racism.

The current study, being led by Raymond Paternoster at the University of Maryland, goes far beyond the other two in collecting empirical data on the state's capital crimes. It will catalog hundreds of characteristics for each of 2,000 crimes in order to match similar circumstances. Then, researchers can compare the race of the perpetrators and their sentences to see if the death penalty is applied unfairly to minorities.

Nine of the 13 men on Maryland's death row are African-American. Backers of the moratorium point out nearly 75 percent of victims of death row criminals are white, but the overwhelming majority of murder victims statewide are African-American.

Regional disparities also exist. Baltimore County accounts for less than 5 percent of the state's murders, but nine men on death row were convicted in that county, according to a Baltimore public defender's office spokeswoman.

The death penalty has been under attack both regionally and nationally since reviews of DNA evidence have led to the freeing of several death row inmates.

In Virginia, Earl Washington was exonerated and freed in October through DNA evidence, which proved him innocent of rape and murder after 18 years in prison.

The Virginia Assembly also is considering legislation to suspend or abolish the death penalty.

In Illinois, Republican Gov. George Ryan indefinitely suspended executions over questions of racial inequity and inadequate defense for defendants facing capital punishment.

Still, anti-death penalty legislation will not travel easily in the Maryland General Assembly.

Sen. Richard F. Colburn, R-Dorchester, judiciary committee member, said the moratorium bill is a "parliamentary maneuver."

"My gut feeling is, the people who want a moratorium are after a ban."

Minnick is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing in Garrett County District Court on Wednesday, March 21.

county animals."

Humane Society representatives also noted that one of the goals of the project is to encourage local businesses, civic groups, organizations and individuals to sponsor a spay or neuter for an animal adopted from the shelter. The amount of sponsorship would be $25.

According to Virts, three local animal hospitals have agreed to honor the certificates: Casselman, Countryside and Pineview.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg, who made the motion to endorse the program, stated, "This is good timing, because there are more incidents with animals this time of year."

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel stated, "We want to stress that we want to cooperate with the humane society to further the means of animal control."

Humane Society president Nancy Helbig then stated, "We appreciate the board's cooperation. We feel we're really making headway."

Pets911, a national partnership of animal protection organizations, has offered the use of its web site to post local Spay Day event information.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors held its regular monthly meeting on February 15. Chaired by Jerry Geisler, highlights of items discussed are as follows:

The board discussed the recent controversy about a speedboat race, slated to be held on Deep Creek Lake to raise funds for research on Parkinson's disease. The event was included in the Garrett County Calendar of Events 2001, published by the Chamber of Commerce, in accordance with the current policy of accepting calendar items submitted by any credible organization. The chamber, however, is not involved with this event, nor does it endorse or support it. Although supporting Parkinson's disease research, the board's executive committee has formally taken the position of opposing the issuance of a permit for this event.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick presented the following:

· Garrett County was featured in a full-color spread in the Baltimore Sunday Sun on February 4. The story and photos showcased a local vacation home. This coverage was one of the many successes to result from a chamber marketing project that involves "cold calls" to regional newspapers.

· Garrett County is prominently promoted in the new publication 50 Hikes in Maryland by Leonard M. Adkins, which describes seven hiking trails in Garrett County. The chamber hosted the author, while he was exploring the local area prior to writing his book.

· The chamber is working with Page Dopson of the Extension Service office and Mountain Pride Cooperative on a joint venture in agricultural tourism. Development of the program and brochure/map is currently under way.

· Tourism in Garrett County is up 10% in the first six months of this fiscal year, compared to the same period a year ago, as measured by accommodations tax revenue. In addition, accommodations tax collections for November and December 2000 showed a 15% increase over the same months the previous year. Sales tax figures released by the state indicate that tourism in Garrett County generated retail sales of $140 million last year, up $30 million from just two years ago. The chamber's home page had more than 70,000 hits during the past year.

John Kessler, chair of the Strategic Planning Task Force, presented a detailed summary of a consultant tourism plan prepared for Allegany and Garrett counties. In this report it was noted that Maryland ranks 22nd in dollars budgeted for tourism marketing. Coming in ahead of Maryland are Pennsylvania, 4th; Virginia, 7th; and West Virginia 16th. The amount budgeted in Maryland is less than ½ of the national average. Copies of the consultant plan are available at the chamber office.

Asa McCain, chair of the Autumn Glory Transition Task Force, reported the following:

· The 2001 Autumn Glory Court will be limited to one prince and one princess, in addition to the queen and king. To promote more widespread interest in participation in the Autumn Glory Court, the chamber agreed to fund the purchase of gowns for the queen and princess and award a scholarship for each member of the court.

· The search is on for a grand marshal for the Autumn Glory parade. Anyone with "connections" to an entertainment or sports celebrity who might be interested in participating in the parade is asked to contact the chamber at 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400.

· The autumn foliage train from Cumberland to Oakland has been scheduled this year for the week following Autumn Glory. The train will run on Oct. 20 and 21. For the first time, the train will offer an additional side trip from Oakland to Mountain Lake Park for a heritage tour.

Steve Green, chair of the Recreational Trail Task Force, reported the following: The group is working on a recreational pathways project, conducting studies prior to developing and mapping trails and brochures for snowmobile, equestrian, bike, ORV, and pedestrian use.

Jim Murray, chair of the Group Insurance Task Force reported the following: The group is seeking discount services for members, including supplemental health insurance for employees. More information will be forthcoming.

Sandy Major, chair of the Tourism Education Task Force, is preparing radio announcements and public information for National Tourism Week.

The board approved the FY 2002 operating budget request to be submitted to the county commissioners. It includes additional funding for marketing and promotions and also designated $25,000 for bi-county tourism, on the condition that Allegany County also contribute $25,000, and that the state match both contributions.

The following new chamber members were approved by the board: Jennifer Cross, owner of #29 Ski Harbor rental property; Jay Ferguson, owner of DeepCreekMall.com, web page design and on-line advertising; and Greg Cartrette of A.G. Edwards brokerage firm in Annapolis.

CROUCHING TIGER, HIDDEN DRAGON

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:00 - Released 12/8/00

The success and acclaim of director Ang Lee's film Wo Hu Zang Long (or Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon) has brought it out from the thriving but isolated world of Hong Kong films to the global mainstream, affording us westerners a glimpse into the fascinating world of Chinese mythology. Many, many films featuring the action and mysticism of Chinese lore (and, specifically, of the ancient art of Kung Fu) are produced in Hong Kong each year, providing thriving careers for lots of Asian actors and filmmakers, but these rarely see wide release, and only recently have Chinese stars like Jackie Chan, Jet Li, and Chow Yun-Fat, wildly popular in their native countries, seen widespread exposure in the West. Because of the superior skill and talent of director Lee and his cast, this thoroughly engaging movie will be listed among the top films of 2000. Its subject matter is somewhat different from what western audiences are used to (usually, Kung Fu movies are just seen as 'action' films and not expected to have much depth), but it is altogether beautiful and in some ways magical, and after getting used to its mystic/realistic style, audiences will not fail to see its beauty.

Crouching Tiger is set several centuries ago, but is unclear as to its specific time period. This emphasizes the timelessness of legend, since love, adventure, Chinese society, and the martial arts have all been around long enough that it doesn't really matter. The story, based on the novel by Du Lu Wang and written for the screen by Hui-Ling Wang, James Schamus, and Kuo-Jung Tsai, is presented as a legend, blending reality with lore. As we accept a princess who kisses a frog and turns him into a prince, we can accept lovers and warriors who seem able to fly or defy gravity as a result of their skill, their beliefs, and their intense training.

The story begins when Li Mu Bai (Chow), a famous master from the Wudan sect, decides to retire from the fighting life and return home to his family and his lifelong friend and fellow warrior Shu Lien (Michelle Yeoh, Tomorrow Never Dies). He gives his legendary, 400 year old sword, the Green Destiny, to an honored local dignitary as a gift, but it is soon stolen by a masked villain working for the infamous Jade Fox (Pei-pei Cheng), Li Mu Bai's mortal enemy and the killer of his former master (who was the father of Shu Lien). As the two friends, aided by the local authorities, attempt to defeat Jade Fox and her well-trained mystery thief and recover the sword, they meet teenager Jiao Long Yu, translated in the subtitles as "Jen" (Ziyi Zhang), the daughter of a visiting governor who sees the fighting life as a wonderful adventure and desperately wants to escape from her boring socialite existence, especially since she is about to be married against her wishes. Jen and Shu Lien become friends, in fact they refer to themselves as "sisters," but it soon becomes clear that Jen has ties to the Giang Hu underworld, of which Jade Fox is a part.

Although its dialogue, characterizations, and relationships have a deeply realistic tone, Crouching Tiger's action scenes border on the fantastic, with fighters running up the sides of walls and leaping to the tops of buildings with Peter Pan like agility (I guess in the Wudan training, one learns to think happy thoughts), but this serves to show the extent to which, in Chinese mythology, the real and the magical are intertwined. Also bearing magical qualities is Li Mu Bai's Green Destiny sword, which seems to afford supernatural powers to its bearer, not unlike King Arthur's Excahlbur. The scenery in this film, which was shot entirely on location in Anhui Province, China, is remarkable, alternating between majestic panoramic views of the Gobi Desert, where a long flashback portion is set, the streets of Beijing, and the lush, green forests where some of the most amazing fight scenes take place (in the tops of trees, no less). Apparently, Chow and Yeoh, both Cantonese, had to learn to speak Mandarin for the film (although no one but Chinese-speaking moviegoers would notice their reportedly distinct accents), but this language issue does not take away from the honesty of their acting. Also notable are young Ziyi Zhang, whose alternation between lover and fighter is skilled and touching, and Chen Chang, who plays Jen's dashing young desert lover in a sort of Princess Leia/Han Solo pairing.

Crouching Tiger is a delicious look into a world with which many of us are not familiar, its costume designs, music (including cello solos performed by Yo-Yo Ma), and incredible fight choreography (by Yuen Wo-Ping, The Matrix) is amazing to watch, but its atmosphere and touching love story are no less engaging. ★★★★½

SWEET NOVEMBER

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:57 - Released 2/16/01

Wow. Words fail me. There is no adequate way of describing how awful Pat O'Connor's Sweet November is, but I think I may be able to encapsulate it in two words: Keanu Reeves. I thought Reeves was bad in The Watcher, The Replacements, and The Devil's Advocate, but nothing could have prepared me for how putrescent his performance would be in this sappy, tragic love story based on Robert Ellis Miller's 1968 version starring Sandy Dennis and Anthony Newley. Teaming up with his old Devil's Advocate partner, Charlize Theron, Reeves stinks up every minute of celluloid on which he appears, reading his lines in his regular flat, deadpan style, showing no emotion, no depth, no recognizable human characteristics whatsoever save his pretty face and well-sculpted biceps, not even when the make-up artists have been called in to squeeze fake tears onto his cheeks with eyedroppers. He's not believable at the beginning when he's supposed to be hard-edged and competitive, he's not believable at the end when he's supposed to be playful and romantic, and he's not believable during any point in between. Good golly, I think he's a replicant.

I wish I could say that Reeves is the film's only weak point (which has often been the case with his career), but unfortunately this time the material has sunk to his level. This update of Herman Raucher's '68 screenplay, by Paul Yurick and Kurt Voelker, employs the most trite, cloying romance devices known to Hollywood writers, as if to showcase all the worst ideas possible in one film. The story is stupid, the dialogue is laughably styleless and insipid from the first scene, the characters are the flattest of stereotypes, and the ending is the most insultingly brain-dead thing of all. Theron, struggling against the immense weight of mediocrity around her, is the only thing remotely palatable about this film (as has often been the case with her career), but even with her talent, she can't possibly make the experience worthwhile; we simply pity her for having signed on.

Reeves plays hotshot advertising agent Nelson Moss, whose chance meeting with quirky, unpredictable animal lover Sara Deever (Theron) puts him on a collision course with adulthood. Although this wooden Pinocchio at first has no desire to become a real boy, Sara insists that if he moves in with her for one month, she will help him understand the true meaning of life. Reviling her and everything she stands for, he sleeps with her (the natural reaction) and is soon entangled in her topsy-turvy web of romance. He plays her giggly game of blindman's bluff. He takes giggly bubble baths with her. He watches admiringly as she does giggly cartwheels on the beach and wears a different color of scarf every giggly day of the week. Although his former partner, hotshot advertising agent Vince (Greg Germann), tries to lure him back to the fast lane, Nelson finds himself so in love with Sara that he proposes marriage, only to discover that she has some deep, dark secret preventing her from accepting. Adhering strictly to her one-month agreement (which she has apparently done with a number of guys before — what a gig), she insists that he leave when November is over, because now that he's become a hopeless romantic with no job, no car, and no career, she's finished with him. Talk about a man-eater.

This movie represents everything that is evil about Hollywood. Brainless romances like this are churned out by the dozen every year, luring millions of moviegoers to their local multiplexes, and to the conclusion that this is the best we can do. For shame. ★

RECESS: SCHOOL'S OUT

Rated G - Running Time: 1:24 - Released 2/16/01

If you've seen the trailer for Recess: School's Out, the first feature film venture for the fledgling Plus One Animation company, you may assume it's just a cheap, Saturday-morning-TV-style kids' cartoon. Truly, on the visual side this film has kept its appallingly crude production value intact — after all, if it looked good, the kids who make up its core audience wouldn't recognize it — but what's particularly noteworthy is that it is distributed by Walt Disney Pictures, the reigning monarch of children's movies usually known for high-budget, high-quality films like Mulan and A Bug's Life. However, perhaps because of the participation of director Chuck Sheetz (The Simpsons, King Of The Hill) and writers Joe Ansolabehere and Paul Germain (Rugrats) and Jonathan Greenberg (Daria), it shows the intellectual spark that has distinguished Fox TV's ever-growing animated lineup, making up for in script what it lacks in quality of animation.

As school ends and summer vacation sets in, prankster and fun lover T.J. Detweiler (voice of Andrew Lawrence) is horrified to learn that rather than looking forward to three months of unstructured play time, all 5 of his friends are leaving for various types of summer camp: aspiring actor/singer Mikey (Jason Davis/Robert Goulet) is headed for drama camp, smart but geeky Gretchen (Ashley Johnson) is off to space camp, tomboy Ashley (Pamela Segall) has signed up for wrestling camp, and so on. Despondent, T.J. expects a boring summer. However, while riding his bike past the empty school, he notices a strange green glow coming from inside. Assuming that aliens are holed up in the building, he contacts Principal Prickley (Dabney Coleman), who promptly disappears. Sensing trouble, T.J. reassembles his camp-bound gang for a full-scale, kid-style investigation.

In reality, it is evil ex-principal Dr. Benedict (James Woods) who has taken the school hostage. Benedict, who always wanted to abolish recess altogether to improve test scores, has invented a powerful magnetic ray with which he intends to alter the moon's orbit, resulting in perpetual winter on Earth and therefore no summer vacation from school. Soon it is all-out war.

Okay, I admit it's a pretty stupid plot, but it's the dialogue that amuses, often including jokes that travel well over the heads of the kids in the audience. What's more, the soundtrack is quite fun for us children of the '60s, including great psychedelic pop standards like "Incense And Peppermints," "Let the Sun Shine In," and "Purple Haze." The film includes a flashback to the summer of love, when both principals were long-haired hippies, and ends with an acid induced musical number behind the credits that would rival any Doors concert.

If you have to take the kids to a low-rent cartoon, this experience at least is enjoyably trippy. ★★★

Southern High Is Reaccredited For Five Years

The Middle States Association's Commission on Secondary Schools has announced that Southern High School has been reaccredited for the five-year period ending Dec. 1, 2005. The decision to reaccredit Southern was made following a 3 1/2 day visit to the school in April by a visiting team of educators from member schools of the Middle States Association appointed by the Commission on Secondary Schools.

During the visit, the Middle States team met with and interviewed representatives of all the school's stakeholders, including teachers, students, parents, and administrators, as well as representatives of the Garrett County Board of Education. Team members also toured the school's facilities, studied the school's strategic plan for school improvement and other documents related to the school's work, and observed teaching and learning in classrooms.

To be accredited by the Commission on Secondary Schools, a school must meet the Commission's standards for each major area of a school's work and activity. These areas include the school's educational program, learning media services, student services, student activities, facilities, school staff and administration, finance, school leadership and governance, and assessment of learning. However, because Southern High elected to use the Accreditation for Growth protocol for accreditation, the school was required to do more than meet the Commission's standards in order to be accredited.

Accreditation for Growth (AFG) is an unique accreditation process that uses strategic planning as a vehicle for school improvement and growth in student performance. In AFG, the primary determinants of progress are not the resources a community provides for its schools (the inputs) but, instead, the actual results for the school's work — the students' performance. AFG requires the school to establish objectives for improving student performance based on a vision of a preferred future for the school. Two student performance objectives were identified by Southern High.

By the year 2005, the junior class will achieve a higher standard than the baseline class as demonstrated by the average Objective Performance Index (OPI) on all subcomponents by a minimum of 10 percent.

The second objective is that students, by the year 2005, will participate and achieve at a higher level in challenging and academic endeavors. The following criteria will be used: an increase of at least 10 percent in the number of students enrolled in challenging and academic courses, while maintaining or increasing the baseline class average in those courses; the percentage of students who earn a 3 or better in Advance Placement exams will increase by 10 percent; and participation in the Scholastic Aptitude Test will increase by 30 percent while maintaining the average verbal and mathematics score of the baseline year for both males and females.

By choosing AFG as its accreditation protocol, Southern High also made several commitments. It committed to focusing its work on the end results — improved student performance — as the primary priority for school improvement efforts. It committed to operating the school from a vision of where it wants and/or needs to go, with its mission and beliefs serving as a unifying force for change. It committed to including a varied spectrum of stakeholders in the process of continually defining a preferred vision, in developing the means to get closer to that vision, and in implementing action plans developed by these stakeholders. It committed to a process in which progress will be continuously reviewed. And finally, it agreed to participate in a peer review and external validation process by accepting outside visitors.

Ongoing review is the hallmark of the protocol, and Southern High is required to conduct an annual review of the plan and the school's progress toward achieving its student performance objectives and to communicate the results of these annual reviews, the school's planning processes, and the content of the strategic plan. At the midpoint juncture in the five-year-cycle, one individual appointed by the Middle States Association will make a one-day on-site visit.

"Southern Garrett High School is to be congratulated for having competed the rigorous and demanding accreditation review process successfully," said Dr. Joseph J. DeLucia, executive director of the Commission on Secondary School. "By meeting the standards of the Commission, and by having established a comprehensive and challenging strategic plan to improve targeted areas of student performance, Southern Garrett High School has joined a number of schools in the Middle States region that are committed to public accountability for their results. The commission encourages the entire school community to join in supporting the school as it seeks to achieve its objectives over the next five years."

According to Lynn H. Bell, principal of Southern High, this was a very good process to go through. "This gave the school an opportunity to look internally at issues, both inside and outside the school," said Bell. "This was a very good process, and was better than any other process we had gone through in the past."

STUDENTS TOUR WHITE HOUSE — Fifth grade students from Accident Elementary School recently visited Washington, D.C., and toured the White House, thanks to the efforts of Frostburg State University student intern Amanda Tubb. As part of a performance assessment task, pupils were to plan a trip and complete a travel form which included mapping the destination, calculating travel and touring times, estimating transportation cost, and making a brochure for sites to see. As a culminating activity, Tubb made arrangements for a VIP tour of the White House via her father, who is a Secret Service Agent stationed at the White House. Students and adults were excited to be ushered through the gates without having to wait in line. Each student received a bag of posters and information, compliments of Tubb's father. Other sites visited were the National Cathedral, Lincoln Memorial, and Arlington Cemetery, which included the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and President Kennedy's grave. Students on the trip were Zak Brosnihan, Brent Butler, Crystal Coffren, David Coffren, Gesse Glotfelty, Mitchell Hall, Andrew Joslin, Angela LaMastus, Megan Margroff, Andres Miller, Zachary Rogers, Emily Rosser, Ryan Seaman, Abby Sherrard, Justin Shoemaker, Jeffrey Smith, Jessie Storey, Clint Suter, Tricia Wiley, Ariana Wilt, and Stephen Younkin. Adult chaperons were Miss Tubb; Mrs. Hockman and Mrs. Sherwood, teachers; Warren Glotfelty, bus driver; and Addie Glotfelty, Pam Margroff, Glenn Seaman, Robert Wilt, Gina Bender, Karen McCrobie, and Dawn Anderson, parents.

Local Students Are Contestants In Annual Event

Higher Education Guide Mailed To Md. High Schools

The latest issue of the popular Student Guide to Higher Education and Financial Aid in Maryland is arriving in schools. The 100-page book is published by the Maryland Higher Education Commission.

The guide lists colleges, universities, and private career schools in the state, provides an up-to-date list of the majors they offer, and includes a detailed description of financial aid programs and how to apply for them.

"This is an excellent resource for high school students, their parents, and anyone interested in higher education," said Karen R. Johnson, secretary of higher education. "At a glance, they can learn about individual institutions, what programs they offer, how much it costs to attend, and where to get help paying for college."

Students who are planning to go to college should learn about the many opportunities available in their own state, the secretary said. The guide introduces students to the many institutions of higher education in Maryland and provides basic information about the cost, size, and academic emphasis of each institution.

This year, 120,000 copies of the guidee are being distributed to schools, colleges, libraries, and legislative offices in the state. It is also available on the MHEC web site at http://www.mhec.state.md.us.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission is a 12-member citizen board responsible for oversight and planning of higher education in Maryland. It serves as advocate for the more than 260,000 college students in Maryland, for the state and its needs, and for business and industry in Maryland. Its vision is a comprehensive system of higher education that is affordable and available to every citizen, is responsive to the needs of citizens and the private sector, and contributes to the economic well-being of the state.

Reading Council Gets Charter, Elects Officers

The Garrett Reading Council was chartered as a local reading council of the International Reading Association in November 2000. The new council serves the area of Garrett County.

Virginia R. Craig of Deer Park is president, and Dana M. McCauley of Oakland is president-elect. Other officers include Susan Scott Friend, Oakland, vice president; Debra E. DeWitt, Terra Alta, W.Va., secretary; and Carolyn D. Tice, Salisbury, Pa., treasurer.

The International Reading Association, which has as its motto "We teach the world to read," is a community of professionals with a common goal: promoting higher achievement levels in literacy, reading, and communication by continually advancing the quality of instruction worldwide, according to Craig. A network of 1,250 councils provides the working foundation for the association.

Councils are involved in various activities, such as community outreach programs, award programs for young readers and writers professional programs and conferences for teachers and literacy providers, and parental involvement projects. International Reading Association councils help promote the goals of the association at the local, state provincial, and national levels.

For further information on the Garrett Reading Council, persons may contact Virginia Craig at 301-334-8928.

Norris hanging up his hat as Walker

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Chuck Norris

Q: A friend insists that she heard CBS plans to cancel Walker, Texas Ranger after this season. Tell me it isn't true. –Monica K., Montgomery, Ala.

A. It isn't true, but the facts won't make you any happier. Walker star Chuck Norris has decided to drop the curtain on his Saturday hit after eight seasons, citing fatigue at the grueling pace of putting together a weekly one-hour show. The 60-year-old actor, who says he hopes to return to making films, also is in talks with CBS about making occasional Walker TV movies after the show's two-hour May finale.

Q: What was the name of the '80s series about a guy who could turn himself into any animal? No one else remembers it. How long did it run? –A U.S. serviceman in Germany.

A. In the short-lived 1983 NBC series Manimal, Simon MacCorkindale starred as animal behaviorist Jonathan Chase, who inherited his shape-shifting powers from his late father. In public life, he was a wealthy, well-bred professor at New York University. The series ran less than half a season.

Q: I have been trying to convince a friend that ex-Beatle Ringo Starr once really was the conductor of PBS' Shining Time Station. Help! –Adam Wagner, Louisville, Ohio.

A. You are absolutely right, Adam. Station was adapted by PBS from a short British series called Thomas the Tank Engine and Friends, for which the former Beatle supplied the narration. Starr also created the character of Mr. Conductor when the series premiered in 1989. George Carlin took over the role in 1992.

Q: What happened to Titans? Will it be returning anytime soon? –L.J. Caudle, Early, Texas.

A. One of the lowest-rated new shows of the season, Titans premiered to weak numbers last fall and dropped like a rock every week it was on the air. The final nail in its coffin was the fact that after Ed took over the Wednesday time slot, viewership for that NBC period zoomed upward.

If, as expected, the TV industry is hit by a strike by one or more of its unions later this year, NBC may broadcast the few made-but-never-aired Titans episodes, but only as a stopgap measure. The show is dead.

Q: I enjoy The Weber Show, but it had another name when it premiered. What was it? –Scott in Fort Myers, Fla.

A. Cursed was the title of this troubled NBC sitcom when it premiered last fall, but the original premise – a man (star Steven Weber) experiences a run of bad luck after being cursed by a spurned blind date – was jettisoned after a few episodes. Its new title reflects its shift in premise to a Seinfeld-like comedy about a group of friends.

Worship Program For Children Set At St. Paul's

The children's worship program of St Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, will present "The Light" next Tuesday, Feb. 27, at 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Denise Shay, children's worship leader, will guide the children through the program, based on the New Testament scripture John 8:12, at the Hour Of Praise for Everyone (H.O.P.E.) service.

The children's worship program was started six years ago to offer an alternate worship experience for pre-schoolers through grade 5 during the Sunday 8.30 a.m. services, according to a church spokesperson. The young people remain in the sanctuary with their families until the children's message is presented, and are then able to go to children's worship with the assistance of an usher.

"The Light" is a miniature version of what is done each week, and includes a call to worship, praising God in song, the lesson, a prayer request time, prayer, how the church tells time (the seasons and colors for the church year), a closing song, and, finally, a circle of blessing.

HOPE services are held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month through May and are open to the public. The fellowship hall is accessible to the handicapped. These services have been planned by the laity of the church and are intended to offer an informal 45-minute worship experience during the week for those who are unable to attend Sunday services, as well as those desiring to be in fellowship with other churchgoers during the week. Andy Damon is the coordinator.

Pastors are Rev. Roger A. Harrison Sr. and Rev. Ann W. Harrison. St. Paul's UM Church is located on the corner of Fourth and Oak streets.

Maryland Crime Victim Program Receives Funds

United States Attorney Stephen M. Schenning announced recently that the Justice Department Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) is awarding $1,434,000 to supplement Maryland's crime victim compensation program. The program allows crime victims to receive financial help with their medical bills and other crime-associated expenses.

"The efforts of U.S. attorneys and others to secure fines from criminals are vital to providing victims and their families the services and assistance they need," said Schenning. "There's a tremendous sense of satisfaction that money from those who commit the crimes is used to help those who suffer the consequences of that crime."

Fines and penalties collected each year by personnel in U.S. attorney's offices, U.S. courts, and the Bureau of Prisons are deposited into the Crime Victims Fund and are then made available for grant awards the following year. The fund was established by the Victims of Crime Act (VOCA) and is administered by OVC.

All 50 states, the District of Columbia, and three territories will receive a total of $91.01 million in federal victim compensation grant funds in FY 2001. As prescribed by VOCA, each state's grant amount is equal to 40 percent of what the state paid out to compensate victims in the previous year. In addition to medical costs, these funds can be used to pay victims' claims for mental health counseling, lost wages, funeral expenses, and other expenses determined by state compensation programs.

For more information about Maryland's victim compensation program, persons may contact the Maryland Criminal Injuries Compensation Commission at 410-585-3010. Information about OVC programs may be obtained through the OVC web site at www.ojp.usodj.gov/ojc, or by calling the OVC resource center at 1-800-627-6872.

Garrett County Featured In New Hiking Guide

"The mountains of western Maryland are the least populated, and it is here that you will find the longest, most isolated, rugged, and quiet hikes," writes Leonard M. Adkins, author of a newly published book titled 50 Hikes in Maryland.

Garrett County mountains, forests, and parklands are the focus of the opening chapters of this detailed new outdoor guidebook. Adkins has established his hiking credentials by walking the entire length of the Appalachian Trail four times and logging more than 16,000 miles on foot traveling the United States, Canada, Europe, and the Caribbean. He is also a past recipient of the Lowell Thomas Travel Journalism Award.

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce hosted the author's visit to the county last summer. After hiking throughout Maryland, Adkins chose seven Garrett County hikes to present in the opening chapters of his latest book.

"Hiking is a great way to relieve stress and spend quality time together with friends and family. Garrett County has some of the best trails in the state, and we're excited to be acknowledged through inclusion in this important publication," said Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

Each hiking trail in the book is delineated, citing total distance, vertical rise, and hiking time, along with its geological and topographical features. In addition, the particular attractions to be found along each trail are also noted with indications such as appropriateness of the trail for young children.

In Garrett County, a 4.9-mile circuit of Meadow Mountain and Deep Creek Lake, with a vertical rise of 820 feet, is the first hike described in the book. An old coal mine and mountain top wetlands are its noted attractions. The 51-foot waterfall is the highlight designated on the Muddy Creek and Swallow Falls hike, which extends 1.3 miles. A 7.5-mile trail through Garrett State Forest winds past the largest and oldest red oak tree in Maryland, the author points out. Other Garrett County trails are identified along Big Savage Mountain, through Lostland Run, across New Germany State Park, and around Herrington Manor State Park.

Following the account of the seven trails in Garrett County are depictions of another three trails each in Allegany and Washington counties. From the westernmost area of Maryland eastward to the Atlantic Ocean, Adkins maps out hikes and highlights, which he divides into five geographic regions.

A freelance writer and lecturer on long-distance hiking, Adkins acknowledged Garrett County business people and the chamber for assistance while writing 50 Hikes in Maryland. His book is available locally at the Book Mark'et in Oakland.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Figural containers have fascinated collectors for hundreds of years. There were 18th-century perfume bottles shaped like women. 19th-century whiskey jugs in the form of judges and politicians and 20th-century lady-head vases. They are all in demand. Lady heads that sold for $5 to $15 each in the 1980s now bring $100 to $1,000.

The best buys today for beginning collectors are probably other kinds of figural vases — like baby heads, clown heads and full-figure vases — that are still relatively inexpensive. Holiday figurals and nursery subjects are the real bargains. They can still be found at garage sales for less than $10. Much of this floral pottery was made in Japan or Czechoslovakia and was imported to the United States.

Q: I am in my 80s and want to leave my antique platform rocker to my daughter. I would like to give her some history and an idea of the chair's value. According to the original nameplate attached to one leg, it is a "Hunzinger duplex spring platform rocker patented September 26, 1882." The rocker has an upholstered seat and a U-shaped back made of dowels and spheres.

A: George Hunzinger (1835-1898) immigrated to New York from Germany in 1855. He opened his own cabinetmaking shop in New York City in 1860. Hunzinger became well-known for his unusual designs. He patented 21 technical improvements for furniture, including the rocking device used on your chair. The Strong Museum in Rochester, N.Y., has a chair just like it. Your Hunzinger rocker would sell for more than $1,000.

Feeding Time

By Dodge the Wonder Cat

Q: Dear Dodge: How much and how often should I feed my new kitten?

A: Mmm, food! Nowadays, I get just two meals a day, with a couple of treats in between, but I remember those wonderful growing years!

• Kittens should be fed four times a day until they're 5 months old, and then three times daily until their sixth month. Make sure they get at least nine ounces of food each day.

• From 6 months to a year old, reduce this amount to about six ounces a day, and after their first birthday, reduce it again to five or six ounces. Keep track of their size and weight, and adjust the amount of food accordingly. (I stay trim on about seven ounces daily.)

Now, what to eat? Meat, of course! Protein and fat are the main ingredients in a cat's diet. We're hunters, naturally! While I prefer dry food, my owner insists that at least half my daily intake is cooked or canned chicken, beef or beef byproducts (not "meat byproducts"). I love fish and milk, but Sam only gives me a tiny bit of each during the week, because too much fish can cause behavioral and physical problems, and milk upsets my stomach.

Don't feed raw meat to your new cat, because it can harbor parasites and diseases. And don't let it gnaw on chicken bones, which can splinter and get lodged in his or her throat. Also, put houseplants out of reach — some are poisonous! Call your vet for a list of plants to avoid.

Other than that, just give your new kitten plenty of fresh water, toys and love, and you'll see the start of a beautiful friendship!

HOCUS-FOCUS BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

If you live in the northern hemisphere, this is the time of the year when many of you are anxious to see spring arrive. In the middle of winter, the foliage of fall is but a memory and the sweet sensations of spring seem so far away. It is not so easy to just get up and go away to a tropical paradise. What are we to do?

Born in the eighteenth century, the writer Samuel Taylor Coleridge must have pondered the same dilemma, for he wrote..."I feel as if God had, by giving the Sabbath, given fifty-two springs in every year."

Truly, as we enter God's house each week, we come into a welcome atmosphere of warmth where we may sit and rest our work-worn body and bask in the glory of our Heavenly Father's love...where we can experience the waves of spiritual refreshment.

Worship this week. You will have spring in your soul.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BEYOND THE UPPER ROOM

February 25, 2001

Background Scripture
Luke 24 13-49
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 28 16-20

We do not know just where in Jerusalem the rest of the disciples of Jesus were when two of them came hurrying back to tell of their remarkable experience of the Risen Lord on the Emmaus Road Many interpreters think that it was the same Upper Room in which Jesus and his disciples had shared his Last Supper Although there is no evidence for it, for the writer's convenience I make that tentative assumption

In Luke, as in the other three gospels, it is impossible to pin down just exactly the nature of the Risen Lord whom the disciples experienced. On the Emmaus road, the two disciples of Jesus did not recognize him until he sat at table with them and broke bread As they were retelling their experience to those in Jerusalem, "Jesus himself stood among them." And how did the disciples react to the sudden appearance of the Risen Christ? "But they were startled and frightened, and supposed that they saw a spirit" (24 37)

This would lead us to believe that the Jesus they experienced in the Upper Room and the Emmaus road was not exactly the same physical presence with whom they had shared the past several years But then Luke startles us again by quoting Jesus "See my hands and my feet, that it is I myself, handle me and see, for a spirit has not flesh and bones as you see that I have" (39) And if we add in Mary Magdalene's experience in John 20.17—"Do not hold me, for I have not yet ascended to the Father..."—we have good reason to be thoroughly confused about the Resurrected Lord

"If He Rose At All..."

This confusion has led some people to believe that the disciples did not actually "see" and "hear" the Risen Jesus, but "saw" him as an apparition or simply "felt" or "remembered" the illusion of his presence It is a good piece of rationalization, but that is NOT what any of the four gospel accounts are telling us The two on the Emmaus road may not have recognized Jesus, but neither did they think they were walking and dining with an apparition Although some of the disciples in the Upper Room may have thought that what they "saw" and "heard" was an immaterial spirit, the Jesus they encountered there encouraged them to touch his material hands and feet and ate some boiled fish with them

In a poem, "Seven Stanzas At Easter" John Updike says

Make no mistake, if He rose at all it was as His body, if the cells' dissolution did not reverse, the molecules reknit,
the amino acids rekindle,
the Church will fall *

If we reduce the resurrection of Jesus to the strong recollection of a leader lately departed, "the Church will fall," for the Good News of Jesus Christ would amount to nothing more than an encouraging obituary Jesus was powerfully present at the resurrection, although neither I nor anyone else can explain how it happened So, although the gospel witnesses cannot really explain what happened when they encountered the Risen Lord, they wanted us to know that his presence was a powerful one He was the same Jesus with whom they had walked the roads of Galilee, but he was also a different Jesus, too— and that is about the best we can do with their experiences as they have shared them with us

We can better chronicle ("better" although not adequately) what happened as a result of those resurrection experiences It was God's plan, said the Risen Lord, "that repentance and forgiveness of sins should be preached in his name to all nations, beginning from Jerusalem You are witnesses of these things" (47,48) The stories of encounters with the Risen Lord were not to be kept as secrets to be told within the confines of the Upper Room. The power of the resurrection must be taken out of the Upper Room and into the world.

FBI Super Sleuth John Douglas To Speak At FSU

John Douglas, a legendary figure in law enforcement, will appear at Frostburg State University to offer an inside look at some of the most intriguing criminal cases of our time. Sponsored by the Campus Activities Board, his lecture is scheduled for Wednesday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in the Lane Center's Alice R. Manicur Assembly Hall.

Now retired after 25 years of service, Douglas is free to share his experiences as chief of the FBI's Investigative Support Unit, the team that tackles the most baffling and senseless of unsolved violent crimes. "He explores the cat-and-mouse struggle between his elite squad of investigators and a chilling rogues' gallery of assailants, a sort of surreal chess game with life-and-death consequences. Along the way, he also shows how understanding the minds and motives of opponents can influence success in any arena," stated a program spokesperson.

A pioneer in using the behavioral sciences for criminal profiling, Douglas was the model for the Scott Glenn character in The Silence of the Lambs and the original choice to play the role. "He has hunted some of the most notorious and sadistic criminals of our time: the Trailside Killer of San Francisco, the Atlanta child murderer, the mastermind of the Tylenol poisonings, the man who hunted prostitutes for sport in the Alaska woods, and Seattle's Green River killer, the case that almost killed him. He has also confronted, interviewed, and studied such notorious figures as Charles Manson, Sirhan Sirhan, Richard Speck, John Wayne Gacy, David Berkowitz (the Son of Sam), and James Earl Ray to better understand the criminal mind," the spokesperson said.

Douglas is the author of the national bestsellers The Anatomy of Motive, Obsession, and Mind Hunter and Unabomber: On the Trail of America's Most Wanted Serial Killer, co-authored with Mark Olshaker.

"Given the recent release of the movie Hannibal, Douglas's FSU appearance is perfectly timed for fans of the Hannibal Lecter series of films," the spokesperson said. It is free and open to the public.

For more information, persons may contact Michael Steele of the FSU Campus Activities Board at 301-687-4192 or by e-mail at fsucab@hotmail.com.

4-H Club News

SNOWY CREEK
by Michael Guard
reporter

Because of the cancellation of January's meeting, the Snowy Creek Club had its first meeting of 2001 on February 8 at the Guard farm. There were 31 members present. The meeting started with Brenda Frazee giving a presentation about the importance of milk, "Got Milk." The group learned about what milk does for one's body and why one needs milk to live a healthy life.

The club leader, Mark Wolf, opened the meeting. Randall Frantz and Michael Wolf led the pledges. Shelby Glover gave the treasurer's report.

Becky Sines attended the volunteer workshop to become a Clover leader. Becky Sines and Charlotte Smearman are Clover leaders. They worked with the Clovers during the business meeting, making a special Valentine heart. There was no old business.

Under new business, the club plans for 2001 were discussed and approved. Each family received their telephone network. Committees were formed for the float, booth, Adopt-A-Highway, and library decorating for the coming year. Club leader Wanda Guard handed out project and record book materials for 2001 to the members. Livestock contracts and questionnaires were handed out. The club member survey is due at the Extension Office on February 15. The livestock contracts are due back in by February 26 since they are due at the Extension Office by March 1.

The next meeting is scheduled for March 8 at the Guard farm at 7 p.m. The program that evening will be about raising broilers.

CRELLIN HEAD START PARTICIPATES in "Reading is Fundamental" Program. Ms. Dee Murphy, classroom volunteer and guest reader, read several stories to the children prior to each child selecting his/her own RIF book to take home and keep. RIF distributions will be done three times during the school year. Each child is allowed to select a book of his/her choice from a variety of books on display. Storytelling and reading by guests accompany each RIF distribution to further enhance the children's interest in books and reading. Crellin teacher Terri Shaffer and assistant teacher Pam Goad welcome community volunteers interested in being guest readers in the classroom. Listening to Murphy are Wyatt Sanders, Lucas Baker, Evelyn McGehee, Tyler Boyce, Kiana Alexander, Brandon Uphold, Nikolai Friend, T.J. Meadows, and Logan Strawser. For more information on Community Action Head Start's family literacy program, persons may call 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 126.

PRESIDENTIAL CLASSROOM SCHOLARS — Southern High School student Chelsea Stuck, left, and Northern High student Kelly Carr took part in the weeklong Presidential Classroom Scholars program in Washington, D.C., last month. The pair were among the 480 participating high school juniors and seniors from 45 states and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico who learned firsthand about the executive branch through intensive seminars led by government leaders, journalists, historians, and other experts. They were also on hand for the inauguration ceremony of President George W. Bush, attended the America Youth Leaders' Ball, and visited a number of the Smithsonian museums and national monuments. A nonprofit, nonpartisan civic education organization, Presidential Classroom is in its 33rd year of offering programs for high school youth.

Bausch & Lomb To Pay Millions In Settlement

Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. announced Tuesday that residents of Maryland who have bought replacement contact lenses are eligible to receive a cash rebate on a future purchase and a product benefit package from Bausch & Lomb Inc. under a proposed settlement with the contact lens manufacturer. The settlement resolves antitrust claims that were filed against Bausch & Lomb by Maryland, 31 other states, and a private consumer class. The benefit package each consumer will receive is valued at $120.

Maryland citizens who purchased replacement contact lenses from Bausch & Lomb, Johnson & Johnson Vision Products Inc., or CIBA Vision at any time since January 1, 1988, are eligible to receive the rebate and benefit package. Acuvue, SeeQuence, Focus, and NuVue are among the popular replacement lenses sold by these manufacturers. The rebate is for eye exams and future purchases of Bausch & Lomb lenses.

Bausch & Lomb has guaranteed that it will distribute at least $9.5 million worth of benefit packages to consumers, or deposit the difference between what was distributed and the $9.5 million into a settlement fund.

In addition to offering consumers the benefit package, Bausch & Lomb has also agreed to pay $8 million to the settlement fund and to change its current policy barring sales of its lenses to pharmacies and mail order firms. The settlement fund will be used to pay for widespread newspaper ads about the settlement, the cost of the litigation, and charitable distributions. The newspaper ads will list a toll-free number and a web site address which will tell consumers how to register for the rebate and benefits package.

Attorney General Curran, along with the attorneys general of 31 other states, files suit against Bausch & Lomb, Johnson & Johnson Vision Products Inc., the American Optometric Association, and CIBA Vision for violating antitrust laws. CIBA Vision previously settled with the states in a separate settlement agreement.

The lawsuits allege that replacement contact lenses were priced at artificially high levels after Johnson & Johnson Vision Products Inc., Bausch & Lomb, and CIBA Vision agreed with certain optometrists and the American Optometric Association that consumers could only purchase replacement lenses from eye care professionals. Consumers found it more difficult to purchase replacement lenses made by these manufacturers through other outlets, such as mail or phone order, the Internet, and pharmacies, according to the lawsuits. The lawsuits also allege that consumers had to pay higher prices for those lenses. An estimated 1 in 10 Americans wear contact lenses.

"This settlement directly benefits consumers, who will no longer be forced to pay higher prices for their replacement lenses. Consumers will also find it easier to purchase these lenses in the future," Attorney General Curran said.

Curran said that his office is proceeding with the lawsuit against the other defendants, Johnson & Johnson Vision Products Inc. and the American Optometric Association, which are still causing customers to pay higher replacement contact lens prices. Trial against these remaining defendants begins March 19, 2001, in Jacksonville, Fla.

"We want to stop these unlawful, restrictive policies," Curran said. "My office is committed to investigating and suing companies who make unlawful agreements that harm Maryland consumers."

WORKS OF ART take many forms and are created from a variety of materials, including snow sometimes. These two snow sculptures graced the slopes of the Wisp Ski Resort on Marsh Mountain, and were the work of Pete Broanihan Jr., a lift attendant for the Wisp. The automobile and the P-40 Flying Tiger airplane were "life size" and greeted the thousands of skiers who have been enjoying excellent conditions at the Wisp over the past few months. Unfortunately, the rains and warmer temperatures of late have taken a fatal toll on the sculptures, reducing them to shapeless bumps. Despite the recent thaw, all Wisp trails remain open and in good condition, with several feet of base in many areas.

Cris Williamson Will Perform At Frostburg State

In celebration of Women's History Month, the legendary singer/songwriter Cris Williamson will perform at Frostburg State University on Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre.

Williamson's groundbreaking record, The Changer and The Changed, recorded in 1975, propelled her into the limelight and initiated a new genre — women's music. The recording is one of the best selling independent releases ever. With 19 albums to her credit, she is now working on the album Lucky Dog and embarking on her first solo tour in almost 15 years.

The Boston Globe has called her "a brilliant lyricist and composer, whose music traverses the musical and lyrical map." For the past 25 years, Williamson has performed all over the globe.

A former schoolteacher, she has been called a "heroic character [whose] tireless activism continues" by The Boston Phoenix. She has appeared on a multitude of benefit records, performed with Bonnie Raitt and Jackson Brown on behalf of Native American issues, and co-founded In the Best Interests of the Children, a pediatric AIDS organization. Her lyrics are often cited in books, thesis papers, and women's studies courses.

Bonnie Raitt said, "The first time I heard Cris's music, it was like hearing honey dripped on a cello....Cris has been a whole lot of women's heroes — including mine."

Sponsors of this event include FSU's Women's Studies Program, Faculty Development, GLBTA students through the Student Government Association, Office of the Provost, President's Advisory Council on Diversity, Division of Performing Arts/University Theatre, Lane Center and Campus Activities, and FSU Residence Hall Association.

Tickets for the concert are free and can be picked up at the Lane Center Information Desk. There is a limit of four tickets per person. Reservations are available by calling 301-687-4145.

The day of the concert, Williamson will conduct an interactive workshop at 3 p.m. in the PAC Studio Theatre to discuss her role in the history of women's music, music composition, and writing. To attend, persons should contact Linda McCulloch at 301-687-4130 or 301-687-4145.

FSU To Host Author Parrish

Author Tim Parrish will present a reading of his first book of fiction, Red Stick Men, at Frostburg State University on Monday, March 5, at 7 p.m. in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre of the Performing Arts Center. The event is free and open to the public.

Parrish has served as a professor and director of creative writing at Southern Connecticut State University since 1994. He has been published in numerous periodicals, including New England Review, Southern Exposure, Louisiana Literature, and Shenandoah. He lived in Baton Rouge for 27 years.

Robert Olen Butler, Pulitzer prize-winning author of A Good Scent from a Strange Mountain: Stories, praised Parrish's first book. "Headlong, funny, sharply observed, the stories of Red Stick Men are a joy to read. Tim Parrish is a splendid writer with a remarkable literary future," he said.

For more information, persons may contact the FSU Department of English at 301-687-4221.

Coal Country Cloggers Will Perform At PSC

Highland Arts Unlimited Inc., Keyser, W.Va., will present the Coal Country Cloggers on Thursday, March 8, at 8 p.m. in the Church-McKee Arts Center of Potomac State College, Keyser.

According to a Highland Arts spokesperson, the Appalachian Mountain region is home to some of the "most unique and exciting" percussive dance techniques in the world. "The fusion of step dances from the British Isles with African rhythms and relaxed style of movement gave birth to Appalachian clogging, tap dancing, and a host of other dance styles that fall in between," the spokesman said. "The Coal Country Cloggers, in their never-ending search for exciting rhythms, present these traditional American dance forms in unforgettable ways."

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door the evening of the performance. Persons may telephone 304-788-0111 for more information.

Highland Arts Unlimited Inc. programs are funded by the West Virginia Commission on the Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts, Highland Arts memberships, Potomac State College, and the Mineral County Board of Education.

Southern Middle To Host State Poet-In-Schools

One of Maryland's poets-in-the-schools, noted author and editor Michael S. Glaser of St. Mary's College, will return to Garrett County in March to present a series of poetry workshops for students and teachers at Southern Middle School. The editor of Weavings 2000: The Maryland Millennial Anthology, Glaser served at Broad Ford Elementary School in October.

Glaser is a professor of literature and creative writing at St. Mary's College of Maryland, where he also directs the Literary Festival at St. Mary's, and the Voices reading series. He serves as a poet-in-the-schools for the Maryland State Arts Council, and has edited the anthologies The Cooke Book: A Seasoning of Poems and Weavings 2000: The Maryland Millennial Anthology.

Over 300 of Glaser's own poems have been published in literary journals and newspapers, most recently in the American Scholar, New Letters, Prairie Schooner, Christian Science Monitor, and First Things, as well as in numerous anthologies, including Unsettling America, Outsiders, and Light Gathering Poems. His collection of poems, A Lover's Eye, is in its second printing.

Glaser received the Columbia Merit Award from the Poetry Committee of the Greater Washington, D.C., area in 1995 for his service to poetry. His chapbook In the Men's Room and Other Poems was the winner of the 1996 Painted Bride Quarterly chapbook competition, and he received a 1997 Individual Artist's Award in Poetry from the Maryland State Arts Council.

Glaser has taught at St. Mary's College of Maryland, St. Mary's City, for the past 30 years and has served the college in many capacities, including as president of the faculty senate, chairperson of the Arts and Letters Division, and chair of the English Department. He lives in St. Mary's City with his wife Kathleen, and is the father of five children.

Weavings 2000 Features Works From Across Md.

Over 125 contemporary Maryland writers, ages 8 to 90, are featured in the book Weavings 2000: The Maryland Millennial Anthology, edited by Michael S. Glaser. The anthology is a tapestry of Maryland's finest contemporary poetry, fiction, memoirs, and essays. Available from the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 (Maryland 2000), Weavings 2000 is described as the most complete collection of modern-day Maryland writers ever published.

"This anthology represents the quality and variety of literature being produced in Maryland today," said Maryland 2000 executive director Louise Hayman. "Not only does this publication provide a legacy for the future, it is a useful tool for reflecting on how the literary arts will shape our lives and communities in the new millennium."

"Literature, like this anthology, provides windows inward and windows through which we might look at worlds that are different than our own," said Glaser. "And often literature enables us to see how the people who inhabit those worlds are not as radically different as we first imagined."

One of the commission's six education initiatives, the 290-page book features original works by nationally renowned writers Lucille Clifton, William Meredith, Henry Taylor, and Linda Pastan. Also featured are works of two Pulitzer Prize winners, three former consultants in poetry to the Library of Congress, four past and the current Poet Laureates of Maryland, and lesser known writers.

The anthology has been distributed to all public libraries, state colleges and universities, public and private middle and high school libraries, and senior centers across the state. It is also available for purchase from Maryland 2000 by calling 1-877-632-0001.

For more information regarding Maryland 2000, persons may visit the commission's web site at www.maryland2000.org or call the number listed above.

Musings
by Michael S. Glaser
Editor, Weavings 2000: The Maryland Millennial Anthology

Kate Chandler, a professor whose study has focused on literature and ecology, has written that "observation leads to reflection, then to introspection. But if we operate relationally, as the natural world teaches us, what purpose does understanding ourselves serve if we do not extend that further and work toward living with that courtesy and respect that helps bind our communities together? Observation, reflection, and caring require time. And there is the vision that nature writing gives to me: that it is worthwhile to take time to observe and ponder."

It is interesting, I think, how young children often seem to understand at some level those profound truths that professors seek to communicate to their university students. Or is it, perhaps, that somewhere between our youth and our growing up, we begin to mistrust the intuitive understandings of our world we held when we were young? Tracey Slaughter's poem "Minnow" is instructive here.

MINNOW
I see myself as a minnow,
Small to the rest of the world.
I don't know what's happening,
Or what's going to happen —
But I swim with the waves,
The constant beating sound of drums.

As the sun rises,
And the waves glimmer,
I begin each day with courage,
Wandering in the depths of the ocean.
Not an agenda to follow,
Just swimming and swimming and swimming.

Tracey Slaughter

Tracey Slaughter was in the sixth grade at Fallston Middle School when she wrote this poem.

As part of its millennial activities, the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 sponsored the publication of Weavings 2000, an anthology of literary works which represents the breadth of excellent literature that is being created by Maryland writers today. This column is an extension of that anthology and the vision of the Commission that the lives of all Marylanders can be enriched by the special attentions that writers bring to the experiences of our lives. Weavings 2000 has been distributed to every library in Maryland.

Dr. Michael S. Glaser is a professor of literature and creative writing at St Mary's College of Maryland, St. Mary's City.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Holly Hare of Bittinger and Mike Fratz of McHenry, both students at Northern High School, auditioned in Baltimore for the very highly competitive State of Maryland All-State Chorus. They both were winners. I know Holly has some great pipes, and Mike is another great singer along with his actor-musical talents. Mike is the drum major of the Northern High School Marching Band. Congratulations to them both.

Speaking of the band, I competed with lots of other local parents and grandparents in the fund raising drive to help raise funds to pay for Claire's way to the band spring trip to Las Vegas to perform in a concert band festival, as well as to take in the sights in that part of the southwest, including the Painted Desert, Zion National Park, the Grand Canyon, etc. The trip will be taken in mid-March. Claire looks forward to taking off from her regular school for two days this week for participation in the county-wide honor band. They get together with their peers from Southern. It is amazing how far Claire's playing has improved since she first started playing the clarinet.

The kids from Bittinger really excelled at the science fair held at Northern. Three kids placed in their division and they will go on to the regional science fair at Frostburg State University in late March.

My personal favorite was Andrew Hady's project. He collected rocks on three major ridges of the Eastern Continental Divide, including Negro Mountain, Meadow Mountain, and Savage Mountain. All three mountains yielded sandstone. Andrew analyzed the rocks and they were all the same composition (quartz and feldspar). Andrew won first place in the Earth Science category in grade nine. In the next grade up, Landon Southerly won a place in Behavior Science. Karla Buckel won a third place for a project involving the effect of music on the behavior of hermit crabs. She placed third in the Zoology category. She is an 11th grade student at Northern. Andrew's parents are Bill and Jenny Hady, Landon's parents are Bill and Sheila Southerly, and Karla's parents are Bill and Tina Buckel. All the kids from Bittinger as usual did us proud.

Our tableland between Negro and Meadow Mountain is completely gorged with water. The glade is swollen with water that empties into Cherry Creek and then eventually goes west into the Mississippi River. Winter still lingers on in Bittinger, as a few tiny snow showers and icy wind blasts were enough for my girls and their buddies, the Avis girls, to still use the long weekend for sled riding. It was really only a little glaze of snow and ice on the grass, but they said is was good sledding. While our girls were busy with that activity, Patty and I took advantage of the sunshine and somewhat warm weather to go on a short driving trip to hunt for some wild art supplies for my dolls. We had very good luck. We even found a few wild teaberries, lots of nice moss and ferns, autumn leaves still hanging on their trees, some very cool vines with nice pods on them, a bunch of blueberries, and some princess pine, which I have wanted for a long while. With the leftover flowers from church, I now have a good supply to inspire me.

The other day when I was on the way to dropping off Claire at her friend's house in Grantsville, I spotted a walker, whom I recognized as a former schoolmate, Phil Dice. I had not seen him in many years; I guess the last time was at the funeral of his cousin, David Stanton. He told me he just woke up a sleeping groundhog on Route 495, just in time to save it from a couple big trucks.

This weekend we enjoyed a visit from Aunt Helen Englar while she was up in Garrett County to check out her son Courtney's new house. He is finished moving in now. She also had lunch on Saturday with her cousin, Rhea Hetrick, of Salisbury.

Ruth DiPaolo visited with her friends, Betty and Ellis Sacra, in Virginia last week. She loves to go places or just plain run around.

Jim Hollis from Leonardstown, visited with Cindy and Sam Stanton on Sunday. Sam also visited with his mother and brother, Lucretia and Clay Stanton, on Sunday.

Recent visitors of Ken and Harriett Buckel were Bonnie McElroy of Mt. Airy and Tina, Karla, and Derek Buckel. Ken was celebrating his 75th birthday and they were all Sunday brunch guest at Penn Alps in Grantsville on Sunday.

At 5:30 p.m. the exhibitor showcase and social hour will begin, followed by the evening program and banquet with special guest Dr. John McCormack.

Saturday's theme will be "Adding Value - Expanding Markets: Opportunities to Enhance the Profitability of Your Beef Cattle Enterprise." Sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. with Dr. Robert Cheves, Extension agent with West Virginia University speaking on the "Headwaters Farm Project." The next session by Dan Probose, Extension educator with Ohio State University, is "The Great Lakes Family Farms Alliance." Economic Survey To Provide True Picture Of Ag's Financial Future

Maryland farmers will have the opportunity to "let their voice be heard" by participating in the 2000 agricultural economic survey. This survey, titled the 2000 Agricultural Resource Management Study, provides vital statistics about the economic condition of production agriculture.

As Maryland's number one industry, agriculture contributes $17 billion to the state's economy and over 400,000 workers. This survey will help provide a current picture of agricultural production and give farmers a strong voice for their financial future.

Producers chosen to participate in the survey will be visited by an interviewer to complete the report at the farm operator's convenience. Interviewer for Garrett and Allegany counties will be Carolyn Ganoe.

Results will be published in a series of reports on the current farm financial situation. A free copy of these reports can be obtained on the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service web site at www.usda.gov/nass/md or by calling 800-675-0295.

The survey benefits farmers by:

- providing farmers and their organizations with reliable data showing the current economic conditions on farms to have a strong voice for financial future;
- helping determine disaster relief and direct payment funding;
- revealing figures without which credit providers have very limited information and would likely take conservative financial positions; and
- providing a financial benchmark for the Farm Services Agency and other organizations. Federal programs, legislation, and impact studies would struggle under great uncertainty without these facts.

No-Till Conference Set At Md. & Pa. Locations

An international flavor has been added to the 27th annual Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference, to be held at three locations on consecutive days in early March.

Dates and sites for the conference are as follows: March 7—Hotel Magee in downtown Bloomsburg, Pa.; March 8—Penn Dell Conference Center, north of Carlisle, Pa., along Hwy. 74; March 9—Delaware State Fairground, south of Harrington, Del., along U.S. Hwy. 13. Program sessions at each site will run from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

The conference is sponsored by Cooperative Extension at land-grant universities and by the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service in participating Mid-Atlantic states, with assistance from the Pocono Northeast and Capital Region Resources Conservation and Development Areas, and interested agribusiness organizations.

Lead-off speaker for this year's event will be Carlos Crovetto Lamarca, a world-famous no-till farmer-author from Chile. He will be followed on the morning program at all three conference sites by Donald C. Reicosky of Morris, Minn., an internationally recognized specialist on soil quality and environmental concerns.

Dr. Reicosky is a soil scientist at the North Central Soil Conservation Research Laboratory of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service (ARS). Both he and Senor Lamarca have extensive experience working under cropping conditions similar to those found in the Northeast.

Reicosky and Lamarca also will lead concurrent 45-minute breakout sessions throughout the afternoon in their specialty areas. Two other breakout sessions will deal with weed control and cover crops. William S. Curran and Sjoerd Duiker, both Penn State agronomists, will lead the weed control and cover crops breakout sessions, respectively, at both Pennsylvania locations, with assistance from farmer panelists.

Mark VanGessel, an Extension weed specialist at the University of Delaware, and Steve Groff of Holtwood, Pa., a well-known Lancaster County no-till vegetable producer, will be the panel leaders at Harrington, Del.

Continuing education credits for Certified Crop Advisors may be earned at any of the three conference sites.

A $20 registration fee for the conference includes lunch and printed materials if paid before Feb. 26. After that, the fee is $25 per person. Registration contact persons include the following.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—Mary Wagner, 702 Sawmill Rd., Suite 204, Bloomsburg, PA 17815; phone: 570-784-1310, ext. 114; fax: 570-784-3247.

Beekeepers Eligible For Loan Program

Eligible producers of 2000 crop honey may obtain loan deficiency payments (LDPs) or non-recourse marketing assistance loans through the Farm Service Agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Producers can request the LDP or loan at the county FSA office where the producers' farm records are located.

Loan deficiency payments are available on 2000 crop honey for producers who, although eligible for a loan, agree to forgo the loan in return for a payment on the eligible honey. Producers who have already marketed the 2000 honey will be eligible for the LDP based on the date beneficial interest was lost.

Eligible producers must have produced the honey during the 2000 calendar year, and the honey must have been extracted on or before Dec. 31 of last year. The producer must also be responsible for the financial risk of keeping the bees and producing the honey, which must be of merchantable quality.

The nine-month Non-Recourse Marketing Assistance Loan rate has been set at 65 cents per pound for all loan-eligible 2000 crop honey. A loan service fee shall be assessed which will be the smaller of the following figures: ½ of 1 percent times the gross loan amount, or $45 per loan plus $3 for lots over 1.

Honey may be stored on or off the farm. Pre-loan FSA inspections are required to verify the quantity of honey, and certain packaging and container requirements must be met. Producers shall certify to the quantity of honey for loan. The maximum quantity eligible for loan shall be 100 percent of the eligible quantity certified to and verified by an FSA representative. A lien search will be performed on each honey loan request. The county FSA office will also file financing statements to protect security interests for all honey loans.

Eligible producers of 2000 crop honey interested in obtaining either a loan deficiency payment or a non-recourse marketing assistance loan may contact the Garrett County FSA at 301-334-6950 or the Preston County FSA at 304-329-1923.

NFU Corrects "Today Show" Misstatement

In a letter to the NBC "Today Show" and news officials, the National Farmers Union (NFU) offered the clarification of a misstatement regarding the origin of beef purchased at retail stores in the U.S.

While a February 9 airing of the show indicated that all beef sold in U.S. stores originates in the country, the family farmer and rancher organization provided information showing that approximately 12% of the beef sold and consumed in this country is raised in other countries. NFU also reiterated its support for important country-of-origin labeling legislation that is currently before Congress.

"There is considerable confusion about the origin of meat sold in the U.S.," said NFU president Leland Swenson. "Just because something receives a USDA stamp does not mean that it is a U.S. product. Especially now, with the mad cow crisis sweeping Europe and growing consumer concern about sources and production methods, we need information that accurately identifies what we are eating. We need mandatory country-of-origin labeling for all food products sold in the U.S., including beef, pork, poultry, fruits and vegetables."

The Farmers Union response comes in the wake of a statement by dietician Leslie Bonci on NBC's "Today Show" on food safety that aired February 9. Bonci implied that all beef sold in the U.S. is raised in the U.S., which is a false statement. In fact, the U.S. imports a significant amount of beef and most of the ground beef consumed by Americans contains meat blended with beef imported from several countries.

The erroneous statement on the "Today Show" indicates the need to pass legislation, such as Sen. Tim Johnson's Consumer Right to Know Act of 2001, to accurately inform consumers and others concerned about how our food is produced and of its source," continued Swenson.

"It is often said that Americans can tell where their hat came from, but not their hamburger. We hope that those in Congress and those involved in the food industries will take expeditious action to rectify this situation."

Dairy Management Conference Set For Mid-Atlantic Area

"Dairy farmers who want to stay competitive should plan to attend the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference next month," said Robert R. Peters, professor of animal and avian sciences at the University of Maryland. Dr. Peters is a milking management specialist with Maryland Cooperative Extension, a part of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The conference, a biennial event, is set for March 7 and 8 in the Radisson Penn Harris Hotel & Convention Center at Camp Hill, Pa. Sponsors include land-grant universities in the Mid-Atlantic area and interested agribusinesses. Dairy producers also served on the planning committee. The conference theme is "Implementing Competitive Business Strategies."

The program will get under way at 1 p.m. on March 7 and will adjourn at 3:30 p.m. on March 8. Speakers from land-grant universities in California, Kansas, Ohio, New York, Virginia, and Pennsylvania will make presentations, along with government officials, consultants, and dairy producers from Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The latter group includes Tammy and Sean Jones, dairy farmers at Massey, Md. (Kent County), who will make two presentations at the March 7 sessions.

Also speaking at the conference will be Bernie Erven, Extension farm management specialist at Ohio State University, and John Smith, Extension dairy specialist from Kansas State. Dr. Smith will lead off the first day's program with a talk on "Dairy Industry Trends and Opportunities."

Other topics will include: Organizing for Profitability, Personnel Management, Freedom to Operate, and Estate Planning.

The registration fee of $170 per person includes a copy of the proceedings, three meals, and access to all conference activities. The fee is reduced to $145 for a second person from the same farm.

Those interested in attending should send payment and registration information to Sandy Gunsallus, Mid-Atlantic Conference registrar, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802; phone 814-865-5491.

Reservations for overnight accommodations may be made by calling 800-333-3333. The conference site is located at 1150 Camp Hill Bypass (U.S. Highways 11 and 15), across the river and west of Harrisburg, Pa.

U.S. Milk Production Down 1.5%

Milk production in the 20 major states surveyed by the National Ag Statistics Service during January totaled 12.1 billion pounds, down 1.5% from production in these same states in January 2000.

December revised production, at 11.9 billion pounds, was down 0.7% from December 1999. The December revision represented a decrease of 0.6%, or 77 million pounds, from last month's preliminary production estimate.

Production per cow in the 20 major states averaged 1,550 pounds for January, 29 pounds below January 2000.

The number of cows on farms in the 20 major states was 7.79 million head, 27,000 head more than January 2000, but 12,000 head less than December 2000.

The annual production of milk for the U.S. during 2000 was 167.7 billion pounds, 3.0% above 1999. This was the fourth consecutive year of increased milk production and a new record high. Revisions to 1999 production increased the annual total by less than 0.1%. Revised 2000 production was down by 0.2% from last month's publication.

Production per cow in the U.S. averaged 18,204 pounds for 2000, 432 pounds above 1999. Average annual rate of milk production per cow has increased 21% since 1991.

The average number of milk cows on farms in the U.S. during 2000 was 9.21 million head.

Creep Feeding Lambs

Creep feeding young lambs while still nursing the ewe can provide valuable supplemental weight gain. This added weight gain has the most economic value for lambs managed in an intensive, early weaning production system where lambs will be maintained in a dry-lot. Conversely, for lambs that will be developed on pasture throughout the spring and summer, creep feeding would be of less value due to the relative expense of this early weight gain. Creep feeding also is beneficial for flocks with a high number of multiple births, or flocks with ewes having limited milk production.

Young lambs may be started on creep feed as early as 10 days of age. Although significant amounts of feed are normally not consumed until 3 to 4 weeks of age, providing access to creep feed at an early age allows lambs to develop a habit of eating dry feed, and helps stimulate rumen development. For creep feeding to be economical, lambs must consume enough feed to increase performance. Lambs should eat a minimum of .5 pounds of creep feed per head per day from 20 days of age to weaning.

Intake of creep feed is influenced by the design of the creep area as well as the feed provided. The creep area should be kept dry and well bedded. Place the creep in a high-traffic area where lambs will naturally find their way into it. The creep area should be large enough that the majority of the lambs may be in it at any one time. Observation of the traffic patterns of the ewes and lambs will help identify an ideal location. A light in the creep area will help attract lambs into the creep. Creep gates should provide spaces between 8 to 12 inches to allow lambs in but keep ewes out. Creep gates with rollers allow larger lambs through a smaller space. A small used tire can also be used as a creep gate.

The creep ration need not be expensive or complex. Of critical importance is that the feed be kept fresh and dry. Replace the feed in the creep daily. Old creep feed may be given to the ewe flock. Utilize covered feeders that minimize contamination from lambs standing or playing in the feeder. Young lambs are very sensitive to what they eat, and will not consume stale or contaminated feed.

The principle behind creep feeding is to stimulate lambs to eat and therefore promote weight gain. Therefore, highly palatable feeds must be provided. At a young age, lambs prefer feeds that are finely ground and have a small particle size. Feedstuffs high in palatability for young lambs include soybean meal, ground corn, and alfalfa hay. These feeds should be replaced daily to keep fresh. A simple mixture of 80-85% ground or cracked corn and 15-20% soybean meal, with free choice high quality alfalfa hay is a very palatable early creep ration. The feed being fed to the ewes may also be included free choice in the creep feeder. Early in the creep feeding period, stimulating intake is of primary concern. These diets should be formulated to contain 20% crude protein. As the lambs get to 4 to 6 weeks of age and older, coarser feeds become more palatable.

Providing feeds early will enhance the lambs' acceptance to these coarser feeds. As the lamb gets older, intakes and growth rates should increase. Additionally, the proportion of the gain that is derived from dry feed vs. milk increases. During this time, lambs may be gradually switched to a complete pelleted ration or a ration containing cracked corn and supplement. Over time, the ration should be changed to represent what will be fed once the lamb is weaned. Complete feeds are available commercially, which can be convenient yet expensive. Pelleted supplements to be mixed with cracked corn are generally cheaper, and are also widely available. At weaning, protein requirements of lambs drop to 15-16%. An advantage of the complete feeds and protein supplements is that they are fortified with antibiotics, vitamins, and minerals which are important for lamb health and performance. Lambs should be vaccinated with Clostridium Perfringens C & D to prevent overeating disease prior to weaning at 6 to 8 weeks of age.

Dollars in Manure?

With the cost of nitrogen fertilizer soaring, this is a good year to manage animal waste to capture the last pound of nitrogen. First and foremost, select a yield goal that is realistic for your field. For corn we use a rule-of-thumb that 1 pound of nitrogen is needed per bushel of corn. Secondly, if you applied manure and plowed it down last year there is still some nitrogen that will be released through mineralization (chart available). Thirdly, do not spread the manure on annual crop fields until you're ready to plow down the same day. By plowing down the same day you can capture approximately 80% of the nitrogen. However, not all of that nitrogen will be readily available.

The above paragraph mentions some good manure management practices, and you're probably thinking How am I going to put this all together? I have a suggestion. Now would be an excellent time to develop an effective nutrient management plan. Jill Hauser, Extension Nutrient Management advisor, is available from my office to assist you in finalizing a plan. After December 31, 2001, the law says you must have a nutrient management plan for your farm. I don't enjoy this law anymore than you; however, let's turn it around and make it work for our benefit.

Farmers Wait And Worry About New Federal Organic Food Rules

by Richard M. Todaro
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — The official in charge of Maryland's organic farming program says she is "really concerned" about the effect new federal regulations will have on the state's certification program.

State organic farmers, meanwhile, are complaining that the federal rules set to take effect Tuesday do not address what they see as a missing link in the organic food chain, the issue of retail sales.

Maryland currently has a voluntary program by which a retail store can ask to be certified. But only a handful of stores have participated, and the new federal rules are silent on the issue of voluntary certification of retailers.

"The federal regulations do not require your grocery store, your health food store, etc., to be inspected and certified," said Nick Maravell, a Maryland organic farmer since 1979.

"The federal standards are a minimum and a maximum, so I don't know if because they don't have a certification program for retailers (it) means Maryland has to give up its certification for retailers," he said.

Valerie Frances, program manager for the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Organic Certification Program, has a different worry about the federal regulations.

"I'm confused how it is going to impact us," said Frances, who fears that the rules will rob the Maryland Organic Certification Advisory Committee of the expertise it needs to advise state officials on organic farm policy.

She worries that the rules might not let parties who are currently certified either as farmers or handlers to serve as advisers on any advisory board approving or disapproving standards.

"These are the people who know what it is all about," Frances said. "I'm really concerned.... Otherwise, they (the regulations) are OK and we'll figure it out."

Implementation of the federal rules will mark the end of a three-year effort by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to set national standards for organic foods. The final version was hailed by then Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman as "the strongest and most comprehensive organic standard in the world" when it was issued in December.

The incoming Bush administration could have blocked the rules during a 60-day review period that ends Tuesday, but it has apparently decided to let them take effect.

"I'm 99.9 percent sure the new rules will take effect," said Demaris Kogut, spokeswoman for the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

When the new rules take effect, states will have 18 months to come into full compliance. Yet some organic farmers and food sellers are unhappy that the new regulations do not address retail sales. The standards were drawn up under the 1990 Organic Foods Production Act, which specifically exempts retailers from having to be certified in order to sell organic products.

Maravell, who farms 170 acres in Frederick and Montgomery counties, said the failure to certify retailers compromises the integrity of organic foods. For example, he said, a grocery could wash organic lettuce in the same water as conventional lettuce and still sell it as organic.

"Most consumers are not aware of the fact that the organic food chain breaks down at the point of sale," said Maravell.

Federal officials concede that the regulations do not address commingling — physical contact between unpackaged organically produced and non-organically produced agricultural products during production, processing, transportation, storage or handling other than during the manufacture.

"It doesn't address that issue," Kogut said. "But as our former agency administrator said, these regulations are a work in progress, evolving with time."

Only four retailers in Maryland had state organic certification last year. Two of those — SunSplash! in Pikesville and Railway Market in Easton — are owned by the Natural Retail Group, a Connecticut-based natural food chain with 12 stores in four states.

Pam Stegall-Roberts said that the possibility of commingling, while it exists, is small. She said it is more important for small producers to get access to large retail outlets, which are not as likely to apply for organic certification as niche retailers.

"I want to see all small farmers get their product to market," said Stegall-Roberts, an organic farmer in Cecil County with her husband Paul.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture said there were 70 farms certified as organic in the state in 2000, growing everything from corn and wheat to vegetables, perennials, flowers, herbs, fruits and berries on 3,449 acres. Those farms are inspected and certified annually.

In addition, almost 17,000 animals — including cows, chickens, pigs, turkeys, rabbits and even buffalo — are raised on 44 of the 70 farms, according to state statistics, a significant increase since 1997.

Stegall-Roberts is not as concerned as Frances that the federal rules might hurt the 14-member Maryland Organic Certification Advisory Committee, which includes three farmers representing the different segments of the organic food industry.

Stegall-Roberts, who grows vegetables, herbs and fruits on her 17-acre Calvert Farm in Rising Sun, said that she and her fellow organic farmers need to give the new regulations time, and be prepared to work with the USDA when problems arise. She said she is confident the small and close-knit world of organic farmers in Maryland will be able to work through any problems. Overall, she believes the new federal regulations are a good thing.

"We need to have reciprocity with other states and security knowing our product is on par with those of farmers in other states," she said.

Concentrated EQIP Signup Announced

The concentrated signup period for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) will be held Thurs., March 1, through Fri., March 30. This program is offered jointly by USDA's Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) and Preston County Farm Service Agency (FSA).

The purposes of EQIP are to provide flexible technical assistance to farmers who face the most serious threats to soil, water, air, and related natural resources, including agricultural land, grazing lands, wetland habitat, and forestlands. EQIP is intended to provide assistance to farmers complying with federal and state environmental laws. Assistance is also provided to farmers under the program in making beneficial, cost-effective changes to cropping systems, grazing management, land uses, or other needed measures. EQIP funds will be targeted at practices that address natural resource concerns related to livestock production.

EQIP is available to landowners, operators, and tenants. However, applicants other than landowners must provide proof of control of the land for the duration of the EQIP contract (a copy of the lease or a signed document from the landowner). Conservation practices shall not be completed prior to the notice of approval from the Preston County FSA Committee. If a conservation practice has been established, such as a spring development, and is currently under lifespan as a result of previous federal payments, the practice is not eligible for further payments under EQIP. The maximum payment limitation per "person" per fiscal year is $10,000. The maximum contact amount is $50,000.

Some of the practices that can be included in the 5- to 10-year EQIP contracts include livestock feeding pads, animal trails and walkways, livestock water developments, waste utilization, nutrient management plans, pasture division fences, rotational grazing systems, woodland fences, and stream crossings.

Both NRCS and FSA encourage interested producers to telephone the USDA Service Center at 304-329-1923 to schedule an appointment to apply for EQIP. This permits the staff to prepare aerial photocopies and necessary forms for application and to save time at the counter. Remember, the concentrated signup period is March 1 through March 30. The USDA Service Center is located at 300 Tunnelton Street in Kingwood.

Maryland Joins Project To Help New Farmers Succeed

Helping new farmers and "want-to-be" farmers successfully take over existing farm businesses or create new ones is the goal of a $1.7 million U.S. Department of Agriculture-funded project in which Maryland is participating. "Growing New Farmers: A Northeast Service Providers Consortium" will address the critical barriers facing people who want to farm in the 12 state region from Maryland to Maine.

"Regardless of the challenges they face we are finding that there are many people from all walks of life who are interested in operating a farm," said Valerie Gonlin, chief of agribusiness development for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. "These new and beginning farmers have a difficult time finding the resources they need to get started and succeed."

The New England Small Farm Institute, a non-profit organization based in Belchertown, Mass., was awarded the funds to work with over 30 partners, including universities, state agencies, and non-governmental entities, to identify a wide variety of new farmers and related service needs that are not being met.

Maryland's "Farm Link" program, which seeks to match individuals interested in becoming farmers with retiring farmers, has 42 individuals interested in becoming farmers and only six farmers who have indicated a desire to train someone to take over their farm business. "Farm Link" offers a wide range of informational and technical assistance services to help both groups make the transition successful.

"We know that there are many people who want to farm," said Kathy Ruhf, the project director and co-director of the Institute. "This project will provide them with informational, technical, natural and capital resources by creating new services and partnerships."

The project will build a resource and referral network, including a web site (www.northeastnewfarmer.org) for farmers and service providers to learn about new farmer programs. It will conduct three research projects on farm start-ups, farm tenure and farmer educational models. The project will offer professional development and a "mini-grant" program to foster innovative new approaches and will promote policy initiatives that reduce barriers to farm entry.

"The new consortium will really multiply the resources and ideas available to us to improve and expand Maryland's existing efforts," Gonlin said. "So much agricultural land in Maryland is being permanently protected through state and local preservation programs that as the population of experienced farmers declines we need to cultivate a new crop of farmers who have the knowledge and resources to succeed."

Organizations and individuals who provide or would like to develop services and resources to new and beginning farmers are encouraged to join the Growing New Farmers Consortium. A regional working conference on serving Northeast new farmers will be held March 28-30 in Albany, N.Y. For more information about the consortium, those interested may contact the Institute at 413-323-4531 or e-mail gnf@smallfarm.org.

February Is National Heart Month

Angina is a sometimes debilitating heart disorder that affects more than 7 million Americans. Each year an additional 350,000 new cases are diagnosed. The chest pain of angina occurs when the heart muscle is deprived of oxygen. Oxygen deprivation and resulting chest pain may be due to obstruction of the heart's blood vessels. Cholesterol deposits may accumulate in the vessels and decrease blood flow to the heart, especially in response to physical exertion or emotional stress.

Beta-blocker medicines are recommended, especially if the person has had a previous heart attack. Cholesterol-lowering drugs prevent heart attacks and reduce mortality. Daily aspirin has been shown to cut heart attack risk by a third in angina sufferers.

The school has been selected to be a Korean War Commemorative School. Principal Doug Gaither applied for this honor after being notified by the Department of Defense following his part in establishing a Vietnam Memorial Wall in the school foyer last year. The school would like to recognize those men from the Friendsville area who lost their lives in the Korean War by displaying a similar memorial on the same wall. Anyone who has any information on these men, is asked to contact Doug Gaither at the school. The information collected so far is limited, and any information would be "greatly appreciated." A dedication ceremony is being planned for the end of March. This year marks the 50th anniversary of "The Forgotten War."

The next Friendsville Dinner Theater is scheduled for Friday, March 9, Saturday, March 10, and Sunday, March 11. This year the show is titled "Clowns." They are looking for individuals or businesses who would like to place a complimentary ad in the dinner theater booklet. Anyone interested in placing an ad may do so by contacting the school at 301-746-5100.

Oakland Man Arrested For Firing Shots

After firing a series of shots inside the Brad Wolfe Apartments on High Street, an Oakland man was arrested Saturday on several charges.

John Matthew Friend, 24, was charged with reckless endangerment, destruction of property, disturbance of public peace, and possession of a controlled dangerous substance following the 5 p.m. incident, said authorities.

Oakland Police responded to a complaint of shots fired inside the building when Friend allegedly had been involved in an altercation with another tenant and fired a shotgun into the hallway ceiling.

Police reported that bystanders were able to remove the gun from Friend but he reportedly took another firearm from his apartment and continued to look for the tenant.

As Sgt. Roger Lewis arrived, Friend left the building carrying a loaded rifle. He then dropped the weapon as ordered and was placed under arrest. Police found a suspected marijuana cigarette on Friend during a search at the jail.

Man Receives 4 Years For Child Abuse Charge

Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced 43-year-old Henry Michael Stalnaker to four years in the Maryland Department of Corrections (MDOC) for a child abuse charge and to three months, concurrent, for a third-degree sexual offense, according to the state's attorney office of Garrett County.

Stalnaker was charged in July by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI), who conducted a joint investigation with child protective workers from the Garrett County Department of Social Services and determined that Stalnaker had had inappropriate contact with a juvenile on two occasions in June 2000.

Wendell James Yoder, 35, formerly of Salisbury, Pa., received a sentence of three years to the MDOC last week, after admitting that he had violated his probation, according to the report.

Yoder was originally sentenced to 15 years in the MDOC in 1991, after entering pleas relating to forgery and theft in nine separate

Bill To Increase School Library Funding Amount

A bill recently introduced in the Maryland General Assembly and co-sponsored by District 1A Delegate George C. Edwards would provide Garrett County public school libraries with additional funding of almost $10,000 for FY 2002 and every fiscal year thereafter.

The current funding level for Garrett County had been set at $19,170. The new amount is $28,755.

The bill would increase the funding level to the state board's operating budget from its current $3 million per year to $4.5 million per year to purchase for state school libraries "licenses for information databases appropriate for students from kindergarten through grade 12" and to establish a standard grants program to assist local school systems in improving their library media programs.

Edwards noted that the bill would provide the state board with more flexibility in spending options.

The bill has been assigned to the House Judiciary Committee.

Another school-related bill, House Bill 976, sponsored solely by Del. Edwards, is intended to repeal a law that currently requires public school bus drivers to observe a 50 mph speed limit and to, instead, allow them to travel at the posted speed limits.

Edwards stated that the legislation was requested by the School Bus Association, whose spokespersons contended that school buses would actually be safer traveling at the posted speed limits.

"This made sense to me," said Edwards, who explained that when most people are driving at or near the same speed limits on the highways, conditions are safer. He also noted that, especially in Garrett

GC Arts Council Asks For $10,000 County Funding

"Are we asking for too much...or too little?" asked Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) administrator Steve Schlosnagle, who met with the Garrett County Board of Commissioners this week to request a $10,000 allocation for the arts council be included in the county budget for the coming fiscal year.

Schlosnagle, flanked by supporters, told the commissioners, "We are talking about our local culture," explaining that, last year alone, GCAC helped make possible over 150 events or presentations throughout the county. "We've had a real impact on the community," he said.

The $10,000 request represents an $8,000 increase over the current year's county funding of the organization, and a number of arts supporters present this week reminded the county officials that the funding request amounts to less than three one-hundredths of one percent of the county's total budget.

GCAC member Tiddie Wheeler told the commissioners, "We constantly hear that Garrett County underfunds the arts. We need to be more in line with other places around the state."

Another GCAC member, Melodee Hill, reminded the board that literally thousands of hours of volunteer work is performed in association with the numerous cultural events. "This is not an exaggeration," she said. "Your financial support would help show them their work is significant."

Schlosnagle added that, fiscally speaking, "culture here has gotten the short end of the stick."

Susan Weisbrod, GCAC member and manager of

Commissioners Vote To Reduce Personal Property Tax By 15%

Garrett County Commissioners this week, after a 2-1 vote, have decided to reduce the personal property tax by 15%, a 5% increase over last year's rate of 10%. The new rate reflects a compromise between the three county officials, with motions made to keep the current rate of 10%, as well as a motion to increase the rate to 25%.

Commissioner Fred Holliday opted for the 25% rate, saying that such a tax break for small business owners in the county would "help the economic engine grow."

Holliday continued, saying, "I am a firm believer in investing in existing businesses in the county. We certainly spend a lot of money bringing in new businesses."

Holliday said the 25% rate would mean finding an additional $580,000 in the county budget, and since the commissioners have no estimates of projected revenue for the coming fiscal year, it would be risky, he said, to commit to that rate.

Holliday did, however, move to adopt the 25% rate but the motion was not seconded.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg favored maintaining the current 10% rate because, he said, "We would be shooting in the dark because our revenue projections are not in yet."

By state law, the tax rate must be set by March 1 each year.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel's compromise motion of setting the rate at 15% was seconded by Gregg and, in the final vote, was opposed by Holliday.

Prior to his motion, Beitzel stated, "Obviously, I clearly understand that business is the economic fuel that drives the whole engine and helps make all social programs possible. Although, I would be in favor of eliminating the whole tax, I'm too uneasy about our revenue situation to do that."

Local business owner Lynn Patton, Accident, was

Water Tax Rate Reduced In MLP and Loch Lynn

The Garrett County Sanitary District will reduce the ad valorem tax rate for its customers of the Mtn. Lake Park/Loch Lynn water system, according to Ronald W. Petrella, administrator.

The current water ad valorem tax rate of $.57 per $100 of assessed value will be reduced to $.03 for the upcoming tax year. This is a 95 percent reduction in the water ad valorem tax rate. The ad valorem tax rate of $.10 for the sewer system will remain the same. The new combined rate is $.13 compared to $.67 last year.

Petrella stated that the Sanitary District recently made the final payment on a $973,000 loan for the water system. The tax reduction is significant, and the savings will differ from customer to customer based on the assessed value of each property.

These rates are based on the county's current assessment method. The county will calculate tax rates based on 100 percent of the assessed value in the upcoming tax year. At 100 percent the combined ad valorem tax rate for water and sewer debt is only $.05 per $100 of assessed value.

Persons with questions may contact the Sanitary District at 301-334-1980.

SOME BELIEVE IT IS MASS INSANITY that some 275 folks of all ages took a plunge into the icy water of Deep Creek Lake on Saturday as participants of the third annual Deep Creek Dunk, sponsored by the Maryland State Police and various other law enforcement agencies. That 20-30-second swim in the 32-degree water raised over $50,000 to support Maryland Special Olympics. Uno Restaurant again hosted the dunk and provided a free meal to each of the dunkers. The group of brave souls is pictured above just moments before the dunk, which is pictured below. Officials spent two days cutting and removing ice from the lake in order to provide enough area for the dunk. Various awards were given to Dunk Partners (sponsors), as well as for the best costumes worn by some of the dunkers.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST opens this evening at 8 p.m. at Our Town Theatre. Touted as Oscar Wilde's masterpiece of modern comedy, the three-act play is filled with wit and wisdom and takes on the subject of bending the truth to add more excitement to life. But, alas, the deceptions lead to unfortunate results. The comedy is directed by Jane B. Avery, who noted that a post-play discussion will be held 10 minutes after curtain call for those who wish to participate. Performance times are March 1, 2, 3 and 8, 9, and 10 at 8 p.m., and March 4 and 11 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 and reservations may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. Shown in the above photo, seated, left to right, are cast members Kellee Gemola as Gwendolyn Fairfax, Delrae Kildow as Lane, and Chelsea Stuck as Cecily Cardew. Standing, same order, are Jon Wildesen as John Worthing, Fred Jacoby as Rev. Chasuble, David Wheeler as Merriman, Tammy Bellzel as Miss Prism, and Mikey Virta as Algernon Moncrieff.

Garrett's Promise Earns Grant For Wireless Project

A $25,000 grant has been awarded to Garrett's Promise — An Alliance for Youth that will be used to help support and upgrade existing computer centers with wireless technology at the Southern High School library and the Accident branch of the Ruth Enlow Library. The funding, which is being matched by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families and the Local Management Board, is one of eight such grants awarded by the Michael and Susan Dell Foundation to Garrett County and seven urban areas across the country.

Garrett's Promise won the grant by proposing to provide 12 computer workstations for Garrett Tech Connect sites at the SHS and Accident libraries. The proposal ties in with the agency's goal of promoting safe places and structured activities for youth, and was also designed to increase access to health insurance through the Maryland Children's Health Program (MCHP).

The Local Management Board will provide funds for the wireless community network's first spur, which will connect the Sailor hub at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland to the Accident library. This is regarded as a marked improvement over the current T-1 physical connection, which is described as very slow and does not provide sufficient bandwidth for the volume of users in all 14 public schools in the county.

"The Michael and Susan Dell Foundation wanted us to demonstrate how the money would be used, not only through providing the infrastructure itself, but also outlining how that infrastructure would be used to fulfill the 'Five Promises' of the America's Promise program," said America's Promise fellow Crystal Shaffer, a local member of the AmeriCorps program. "One of those promises, 'providing a healthy start for a healthy life,' will be fulfilled as the Garrett Tech Connect sites are used to provide on-line registration for the children's health program, and to train staff at those sites in MCHP program guidelines."

"We want to decrease the ongoing maintenance costs by setting up the infrastructure for a wireless network," commented Susan Athey-Oxford, president and CEO of the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. "Many of the public and private nonprofit organizations in the county are struggling to include telecommunications access fees in already lean budgets. This is an opportunity to demonstrate immediate cost savings through the establishment of a demonstration wireless network project and to provide modern computers to existing tech centers."

As the feasibility and cost savings of the wireless technology project are demonstrated, Garrett's Promise anticipates that the remaining public library branches, the county's schools, the Garrett County Community Action Committee, the Garrett County Health Department, and many other public and nonprofit entities will take advantage of the wireless Internet connection.

"The Dell Foundation representative said they were very interested in our project," said Athey-Oxford. "They thought it was very innovative and integrated resources well." The other seven Dell Foundation grants went to the cities of Philadelphia, Pa.; Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Norman, Okla.; Sioux Falls, S.D.; South Hampton Roads, Va.; and Spokane, Wash.

"Through this support, the Michael and Susan Dell Foundation is showing a strong commitment to the future of this nation — our children and our young people," said Peter A. Gallagher, president and CEO of America's Promise. "With the help of these grants, a community will be able to provide the resources a young person needs to make it from childhood to successful adulthood."

America's Promise was founded after the 1997 Presidents' Summit for America's Future, where Presidents Clinton, Carter, Ford, and George H.W. Bush, and Nancy Reagan representing her husband, challenged the country to make children and youth a national priority. Secretary of State and retired General Colin Powell was the founding chairman.

The mission of America's Promise is to mobilize people from every sector of life to build the character and competence of youth by fulfilling the organization's Five Promises. Those Promises are expressed by a national commitment to provide every American child with: ongoing relationships with caring adults, Safe places with structured activities during nonschool hours; a healthy start and future; marketable skills through effective education; and opportunities to give back through community service.

WAL-MART OPENS -- To the cheers of faithful legions, the global economy strode into Garrett County yesterday morning as a 24-hour Wal-Mart Supercenter opened in Oakland. On hand for the grand opening was Oakland mayor Asa McCain, left, who welcomed the newest addition to the local business community. The ribbon-cutting ceremony is shown above, as associate Ken Sumpter performs the honors while store manager Shannon Moon, left, and co-manager George Jones, right, hold the ribbon. The 154,450 square foot store has a combined full- and part-time work-force of approximately 300 associates who have already dedicated over $30,000 to area non-profit programs. Checks were presented during yesterday's grand opening ceremonies to Swan Meadow School, Dennett Road, Crellin, and Broad Ford elementary schools, Northern and Southern high schools, the Garrett County United Way, Hospice of Garrett County, the Garrett County chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters, Maryland Special Olympics, the Oakland Train Station, the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited, the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Our Town Theatre, the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary, and the Southern Rescue Squad, as well as the International Children's Miracle Network charity. With annual sales of nearly $200 billion, Wal-Mart operates over 3,000 stores in the United States and hundreds more overseas.

Preston Couple Injured During Rt. 42 Mishap

A Terra Alta, W.Va., couple were injured in a single-vehicle accident near Friendsville last Thursday afternoon, Feb. 22, according to the Maryland State Police, McHenry barracks. One of the pair, Mary Fulk, 75, remains hospitalized this morning in stable condition at Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

The accident occurred at approximately 1:26 p.m, when a pickup truck operated by Albert Fulk, 76, slid on slick pavement on northbound Friendsville Road just over a mile south of Friendsville. Fulk's 2000 Chevrolet Silverado traveled across the southbound lane and struck a tree along the road.

Both Fulk and his passenger, Mary Fulk, were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also assisted on the scene.

Mary Fulk was transferred to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was initially admitted into the Intensive Care Unit.

No charges were filed in the accident, which the MSP attributed to the weather and road conditions.

Fund-Raiser For Ill Child Brings In Over $4,600

"Cuts for Chianne," a fund-raiser spearheaded by local beautician Kim Sanders, was held on Feb. 17 and was judged a resounding success by Sanders and other organizers. The unique event was held in order to help defray the expenses of a family with a child battling leukemia. A check for $4,660 was presented to the family earlier this week, Sanders said, who also reported that she was thrilled by the outcome.

"I thought we might be able to raise about $1,500," Sanders said. "When we totaled everything up, I couldn't believe it."

Sanders decided to hold the benefit when she learned that Chianne Bosley, a 2-year-old from Cumberland, was diagnosed with leukemia. Sanders had met the child and her parents, Cami and Darrin, at a gathering of parents who have children with Down syndrome. Sanders and her husband Tim are the parents of a son with Down syndrome, Cameron, who turned 1 in December. Chianne, 2, also has Down syndrome.

"It wasn't long after we met that Cami called me and told me about the leukemia. It was devastating for them," Sanders said. "And I could hardly imagine what they were facing. I just had to do something for them."

Children with Down syndrome are more susceptible to developing leukemia, according to the families. Chianne has undergone a number of chemotherapy treatments at Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va. Physicians informed Darrin and Cami last week that the disease is now in remission, although the child must still undergo more chemotherapy and spinal taps. Her condition will be monitored for years following the rest of the scheduled treatments.

"It's been very hard, but she's doing well," Cami said.

"She's pretty tough," Darrin said.

The couple said they were overwhelmed by the efforts of Sanders and others, and were stunned by the amount of money raised.

"This is just amazing," Cami said. "Kim and all these people who helped, and all the people who came to it — we just can't thank everyone enough."

The family's medical insurance is covering much of the hospital charges, but in order to get the treatment, the baby is required to be at the hospital every month and to stay for six days each time. This has put a hardship on the family, as both parents have taken leaves of absence from work to tend to Chianne.

Sanders rallied the help of nearly all local beauticians and shops, and she received donation after donation from many local businesses. (A thank-you advertisement listing the donors appears in today's issue.)

"I couldn't believe how people jumped to help me," she said. "Everyone I asked helped out, and other people I hadn't asked came to me to offer their help or to give donations. It was wonderful."

HAIRCUTS, MANICURES, AND MASSAGES were given to well over 500 people recently at "Cuts for Chianne," a fund-raiser organized to benefit the family of a sick child. Chianne Bosley, a resident of Cumberland, has Down syndrome, and was diagnosed with leukemia last fall. Kim Sanders, a local beautician and also the mother of a baby with Down syndrome, met Chianne and her parents at a support group meeting. When she found out about the leukemia diagnosis, Sanders organized a unique fund-raiser to help the family with expenses. "Cuts for Chianne" was held on Feb. 17 at the Oakland armory. At $5 each, guests were able to get a cut, a manicure, and/or a seated massage. Over 500 came through the doors for the event, which also included a number of raffles and drawings. Sanders garnered the help of over 20 beauticians, manicurists, and massage therapists who volunteered their time. A check for $4,660 was presented to the Bosley family last week, according to Sanders. See story. In the photo above, the beauticians are pictured as they ply their talents. Shown cutting hair, from left, are Tammy Kitzmiller, Tracy Slagle, Laura Lower, Sanders, Rhonda Sisler, and Sandy Lavell.

COMMON BONDS — Empathy and understanding are exchanged intensely among parents, and perhaps even more so among parents of children with special needs. When Kim and Tim Sanders met Darrin and Cami Bosley of Cumberland, the two couples already had a common bond, as each has a child with Down syndrome. Some months after their first meeting, Chianne Bosley was diagnosed with leukemia. Shaken by the news, especially since all Down syndrome children are more susceptible to the illness, Kim Sanders decided to do what she could to help the family out. Her efforts, along with many volunteers and contributors, resulted in a gift of over $4,600 to the Bosleys. See story. Pictured from left are Darrin, Cami, and Chianne Bosley, Kim Sanders holding son Cameron, Tim, and Morgan Sanders. (The Sanderses also have a son Kody, who opted to skip the photo.)

Baltimore Man Charged With Attempted Theft

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation has been notified that a Baltimore man wanted in connection with the attempted theft of a 4-wheel all-terrain vehicle near Grantsville last fall has been apprehended by the Baltimore County Police Department. A GBI felony warrant charging attempted theft was served on the subject by that agency when BCPD officers took him into custody several weeks ago.

Ronald Allen Francisco, 28, allegedly tried to take a 1985 Kawasaki 4-wheeler, valued at $2,200, from outside a home in the 11000 block of National Pike during the night of Oct. 6. The homeowner, who had come outside to investigate some suspicious noises, reportedly witnessed Francisco attempting to load the ATV into a U-Haul rental truck after a chain securing it to a signpost had been cut. Francisco and two other subjects fled the scene at that point, and were stopped a short time later in Allegany county by Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the LaVale barrack.

A trial is pending in Garrett County District Court. Francisco's current incarceration status in Baltimore was not available.

In other recent police arrest activity, the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force arrested Sarah Regina Mattingly, 19, Loch Lynn, recently after a search of her residence uncovered marijuana and drug paraphernalia. The search stemmed from a search and seizure warrant. Mattingly was charged with possession of marijuana and marijuana paraphernalia, and was subsequently released on her own recognizance.

DWI Arrest

A Swanton man was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) early Sunday morning after a sheriff's deputy stopped his truck when he witnessed a near-accident in Oakland.

Steven Eric Sweitzer, 25, was observed failing to yield right of way to a school bus at the intersection of Oak and Third streets. A traffic stop of Sweitzer's 1992 Ford pickup was initiated after the near-collision, and he was charged with DWI and subsequently released into his mother's custody.

Two Sentenced In Vehicular Homicide Cases

Garrett Connty District Court Judge Thomas Lohm this week sentenced two persons convicted of homicide by motor vehicle while intoxicated. Justin Ray Warfield and Amanda Lynn Mayle each pleaded guilty to the charges in District Court in December. For each, a second charge of driving while intoxicated was determined to merge into the homicide count.

Warfield, a 26-year-old high school math teacher from Frederick, received a sentence of one year in the Garrett County Jail, which was then suspended. A fine of $4,000, with $2,000 suspended, was also imposed.

Warfield is on supervised probation for 18 months, with conditions including alcohol abuse education, abstinence and completion of 200 hours of community service. He began a term of home confinement this month and must continue until June 15, 2001.

Warfield was charged last February with the homicide charge, as well as driving while intoxicated and related motor vehicle offenses, after Maryland State Police completed an investigation into the fatal motor vehicle accident that occurred January 8, 2000, along Mayhew Inn Road. It was determined that Warfield, operating a Jeep, had attempted to pass a second vehicle on the snow and ice-covered road. The Jeep slid on the road and struck a ditch and embankment, causing it to overturn. Two rear-seat passengers, Brandon Teague Chesnick, 27, and Stacey Anne Shewbridge, 23, both of Frederick, were ejected, with Chesnick receiving fatal injuries. Shewbridge was treated at Garrett Memorial Hospital and Matthew Barton Hull, 29, Frederick, the front-seat passenger, was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for head injuries.

Warfield, also treated at Garrett Memorial for minor injuries, was found to be intoxicated at the time of the accident.

In the second case, Judge Lohm sentenced Mayle, 20, Oakland, to one year in the Garrett County Jail, with all but 30 days suspended. After that, Mayle will be on supervised probation for three years, with conditions to include abstinence, substance abuse counseling, and community service. She will also be subject to seven months of home confinement after her jail sentence.

Mayle was charged by Oakland City Police in August with the homicide and driving while intoxicated charges, as well as other minor traffic offenses, following an early morning fatal accident along Liberty Street. Officers determined that Mayle, traveling south on Liberty Street, swerved off the road to the right and struck a utility pole. The right front-seat passenger, Brandy April Talbot, 15, was treated at Garrett Memorial Hospital then transported to Ruby Memorial, where she died the following day of head injuries.

Officers conducted field sobriety tests on Mayle at the scene and charged her with DWI. Following Talbot's death, the original DWI charge was dismissed and officers charged her with homicide and related motor vehicle charges. Subsequent testing of Mayle's blood confirmed that she was intoxicated at the time.

State's Attorney for Garrett County Lisa Thayer Welch commented on the cases following the proceedings: "These are very difficult cases, as we can never accomplish what everyone wants, which is to have the fatally injured person back. When a defense attorney indicates his or her client's desire to enter into a plea agreement, many factors are considered. This includes the strength of the state's case, both factually and legally, the court's history in sentencing these kinds of cases, the record of the defendant, and all of the purposes for sentencing. Although Judge Lohm does not have a history with these charges, we know he is cognizant of sentences other judges impose, as we are."

Welch continued, saying, "In reviewing motor vehicle homicide while intoxicated cases, I found that only one defendant received a sentence to the Maryland Department of Corrections exceeding 18 months. That defendant had caused the death of a toddler who was a passenger in a second vehicle that the defendant hit, not a passenger in his own vehicle, and that defendant had prior DWI/DUI violations. All other jail sentences imposed have been in the 6-12-month range. That is where the sentences in these two cases fall. The Maintaining Consistency...

With today's issue of The Republican newspaper we are proud to begin our 125th year of publication. Every single week since the first week of March 1877 this rag has hit the streets of Garrett County and arrived in mailboxes all over the country. While the size, writing styles, and technology have all changed dramatically over those many years, the very existence of The Republican has been constant now for 6,448 straight weeks.

We human beings need a certain amount of consistency throughout our lives if we are to remain physically, intellectually, and spiritually healthy. For every thing that remains constant, there are dozens that do not.

Certainly life in 1877 in Garrett County was strikingly different from life today. Transportation options were limited to horse-and-buggy (or just the horse), trains, walking, and a bicycle or two. Public education was provided in one-room school houses. There were no televisions, no radios, no stereos, no microwaves, no power lawnmowers, no tractors, and no cellphones, let alone lightbulbs. There was no air conditioning and no electric refrigeration. In most homes there was no electricity, for it wasn't until the following year (1878) that Thomas Edison founded the Edison Electric Light Company. Numerous now-conquered diseases, as well as trauma from accident, claimed hundreds of thousands of lives, and thus the average life span was a couple decades shorter than it is today. Average incomes were probably about 10% of what they are today. Deep Creek Lake was still nearly 50 years in the future. Shopping for goods, and only the basics, was done at small, family-owned businesses in the few Garrett County towns. What a difference today, with yesterday's opening of the Oakland Super Wal-Mart.

Indeed, life in many ways today is far better, but with the rapid pace of today, undoubtedly we have also lost substance and value that are a part of a far simpler way of life. The daily treadmill is going so fast that we really don't have time, or don't take the time, to "stop and smell the roses."

Through it all, though, we are pleased to produce a product that, although original every single week, is a constant in the lives of our citizens. Most of our residents depend on us to provide that constant, and in the process, keep them informed about the many things that are going on around them in their community, provide deserved recognition for their accomplishments, and support or oppose the many ideas, plans, and goals of the decision makers. We look forward to this, our 125th year, and the next 125 years after that.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

House Bill 391 is designed to eliminate the elective office of County Treasurer and make it an appointive one controlled by the state. The same proposals are being made for Judges of the Orphan's Court, et al.

Appointment to a public office using public money is an arbitrary action which causes revolutions and must never be tolerated. This is what elections and democracy are all about. Major decisions such as this must be made by those affected. Are you listening Mr. Hafer?

To the Editor:

Last week we received a new County Extra magazine for the month of March. I just want to let Doctor Andrew Mance, Judy Forbes, and whoever else that may be involved know how much I enjoyed the article in the magazine. I think it is very exciting to pick up a magazine so widely distributed to find our tiny part of the world mentioned in it.

This is the third time this month this happened to me. I was browsing through some Field and Stream magazines in a local dentist's office waiting to take a friend home, and I ran across a record trout caught at Deep Creek Lake. In another magazine I was browsing through, I found an article on the quail population increase in this area.

I just want you folks to know how exciting this is to run on to articles in magazines written about local areas and people. What's really exciting is to accidentally run on to them as I have. It certainly made my day special anyway.

To the Editor:

Recently in the Cumberland-Times newspaper I read an article concerning nursing home patients who are given $40 a month in Maryland for their personal needs. To me this is a disgrace. I realize they may not receive much money, but $40 doesn't buy much. Some states pay as little as $30, but others pay up to $100 a month for their personal expenses.

I believe that the state of Maryland should pay at least $75 a month. The salary of our governor is the second to the highest paid salary to any governor in the United States. I understand there is a large conflict between our governor and William Donald Schaefer, the comptroller, about the confiscation of numerous cartons of cigarettes amounting to thousands of dollars. Mr. Schaefer wants to sell these cigarettes and use the money for a good cause, and our governor wants to burn the cigarettes. The money could be used for a good cause; there would not be any sense in burning a legal drug such as cigarettes. It would not stop anyone from smoking because cigarettes are easy to get a hold of. The amount of money that selling the cigarettes would produce would be in the range of $400,000 to $500,000 or more.

To the Editor:

A recent letter to you describes true friends as hard to find. Truer words were never spoken about one of the finest friends I have ever had and, I believe, Garrett County has ever had. I am speaking of Roscoe "Rocky" Swiger.

I first met "Rocky" when I was about 12 years old, helping deliver flowers for Weber's. That big gruff voice scared the heck out of an easily intimidated sixth grader, but his better half, "Barb," assured me that his bark was far worse than his bite. We crossed paths many times after that at Weber's, as part of the Southern Rescue Squad, at elections, and at countless funerals where "Rocky" seemed to be a pallbearer for everybody. All you had to do was call him an "old man" at Agway and he would show you how old he was by throwing those sacks of feed around like a man 40 years his junior. We spent far too much time trying to rid his hay fields of those darn groundhogs that really didn't hurt anything, but managed to entertain us quite well.

Moving away from Garrett County was a hard thing to do, and it was people like Rocky who made it that way. I still tell stories about him and I hope I always will. Thanks, Rock. Heaven sure gained a good man.

To the Editor:

I am a junior at Northern High School. I would like to express the many things to those who are fortunate enough not to receive an education at this wonderful school. First and foremost is the agenda books and no-bookbag rule. I am not sure if this is a problem at Southern or not, but from what I hear, it has its own inconvenience. Why we have them is still beyond me. If it is in reference to Columbine, a little book or being unable to carry a bookbag is not going to stop a student from pulling a gun on another student.

I have just found out our school is spending around $10,000 on a plasma screen for our new gymnasium. Pretty exciting if you ask students who play indoor sports, perhaps, or their parents. Maybe they would like to spend that money on something the school really needs, such as heat. We walk around our school bundled up in coats and layers of clothes just to keep warm.

We have quite a few faculty, administration, and guidance personnel here who can completely ruin the .00001% of pleasure we get to come serve our eight-hour-a-day sentence at the local education jail. How one person (no names mentioned) still has a job after ridiculing students, harassing the less fortunate, and doing his specialty of hall monitoring, I have yet to figure out.

We have some rules here that are completely outrageous. My favorite one is four minutes between classes — one second late you must go get a tardy slip. Some of our teachers allow us one bathroom break per month — per month. It is to those girls' misfortune if they are having feminine problems and walk in late because they already used their monthly pass. Sorry, no one cares to go get a late slip. The other day a close friend of mine, who has diabetes, had very low blood sugar. She had to beg and plead with the teacher to let her go to the office. That shows how much teachers really care about the students.

It is a given that students are going to judge each other. Since when, however, are teachers supposed to do the same? They pick out certain students, label them "trouble-makers," and from that point on they throw 20 monitors your way. Students no longer have the first-amendment right of freedom of speech. Yet we have our teachers who decide the rules do not apply to the entire school, just the students. A select few teachers think it is all right to use racial slurs toward others, and get away with whatever they want to say. Best of all are the privileges coming with being daddy's little boy. There are a couple of students, and we all know who they are here at Northern, whose father works in the school. Therefore, they are granted whatever right they want. Rules are rules, and they should apply to the entire school, no matter what age, position, color, or relationship.

There are things that happen throughout this school that cause many problems among the students. So what is the solution? Peer mediation. You go into a little room and sit with two other students considered mature enough to solve your problems, although they are of the same age and think the same things. Best yet, it is confidential, but by the end of your next period everyone knows.

Everyone cries and gets upset because they are leaving high school and entering the "real world." Maybe they have gotten more out of what I perceive as four years of relentless, redundant, and ill-advised pressure, and rules that are unnecessary for our further education.

To the Editor:

I have never seen a single episode of "Who Wants to be (or Marry) a Millionaire," nor have I ever seen "Survivor," and "Temptation Island" is not something that would interest me. I do admit that a few years back I saw a couple of the Jerry Springer shows and a couple of professional wrestling shows just to see what they were all about. It soon became apparent to me that they were very much like politics, with a lot of show up front and money changing hands behind closed doors with, as usual, the people as unwitting victims of a bad joke. I rarely watch TV and, then only if something really outstanding is presented on, say, the History Channel or the Learning Channel.

I believe it was Newton Minnow who said, "Television is a vast wasteland," and I believe that George Orwell foresaw this development when TV was in its infancy. Jacques Barzun, the 93-year-old author of From Dawn to Decadence, which was published last year, has very eloquently, albeit pessimistically commented on society.

World history has been very cyclical, and folks, I believe we are at, or near, the bottom in our societal development. Being an optimistic pessimist, however I have hope that we will pull ourselves back up.

We have to start in our own back yards with the cleanup work that must be done and I mean that literally as well as metaphorically. We must first set the proper priorities for ourselves and our representatives in government. We must then demand that they adhere to those priorities in the decision-making process, hold their feet to the fire, so to speak.

Complaining about what's going on in other parts of the world is a ploy and a cop-out on the part of politicians and other so-called leaders. Let's get something going here at home to show how it's done. Let's start right here in Garrett County.

I would very much like to see some letters sent to The Republican in response to this one.

To the Editor:

A comparative negligence bill introduced in the Maryland Senate, Senate Bill 483, spells trouble for our state economy. If legislators bow to the wishes of the personal injury lawyers' lobby and change Maryland's long-standing liability standard, consumers, taxpayers, and small business owners will end up footing the bill.

Adoption of a comparative negligence standard means it will be easier to sue small businesses, clog Maryland courts with frivolous lawsuits, and will result in higher prices for goods and services. No one wins with this bill, except the personal injury lawyers who will make more money as they drain our economy.

Sincerely,
Janna Naylor

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Commissioners:

The Republican newspaper indicated you are going to raise the salaries of certain highly paid employees. If you have the funds to consider wage increases, please consider the county employees who are on the low end of the wage scale also.

I work at one of the local trash collection sites. I have no benefits and am allowed to work only an average of 56 hours every two weeks.

View From My Window

by Jeffrey Wilson

ASH WEDNESDAY

Last evening the faithful of my congregation gathered to have ashen crosses smeared on their heads and to hear those daunting words, "Remember woman, remember man that thou art dust and unto dust thou shalt return." Mortality was the message of the day.

That message was all the more poignant for me because we had buried my Aunt Mary Louise, my father's sister, the day before. She had suffered with Alzheimer's, and had been in a home for nearly three months. We knew she was going to die, but when the end came, I found myself in shock.

As a pastor I have observed the phenomenon in others. No matter how certainly imminent death may be, somehow it always comes as a thief in the night. There is a sense of surprise, even of amazement. Family members walk numbly away from the deathbed. Someone they loved is dead, and something inside each of them has died too.

Perhaps that is the source of the surprise, not that the one who is dead has died, but that those who aren't dead have died too, not completely, but some part of them has died, never to live again. Perhaps it is that reason, too, that Ash Wednesday services are not nearly as well attended as those at Christmas or Easter.

This culture of ours is, at once, engaged to death and yet always denying death. It is someone else who dies, never we. When it is our turn to die, we assume we shall know nothing about it. Then someone we love dies, and it is we too who die. We weep, yes, for that one who died, but also for ourselves.

John Donne said it more poetically, "...never send to know for whom the bell tolls: it tolls for thee." His prose lines are too poetic for us to get the point. What he says sounds beautiful somehow. But when I ask for whom the bell tolls, and the message comes back, "Jeffrey, it tolls for thee," then I understand. The power of it strikes me full.

My aunt was a great lady, that is, she was both great and a lady. She possessed intellect and will, which combined into a fierceness at times which witnessed to our shared Scottish heritage. She loved beauty and economy equally so that she embodied an aesthetical thrift. She knew how to be in charge, and she fulfilled numerous responsibilities in the larger family, at church, and in the community as well. She commanded the respect of those who knew her.

It is the fashion in our time to celebrate all the ways that a person who has died still lives among us, in memories, in the contributions that person made to the community, in offspring who bear into the future that person's loves and commitments. In the Victorian era the opposite fashion held sway of focusing solely on the ways that a person had died. Our way tends to denial and the Victorian way tended to obsession.

Healthy grief and a healthy sense of mortality demand a balance of the two. Death and life are commingled in both life and death. We do well to affirm life while looking death straight in the eye. That is easier to do, of course, for those who — like my aunt — died in full faith. Faith makes sense of life and death alike.

After the Ash Wednesday service at my church, we go to a room in the back and plant tomato seeds. What St. Paul wrote to the Corinthians long ago is that you have to die in order to be raised up from death. Death is the only door to resurrection.

Lovely to consider is that four and five months from now we shall carry sumptuous pink, orange, red, and purple fruits from our gardens to our kitchens. Sometimes the tomato will not make it to the kitchen before it is celebrated in the best way to celebrate a tomato, by eating it.

We buried my aunt yesterday, a seed in the cold, cold ground, there to await the day of quickening. To dust and ashes we must all return, but dust and ashes are prelude to glory.

Report Says State Economy Robust, But Some See Clouds On Horizon

by Kate Alexander
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland's economy is healthy and robust despite signs of a national economic downturn, according to an independent analysts released this week.

But some state officials cautioned that the future might not be so rosy and they repeated fears that the governor is being "overly aggressive" in his spending during these good times.

The National Conference of State Legislatures announced this week that Maryland was one of 22 states with revenues that are currently running above the forecasted levels for the current fiscal year.

The updated analysis of the states' budget activity also shows that Maryland is enjoying steady growth and a hefty budget reserve, unlike a growing number of states that are experiencing the fallout of a possible economic contraction.

Maryland's neighbors were less fortunate, according to the report. It listed Delaware and Virginia among the hardest-hit states and said they both are facing budget cuts as a result.

"Most state budgets in recent years have purred like the engine of a luxury car," said California state Senator Jim Costa, president of the National Conference of State Legislatures. "Now state legislatures are assessing the wear and tear and making the necessary adjustments."

Maryland should be making those adjustments now, said some officials in the state, who are worried about Gov. Parris Glendening's proposal to increase spending by 8.8% in FY-2002.

"We should recognize the economic warning signs flashing across the country and acknowledge that (the national economic downturn) could affect the Maryland economy as well," said Minority Leader Sen. Martin Madden, R-Howard County.

Glendening's proposed 2002 budget exceeds the state's economic growth rate of 6.2%, as well as the 6.95% increase recommended by the state's spending affordability committee, Madden said.

The General Assembly's non-partisan fiscal analyst also expressed his concern.

While the next two years appear fiscally solid, the economy's present strength does not preclude trouble in the future, said Warren Deschenaux, director of the Office of Policy Analysis.

"We're in a good fiscal posture right now, but we don't know to what extent a slowdown in the national economy will affect that," said Deschenaux. "If you look ahead, there is legitimate reason to be concerned."

That concern comes from the possibility that a national economic downturn could constrain federal spending, which contributes heavily to the Maryland economy.

But Glendening is confident that the state is on solid economic footing for the long-term, said spokeswoman Raquel Guillory. That assessment is underscored by the state's top-level credit rating and recent independent analyses that have lauded Maryland for its fiscal management.

Guillory also said that much of the increased spending has been allocated to one-time capital projects, and if the state's economy turns sour, those projects can be delayed.

The report released this week, "State Fiscal Outlook for 2001," was an update to the conference's annual study of the states' fiscal health, which was released in December prior to the start of most legislative sessions.

This update found that states with strong revenue growth tended to be in the West and the Mid-Atlantic States experiencing shortfalls were primarily in the South and the Great Lakes region, areas that are heavily reliant on the manufacturing industry.

Homicide Cases

suspended sentence for each defendant acts as a deterrent to future criminal behavior, and the period of probation is a constant reminder to them of what they have caused.

"When a case is very emotionally charged for the family of a victim, especially when family members are witnesses in the case, there is some relief in not having to put everyone through that process also."

Welch commented also on the issue of underage consumption obvious in the Mayle case: "Early in the investigation, Officer Fratz of the Oakland City Police Department concluded that certain crimes related to the accident occurred outside the city limits. He referred the investigation to officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) of the purchase of alcohol by a person under the age of 21 or for a person under the age of 21. That matter remains an ongoing investigation. Although a number of theories have been put forward as to where the alcohol was purchased or by whom it was furnished for Amanda Mayle's and Braudy Talbot's consumption, there has not been sufficient evidence to charge anyone."

To the Editor:

On February 18, while racing for fame and fortune, Dale Earnhardt died in the last lap of the Daytona 500. It was surely a tragedy for his family, friends, and fans. He was 49 years old with grown children, one of whom was in the race.

I am new to the NASCAR culture, so much of what I know has come from the newspaper and TV.

He was a winner and earned everything he had. This included more than $41 million in winnings and 10 times that from endorsements and souvenir sales." He had a beautiful home and a private jet. He drove the most sophisticated cars allowed, and every part was inspected and replaced as soon as there was any evidence of wear. This is normally fully funded by the car and team sponsors. Today, there is no TV station that does not constantly remind us of his tragic end, and the radio already has a song of tribute to this winning driver. Nothing should be taken away from this man; he was a professional and the best in his profession. He was in a very dangerous business, but the rewards were great.

Two weeks ago seven U.S. Army soldiers died in a training accident when two UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters collided during night maneuvers in Hawaii. The soldiers were all in their 20s — pilots, crewchiefs, and infantrymen. Most of them lived in substandard housing. If you add their actual duty hours (in the field, deployed) they probably earn something close to minimum wage. The aircraft they were in were between 15 and 20 years old. Many times parts were not available to keep them in good shape due to funding.

They were involved in the extremely dangerous business of flying in the Kuhuku Mountains at night. It only gets worse when the weather moves in, as it did that night. Most times no one is there with a yellow or red flag to slow things down when it gets critical. Their children where mostly toddlers, who will lose all memory of who "Daddy" was as they grow up. They died training to defend our freedom.

I take nothing away from Dale Earnhardt, but ask you to perform this simple test. Ask any of your friends if they know who was the NASCAR driver killed on February 18. Then ask them if they can name one of the seven soldiers who died in Hawaii on February 18.

Dale Earnhardt died driving for fame and glory at the Daytona 500. The nation mourns. Seven soldiers died training to protect our freedom. No one can remember their names and most don't even remember the incident.

To the Editor:

In his address to Congress and the nation tonight (Tuesday, Feb. 27), President George W. Bush stated that he wanted to reduce the national debt by $2 trillion.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, the overall national debt (debt held by the public and debt held by government accounts) is $5.7 trillion. At the end of fiscal year 2000, debt held by the public amounted to $3.4 trillion. A $2 trillion reduction will not fully retire either of the above.

President Bush stated that not all of the debt could be paid off within a 10-year period. According to the CBO, $28 billion would be available to the Treasury, but not applied to debt redemption because the remaining debt: will have not yet reached maturity; will not be available for repurchase at a price that the Treasury would be willing to pay; or will be held in nonmarketable form (for example, savings bonds).

For fiscal year 2000, the interest on the national debt amounted to $362 billion. By eliminating the national debt, the interest on the national debt will also disappear.

I believe that $28 billion debt held by the public is far more palatable than a $1.4 trillion debt. I believe that the $362 billion paid a year in interest can be better used by Congress to provide the necessary services that the American people demand and require. I would like to see America stay the course and eliminate the national debt as proposed by former President Clinton and the Democrats.

President George W. Bush reminds me of a used car salesman — he's making misleading statements that are going to come back and haunt me down the road.

To the Editor:

The Deep Creek Lake Policy & Review Board has, against increasing public opinion, given preliminary approval to allowing three 70-foot excursion boats on Deep Creek Lake.

This self-serving approval is in direct contradiction to the warnings and recommendations incorporated in an independent report, commissioned at taxpayers' expense in 1938, regarding the carrying capacity and future of Deep Creek Lake.

Allowing boats larger than some barges in the Chesapeake Bay would seriously contribute to shoreline erosion and to potential private dock and watercraft damage. Safety remains a serious issue both to the passengers of these boats and to innocent recreational boaters and fishermen. Without the current resources to respond to an emergency situation of the magnitude involved with boats of this size, taxpayer dollars would most probably be required.

There is also a matter of scale. Deep Creek Lake is a relatively narrow lake, and 70-foot boats with their speaker systems and lighting would stand out like amusement park attractions, creating noise and environmental pollution while contributing to the decay of a quiet, pristine mountain lake.

A public meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, March 17, tentatively at Garrett Community College, to gain feedback and input from interested and affected residents, visitors, sport-fishermen, and environmentalists. We urge your readers to attend this hearing and express their opinions and concerns.

The Policy & Review Board is charged with the protection and preservation of Deep Creek Lake as a natural resource and recreational area. In this matter, they have usurped their authority.

Sincerely,
Ed & Karen Scheideman

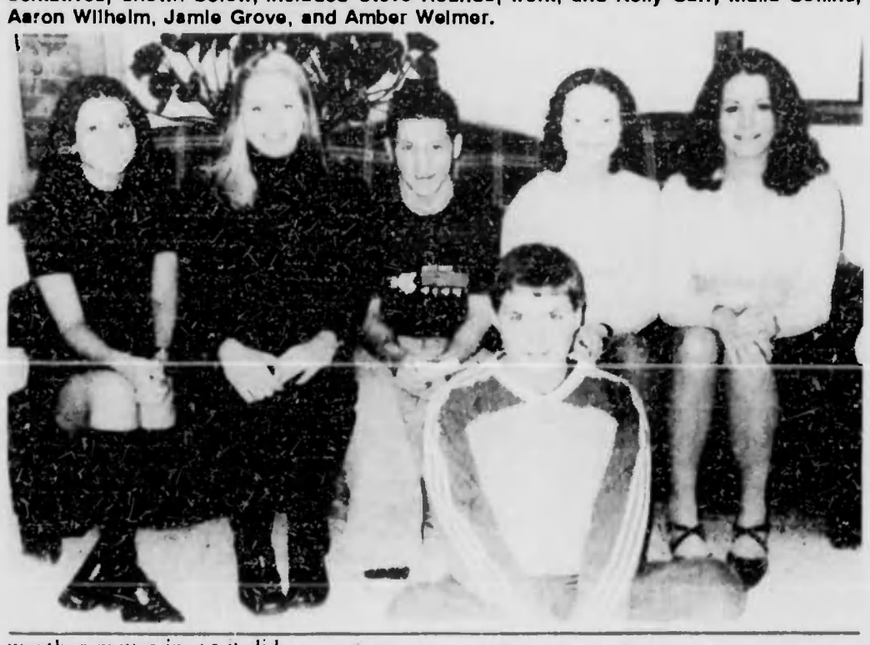
ATTEND STUDENT COUNCIL LEGISLATURE — Students from Northern, Southern, Fort Hill, and Beall high schools took an active role in the Maryland Association of Student Councils' Legislative Session, held recently at Perry Hall High School in Baltimore. The legislative sessions are designed to teach student council members proper parliamentarian procedure through interactive exercises and games, including skits and Jeopardy. Participants then vote on certain bills at hand in Maryland, and bills that pass with a simple majority are actually lobbied by the Maryland Association of Student Councils at the Maryland General Assembly. Pictured above are the Southern High participants at the event — from the left, in the front row, are Sara DiSimone, Lyndsie Rush, Katie Richter, and Sabrina Scheffel. In the back row are Brian Crabtree, Brian Fike, Allison Ulino, and Laura Hollingsworth. Northern's representatives, shown below, included Steve Rounds, front, and Kelly Carr, Maila Collins, Aaron Wilhelm, Jamie Grove, and Amber Welmer.



DEEP CREEK BREWING CO. SUPPORTS SPAY/NEUTER AWARENESS MONTH — Garrett County Humane Society was recently presented with a check for $700 from the management of Deep Creek Brewing Company to aid in the fight against pet overpopulation during the month of March, designated as Spay/Neuter Awareness Month. The funds were generated through the Western Maryland Brews and Blues Festival held last spring. The pub's contribution will pay for 28 spay/neuter certificates for animals adopted through the Garrett County Animal Shelter, co-sponsors of the awareness program. Discount certificate incentives will be available throughout the month for county residents with pets. More information about sponsoring or receiving $25 spay/neuter certificates may be obtained by calling a humane society volunteer at 301-334-2699 or the animal shelter at 301-334-3553. present for the board's decision and told them he thought that small business, "especially in Garrett County, is overtaxed and overregulated," saying that business is subject to an "archaic and antiquated" tax system.

Patton's wife and business partner Linda asked the commissioners if the larger businesses in the county were subject to the same tax rate imposed on the smaller businesses. Gregg responded to that, saying that tax incentives are given to larger businesses to locate in the county but that he was not opposed to that practice since they employ a lot of people.

Gregg also agreed with Patton that the tax is "regressive" and that he and the other commissioners would work toward making it more progressive.

The personal property tax is imposed on certain businesses and includes any capital equipment purchases made by the business.

Fire Causes

State Fire Marshal Steve Wendling, the cause of the fire remains under investigation. Some 30 firefighters responded to the scene and brought the fire under control in about 10 minutes. There were no injuries reported.

Wendling said that the house was equipped with smoke alarms, which activated properly.

Also responding to the scene was the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

H.T. Chen & Dancers To Open Garrett Lakes Arts Season

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) will present a program embodying the aesthetics of western modern dance with the cultural heritage of Asia when H.T. Chen & Dancers perform at Southern High School on Friday, March 16, at 8 p.m.

Founded by artistic director H.T. Chen, H.T. Chen Dance Company Inc. is currently celebrating its 23rd anniversary season. HTCDC, which is based in New York City's Chinatown, is the nation's largest Asian-American dance institution, with three components in NYC: H.T. Chen & Dancers; the Arts Gate Center, which was founded in 1980 and serves as a community arts school; and the Mulberry Street Theater, which was founded in 1988 and was Chinatown's first performing arts venue.

The program will feature excerpts from the company's repertoire, including a preview of a work-in-progress, Meditations of a Drunken Peacock, which will premiere in New York City in May 2001. The work is being developed simultaneously by dance majors at the Fiorello LaGuardia High School of the Performing Arts in New York City.

The program will also feature excerpts from Bun Dan (2000) and Warriors of Light (1998). In Bun Dan, H.T. Chen and his company celebrate the dramatic interweaving of generations and cultures that occurs in Asian immigrant families and their experiences of struggle and hope. Bun Dan is also the Chinese word for the bamboo shoulder poles used throughout Asia to carry heavy loads here used to represent the cultural "burdens" immigrants often bear. During this segment of the program, various members of the community from all ages and backgrounds will be involved in the dance.

The program will conclude with an excerpt from Warriors of Light, an abstract journey, evoking imagery of the human spirit as it seeks to attain enlightenment, and includes martial arts throughout the piece. In Buddhism, monks are considered "warriors" whose mission in life is to fight ignorance and suffering through their teachings, according to Chen.

Chen, who has resided in New York City since 1971, was born in Shanghai and grew up in Taiwan. He holds an M.A. in dance education from NYU, a diploma from the Juilliard School Dance Division, and a B.A. from the University of Chinese Culture in Taiwan. He also studied at the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance and was a scholarship student at the American Dance Center. Chen has received numerous awards, including grants and fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Jerome Foundation, New York State CAPS, and Meet the Composer. His professional credits include choreographing and performing in off-Broadway productions, television, and the concert stage.

The company has established a history of educational programming and concert touring, and has performed throughout the United States, Hong Kong, Taiwan, China, and Europe. Highlights of recent residencies by Chen & Dancers include the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts (Washington, D.C.), Lincoln Center Out-of-Doors (New York City), the Dance Center of Columbia College (Chicago), Theater Artaud (San Francisco) and Painted Bride Arts Center (Philadelphia). Chen & Dancers has earned recognition for serving both urban and rural communities across the nation with its culturally based arts programs.

Chen & Dancers will also perform a lecture demonstration titled "Bamboo Oracle" during their two-day residency in Garrett County for Northern and Southern Garrett high school students. The interactive program incorporates live per-formance, narration, and audience participation.

Tickets for this program may be purchased starting March 1 through the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. Admission is $12 for adults and $2 for youth 18 years and younger.

Chen & Dancers performance at Southern High School is sponsored by Wisp Mountain Resort Hotel and Conference Center in partnership with Sincell Publishing Company. GLAF season sponsors for 2001 are Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, Deep Creek Mountain Resort, and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation. All GLAF events are funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council, an ageney funded by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL DINNER THEATRE at Friendsville Elementary School will be held the weekend of March 9-11, with Friday and Saturday performances at 7 p.m. and a Sunday matinee at 1:30 p.m. This year's offering will be a lively and colorful musical titled "Clowns," and will be performed by the adults and youth of the community. Tickets are $6 each, which covers a sit-down carnival dinner, followed by "non-stop action of razzle dazzle, singing, dancing, drama, and audience participation." Persons are asked to telephone the school at 301-746-5100 to make reservations.

Civic Club Of Oakland Sponsors Art Competition

The GFWC (General Federation of Women's Clubs) Civic Club of Oakland recently sponsored a youth art exhibit at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. With the assistance of the art instructors at the middle and senior high schools in both the northern and southern districts, pieces of original drawings and weavings were entered into a local contest to determine first-, second-, and third-place winners.

Volunteers from the Garrett County Arts Council's board of directors came forward to serve as judges for the contest. Judges were Carl Heselbach, who formerly operated a gallery in the Ellicott City area and is employed at Garrett Community College, and Sue Thomas, a former art teacher. The winners were selected from a total of 12 entries in each class (six from each district) and based primarily on the artist's originality.

The winners in Class 1 (grades 6-8) are: first place, Julie Nixon, Northern, for "Linear Landscape" using markers and based on a study of Van Gogh, second place, Jessica Crosco, Southern, for "Own Imagination" using fluorescent temperas, and third place, Julie Nixon, Northern, for "Pop Art" using oils, pastels and markers based on an art history study and Andy Warhol.

The winners in Class 2 (grades 9-12) are: first place, Sarah McWilliams, for "Model" using chalk; second place, Jessica Brenneman, Southern, for "Still Life," a scratchboard rendering, third place, David E. Wolf, Southern, for "Imagination" using acrylics.

In addition to the visual arts, awards are presented for youth poetry and short stories. Writings of Natalie Domenick and Laura Himebaugh (Category 3, grades 7-9) and Sarah J. Teets (Category 4, grades 10-12) have been entered in this area. The purpose of the writing contest is to stimulate those skills of youth from grades 1 to 12, to recognize those skills for outstanding achievement, and to enhance healthy self-esteem through participation.

Prize awards by the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland will be presented at the annual awards assemblies held at the schools in the spring.

These entries for visual arts and literature awards will now be entered in the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs (MFWC) youth art contest, the winners of which will be announced during the annual convention in Annapolis, April 21-23. Winners at the MFWC level will be notified and invited to attend the awards presentation program at the convention. Attendance at the convention is not a prerequisite to receiving an award.

Dorothy Cathell and Helen Earles serve as co-coordinators of arts programs for the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, and were assisted by Roberta (Bobby) Andersen this year.

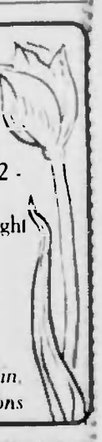
Thank You



The family of Michael Gibbons would like to thank everyone for their comfort, support, flowers, cards, and prayers during the loss of our daughter, Heather Michelle Brown, May 3, 1982 - February 21, 2001.

During her brief time here among us, she brought so much happiness and made a difference to so many. She will be greatly missed, but we are reminded of the verse "WHAT THE HEART ONCE OWNED AND HELD IT SHALL NEVER LOSE."

Mini-Strokes May Lead To Strokes

Medical experts have known for some time that mini-strokes (transient ischemic attacks or TIAs) can be an early warning of an impending full-blown stroke. The symptoms are similar to those of a stroke and include numbness, difficulty speaking, and blurred vision. TIAs disappear within [illegible], usually, don't cause permanent damage.

A new study reported in the [illegible] of the American Medical Association indicates that people who experience TIAs have a 25% greater risk of having a real stroke within 90 days. During the study about 10% of participants had full-blown strokes. Half occurred within 2 days after a TIA. This is more than 50 times the stroke rate of persons who do not have TIAs. Because of this study it now is recommended that persons with TIAs have medical examinations on an expedited basis. Persons whose symptoms disappear should contact their doctor.

Works Of Former Garrett Art Student On Exhibit At GCC

The Art Gallery of Garrett Community College has slated an opening reception for an exhibition of original prints titled "Reflection of Self" by former student Forest Harman for tomorrow night, Friday, March 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. The reception is open to the public, as is the solo exhibition, which will run through the end of the month.

This is Harman's first solo exhibition, which includes 27 original prints done with a variety of techniques, including relief prints, etching, and intaglio. His artwork is described as having a "gritty and hard-edged urban style," and he has spoken of his own work as a representation of his inner need to repeatedly explore his personal sense of being.

Harman attended GCC from 1995 to 1997, during which time he received an introduction to printmaking and undertook his first experiences in the various printmaking media. He studied at the school of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston from 1997 to 1999, and will graduate from Ohio University, Athens, with a bachelor of fine arts degree this spring. He first decided to pursue a career in art while a sophomore at University High School in Morgantown, W.Va.

Harman has entered a print in the juried undergraduate show at Louisiana State University that is currently under way, and has participated in two invitational printmaking portfolio trades organized by Abner Jonas, Mary Manusos, and Josh McManus of Ohio University. He has also been commissioned to produce sculptures for private collections.

This exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, and on evenings and weekends during special events. For more information, interested persons may contact the GCC Art Department at 301-387-3024.

REFLECTIONS OF SELF is the title of a Garrett Community College Art Gallery exhibition of artworks of former GCC student Forest Harman, which will be on display through the end of March. "Concept," shown here, depicts how the story of one's life is written in the lines of the face. An artist's reception is slated for tomorrow night, Friday, March 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. The Art Gallery is open Monday through Friday and during special events.

Ethos Percussion Group Concert Slated At FSU

The Ethos Percussion Group will perform at Frostburg State University on Sunday, March 4, at 3 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. The concert is part of FSU's Cultural Events Series.

As part of the performance, FSU's Collegium Musicum will present "Missa Luba" in a special guest appearance. The "Missa Luba" is a Mass in Congolese (Zairian) style for mixed chorus with tenor solo and percussion accompaniment.

The Ethos Percussion Group uses instruments that range from drums from all over the globe to marimbas to Swiss cowbells to Brazilian scraped percussion, with Chinese opera gongs and plastic tubing thrown into the mix. Their repertoire includes compositions in traditional, contemporary, and global styles. With a decade of ensemble experience, the group has developed a distinctive sound that the Washington Post calls "spellbinding."

Dedicated to advancing the percussive arts on stage and in the classroom, the group has been much in demand around the country, according to an FSU spokesperson. They have performed at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall, the Kennedy Center, and the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Individually, members Joseph Gramley, Eric Phinney, Yousif Sheronick, and Michael Sgouros have performed or recorded with a variety of orchestras, including the American Symphony and the Manhattan Chamber Orchestra. Students at the Juilliard School, the Berklee College of Music, and the University of Maryland, among others, have benefited from the group's percussion expertise. Ethos also sponsors the popular "Bing! Bang! Boom!" educational program for children, and has received an educational residency grant at the Children's Museum of Manhattan.

The ensemble's recordings include Ethos Percussion Group and The Persistence of Past Chemistries. They have also recorded arrangements of works by Georges Bizet and Franz Liszt with the Philadelphia Virtuosi Chamber Orchestra.

In a review of the group's international debut at London's Wigmore Hall, England's Musical Opinion raved, "...in terms of programming, musicianship, and technical ability, Ethos is a winner."

A pre-performance open discussion designed to increase awareness and understanding of percussion repertoire and its performance, practice, and history will be offered at 2 p.m. and is open to the public.

This performance is presented in association with the FSU Department of Music: Yamaha Corporation, Band & Orchestral Division, and authorized Yamaha Dealer Music & Arts Center Inc., with local affiliate Kauffman Music.

A dinner theatre special in partnership with Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant is available with the performance. The special includes a five course meal with tax and tip included. Transportation is available.

For information, reservations, and menu selection for the dinner theatre, persons may contact the Lane Center Box Office at 301-687-4411, Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Based on availability, tickets may also be purchased at the PAC box office one hour prior to curtain.

Canada's Cuillin Will Perform At Frostburg State

The Celtic group Cuilhn will come to Frostburg State University on Saturday, March 10, at 8 p.m. to perform its distinctive blend of traditional folk and rock and roll in the Lane Center's Alice R. Manicur Hall.

Frostburg's own Greg Latta will open for Cuillin. The concert is free and open to the public.

Based in eastern Canada, the band consists of six multi-instrumentalists and vocalists with a collective background in Scottish, Irish, and rock music. Members include: bassist Dave Hoare, lead singer songwriter guitarist Dave Carmichael; bagpiper/whistler pianist guitarist Matt MacIsaac, fiddler/pianist Mairi Rankin, percussionist/pianist Stefan Morin, and guitarist Seth Fraser. Their individual backgrounds are as eclectic as their instruments. Hoare and Carmichael have won acclaim for their songwriting talents, while MacIsaac won the Junior World Bagpipe Championship in 1997 and Rankin danced in the U.S. tour of the wildly popular "Spirit of the Dance."

For more information, persons may call the Lane Center Information Desk at 301-687-4411.

Advocates For Poor Tell State To Wake Up To Their Plight

by Maya Jackson
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — A car accident left Jerry Lynch of Rockville with a glass eye and no job.

He qualifies as a poor, single, disabled adult, so the state gives him a monthly grant. But it's only half of his $250 monthly rent. To pay the difference, to buy clothes, and to buy food, he looks to "friends" for help.

"It's not enough to survive," Lynch said of the grant.

He and hundreds of other poor residents and advocates want legislators to know their stories, so they gathered in front of the State House Tuesday, chanting "Wake up, Maryland" in an annual rally sponsored by the Center for Poverty Solutions.

Busloads of church members and students from schools across the state cheered and waved signs in support, all urging legislators to help fight poverty in one of the richest states in the country.

Under Gov. Parris Glendening's proposed budget, disabled residents like Lynch would receive $53 more a month. That still wouldn't pay the rent, but it is enough for Lynch to fight for, talking to legislators who have the power to cut the small, but useful increase.

"It's not enough, but we're grateful for the increase," said Frank Callahan, a Harford County pastor. "It's in the budget, and it's our job to keep it in the budget."

For low-wage taxpayers with children, there needs to be an increase in the refundable state earned-income tax credit, advocates said.

Still, advocates thanked Glendening for some measures: budget increases for the Maryland Emergency Food Program and the in-classroom breakfast pilot program, which provides breakfast to all students in selected schools.

Affordable housing got short shrift, however.

"Uncle Parris didn't fund it this year," said Ed Heim of Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland.

So, many advocates are asking Glendening to add $2 million for housing programs in any supplemental budget he submits.

"The governor did the right thing, but there are a few things outstanding," said Robert Hess, president of the Center for Poverty Solutions. "He's still got some work to do."

"Poor people are watching," Hess said, adding that poor people vote. "So if you fail this year, it could cost you."

Glendening was in Washington at a National Governors Association meeting and didn't attend the rally.

Alvin Collins, the governor's deputy chief of staff, told the crowd, "We're listening to you and we know the issues." But, he warned, "thousands of others are bringing issues that are just as impressive."

3000 MILES TO GRACELAND

Rated R - Running Time: 2:06 - Released 2/23/01

One can certainly see the MTV influence in Demian Lichtenstein's crime drama 3000 Miles To Graceland; it's busy, colorful, and full of cool music, but its characters are superficial and broadly drawn. Lichtenstein, a pop music video director who has worked on the small screen with the likes of Sting, Eric Clapton, Queen Latifah, and Gloria Estefan, obviously has the chops to craft fast action and imagery, but his desire to expand from the 5-minute mode results in an overlong, overindulgent melodrama that wears the viewer out with too many stimuli and too little depth. It features well-known performers who don't do badly with what they have, but the script by Lichtenstein and newcomer Richard Recco is as shallow and flashy as its director's treatment of it.

The film involves a group of five professional criminals who rob a Las Vegas casino together during International Elvis Week. In order to blend in, they all arrive dressed as Elvis. The group's two leaders are sideburned, lip-snarling, hip-swiveling ex-cons Michael (Kurt Russell, dusting off his costume from the 1979 TV movie Elvis) and Murphy (Kevin Costner), whom we meet as they book a room in which to hole up afterwards. While there, Michael meets a single mother named Cybill (Courteney Cox) and her 11-year-old delinquent son Jesse (David Kaye). The robbery, while successful, results in many law enforcement officials and bystanders, and one gang member, dead. Back at the motel, tensions erupt, more killing occurs, and Cybill finds out about Michael's participation in the crime. Soon the situation devolves into an every-man-for-himself scenario, with Murphy, Michael, and Cybill all chasing each other toward Canada, each possessing the gymbag full of cash at one point or another, only to meet up for a spectacularly flashy and shallow confrontation in Mt. Vernon, Washington.

While I haven't been thrilled with the work of Kevin Costner, Kurt Russell, or Courteney Cox in the last several films I've seen them in, I must say they do better here. Costner is not usually cast as the villain, it's at least a change of pace to see him playing someone who doesn't save the day, but his super-bad-guy character is hard to swallow. On the other hand, he never once pitches a fastball — a definite plus. Russell and Cox manage to eke out a reasonable relationship; Cox does attempt a modicum of actual acting. The out-of-place participation of people like David Arquette (probably only present because wifey Cox got him on the film) and rapper Ice T, who plays an anonymous gunman not introduced until the last ten minutes, further shows director Lichtenstein's connection to the music biz. These guys are not here for their acting ability, they're here for marketing. Another fish out of water is comedian John Lovitz, whose distracted, self-conscious style, straining not to be funny against his every instinct, is noticeably jarring. Finally, the two U.S. marshals assigned to the case (Kevin Pollak, Thomas Haden Church) are such regular guys, we almost want to see them succeed in catching the crooks, who, while ostensibly the protagonists, are not particularly likeable in any way. Interesting directing choice.

3000 Miles is packed with action, color, time-lapse photography, and even a gratuitous music video at the end (performed by Russell in full Elvis regalia). But writer/director Lichtenstein's direction has not matured from the frenetic style of his other work, and the result is a case of cinematic overkill. ★★★½

Rams Tame Panthers, Will Meet Alco For Region Title

Taking another big step toward College Park and the Maryland State 1A basketball semifinals last night was the Southern High School boys' varsity, as the Rams defeated Hancock, 59-41, at Allegany High School to earn a berth in the 1A West Region title game against Allegany this Friday evening. The win followed a pair of victories over county rival Northern (see other story) and was the sixth in a row for Coach Tom Bosley and his squad, whose overall record is now 31-3. The Rams are seeded first in the west region.

Last night's contest with Hancock was not pretty, as there were a number of turnovers and errors, but the Rams overcame the Panthers' scrappiness to record the 18-point win. Hancock came into the game with a 9-15 record after having edged Beall in a quarterfinal match-up.

Bryan Panther paced the Rams' scoring, as he finished with 15 points, and also pulled down a game-high eight rebounds. Josh Sharon also reached double figures with 10 points. Ryan Ewing and Joel Helbig added eight and seven points, respectively, as Helbig saw more action than usual because of the illness/absence of Bryson Meyers.

The Rams held a 10-to-12 point lead at the ends of the first three quarters. After an 8-8 tie, the Rams scored the final 10 points of the first quarter to finish that period with an 18-8 advantage. The next two quarters were played about evenly, with Southern leading 28-19 at halftime and 42-30 after three stanzas. The Rams then out-scored the Panthers by a 17-9 margin in the final period.

Both teams shot under 50% for the game, with the Rams connecting on 22 of 46 shots, and Hancock netting 14 of 38. Southern's effort at the foul line was sub-par, as the Rams converted 15 of 27 shots, well below their recent average of over 70%. The Panthers made good on 10 of 15 foul shots.

Chris Wills and 6-6 center Brandon Fling led Hancock in scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively, and Fling also grabbed six rebounds.

"We really didn't play well at all," Coach Bosley said. "We made a number of poor decisions and we didn't take very good care of the ball. But I credit Hancock for their persistence and aggressiveness for a lot of that. They knew that this would give them their best chance to beat us."

There was a total of 39 turnovers in the game, with Southern committing 18 of them.

Bosley said that he was pleased with the off-the-bench play of Ryan Ewing, Mike Saturday, and Joel Helbig. "Ryan and Mike gave us some excellent minutes, and Joel did a good job covering the inside where Bryson (Meyers) would normally be," he said. "This was important, because we will really need for Joel to play well at the same spot against Allegany."

Meyers is expected to be out for the rest of the post-season because of a severe case of mononucleosis.

"Despite our sloppy play, I'm not disappointed, because we won the game," Bosley said. "Now we can concentrate on Allegany."

The Rams defeated the Campers in both regular-season meetings, 54-28 in Oakland and 47-42 in Cumberland. But Bosley is wary of the third encounter.

"The result of the first game was not indicative of the caliber of their team," he said, "and the second one on their floor was a great game. So we expect them to play very well the third time, but we will be well prepared too."

The site and time of Friday's game was not yet announced by presstime today, but it is anticipated that it will be played at Fort Hill in Cumberland.

A BATTLE OF BIG MEN — It was a physical contest last night as the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team took a Maryland Class 1A West Region semifinal playoff victory from the Hancock Panthers, 59-41. Key to the Ram victory was the effort of reserve center Joel Helbig (#42), shown above using his muscle advantage to get a short bank shot off over 6-6 Hancock center Brandon Fling, while SHS teammates Ricky Reams (#11, left) and Chad Panther (#10) follow the action. Filling in for regular starter Bryson Meyers, sidelined due to illness, Helbig scored seven points and gave the Rams a strong effort underneath. Southern takes a 21-3 record into tomorrow night's Region Championship contest against Allegany (16-6) at a time and site yet to be determined. Local radio station 92.3-FM will announce the details as they come available, and will be broadcasting the game live for local fans to follow. The winner will earn a ticket to the State Tournament semifinals at the University of Maryland's Cole Field House in College Park. Photo courtesy of Steve Folckman.

RAMS TOP HUSKIES IN PLAYOFFS - For the second time in four days, the Southern High boys' varsity hosted the Northern Huskies on Monday and, for the second time in four days, came away with a 10-point victory. Friday's contest was a regular-season make-up game, and Monday's clash was a 1A West Region Tournament encounter. The Rams' 54-44 victory advanced them to last night's semifinal game against Hancock. In the photo above, Northern's Jensen Long (#44) extends his long arms in an attempt to pull a rebound. In the center foreground is teammate Aaron Mitchell. At left is Southern's Chad Panther, who ultimately got the ball in this particular exchange. Other Huskies identifiable in the photo are #24 Jeremy Frazee, #34 Josh Swandol, and #14 Greg Speicher, who was the top scorer for the Huskies. Below, Southern's Panther goes high in the air on another rebounding effort, with Northern's Speicher in his face. From left are Southern's Ricky Reams, Swandol of Northern, and Josh Sharon of Southern (#35). See stories for details. Photos by John McEwen.

Rams Defeat Huskies Twice, Advance In 1-A Tournament

A number of weeks ago the members of the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team crushed their county rivals, the Northern Huskies, by a record high 50-point margin, and the game was played on the Huskies' floor. So when it came time for the Huskies to travel to Oakland for the return contest last Friday, the Rams were a heavy favorite.

However, a dramatically improved Northern team, led by second-year coach Paul Edwards, came to town to prove that the score of the first meeting was not an accurate indication of the Huskies' abilities. The Rams won the game, 53-43, but for most of the contest the difference in the score was five or fewer points.

By the luck of the draw for the 1A West Region playoffs, the Rams and Huskies met each other just three days later, and again the contest was close, but the Rams recorded their second 10-point win in the two-game series, 54-44, Monday evening to end the Huskies' season and send themselves into last night's semifinal game against Hancock (see separate story).

The Huskies concluded their season with an overall record of 9-14, while the Rams upped their overall mark to 20-3 with the pair of victories. The Huskies were 1-9 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League standings, and the Rams finished in second place in the WMIL with an 8-2 mark.

Coach Tom Bosley of Southern got a balanced scoring effort from his team against the Huskies in Friday's game, the last regular-season contest for both teams, as four Ram starters finished in double figures. Junior guard Ricky Reams led the way with 13 points, senior Jamie Bosley had possibly his best game of the season and finished with 11 points, and Bryan Panther and Josh Sharon each connected for 10 points. Also turning in a strong performance was guard Chad Panther, who grabbed nine rebounds and scored seven points.

The Rams led throughout the game, but the Huskies stayed close until the final minutes. Southern was up by four, 21-17, at the end of the first quarter, led 28-24 at halftime, and was ahead 36-30 after three periods.

The Huskies, paced by senior guard Greg Speicher, cut the Rams' advantage to just two points, 43-41, midway through the fourth quarter, but Bryan Panther responded with six straight points for Southern. The Rams also connected on nine of 10 free throws down the stretch, including eight in a row, to secure the win.

Both teams finished with 19 field goals, but the Rams made good on 19 of 23 free throws (82.6%), while the Huskies converted just three of 10 attempts.

Speicher was the only Husky to finish in double figures with 16 points. Aaron Mitchell netted eight.

The Southern junior varsity concluded its season with a 47-39 victory in the preliminary game, giving the Rams and Coach Jim Bosley a 19-1 mark for the campaign. Dennis Tressler scored 19 to lead Southern, while Rico Alston netted 18 to pace the Husky jayvees.

Bryan Panther, who had a mediocre game for the Rams in Friday's contest, provided an outstanding performance in Monday's playoff contest, as he shot nearly 70% from the floor, finished with 18 points, and grabbed eight rebounds. Ten of his points were scored in the second quarter.

The game was almost a repeat of Friday's contest, as Coach Edwards' plan was to slow down the pace of the game and use a 2-3 zone against the Rams. The strategy was effective through much of the game, as the Huskies led by a pair, 12-10, at the end of the first quarter and trailed 30-24 at intermission. The Rams slowly gained control in the third quarter and led by 10, 44-34, going into the final stanza. The Huskies could get no closer than seven points in the fourth quarter.

The continued outstanding defensive play of the Rams resulted in a number of steals, while they also excelled offensively in turning the ball over only five times for the entire game. But it was once again from the foul line that the Rams secured their margin of victory, as the Huskies finished with a 19-18 lead in field goals. Southern converted 18 of 24 free throws (75%), while the Huskies had but two attempts from the charity stripe and missed both of them.

Also reaching double figures in scoring for the Rams was Reams with 14 points, while Sharon finished with eight. Chad Panther recorded seven assists and six rebounds.

Speicher led the Huskies with 13 points, and Jensen Long recorded a game-high 10 rebounds. Jeremy Frazee and Josh Swandol finished with nine and eight points, respectively.

The Rams went on to defeat Hancock last night at Allegany High School, 59-41, and will face Allegany in the 1A West Region championship game this Friday.

Love, Daddy & Mommy

Happy Birthday!
His name is Jason and he's 28.
To wear these sissy shoes,
he just can't wait.

Tim was always a man In the know,
But today he lost his get up and go.
It's all because of one special day.
The one he prayed would go away.
So if today he seems kind of low,
It's because he's turned the BIG 4-0!

Who could this be?

Happy Birthday Lee

A SCORING MILESTONE was reached Tuesday during the Southern High girls' 89-19 demolition of visiting Clear Spring in the opening round of the Class 1A West Region Tournament. SHS guard Ashley Liller (#21, pictured above with Sam the Ram) broke the 1,000-point career barrier and the junior's teammates applauded their playmaker during an impromptu halfcourt ceremony; from the left are (#25), Becca Flanagan (#55), and Autumn Uphold (#31). Liller scored 20 points in the first half alone, then relinquished her floor position to a fellow Ram for the remainder. Flanagan is shown at the right tossing up a bank shot from the corner of the lane for two of her seven points, as Reeves, left, and Liller await the result. Southern and Northern square off in the semifinal tonight at Fort Hill.

Rams, Huskies Both Win; Stage Set For SHS/NHS Battle Tonight

Semifinal Action Tips Off At 7 p.m. In Cumberland

The stage is set and the roles cast for a David vs. Goliath playoff battle tonight at Fort Hill when the scrappy Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team squares off against its powerhouse Southern High counterpart in a Maryland Class 1A West Region Semifinal. Both squads advanced past the quarterfinal round Tuesday evening on their home floors, as the 18-5 Rams pounded Clear Spring by an eye-popping 70 points, 89-19, while the 12-11 Huskies battled with Westmar to take a 32-28 win.

Southern muddied Clear Spring's chances from the outset by running up a 34-4 lead after just one quarter of play. The Rams' onslaught continued as SHS went on a 55-15 run over the remainder of the contest, taking a 53-7 lead at the half and a 73-8 advantage as the final period opened.

Thirteen Rams made it into the scoring column, led by a 20-point performance by guard Ashley Liller. The junior, who scored all her points in the first half, broke the four-digit scoring plateau to finish the contest with 1,001 points in her SHS career to date. She also dished out four assists and snagged five rebounds, while teammate Robbin Gregg netted 12 points, Gina Reeves tallied 11, and Jennifer Bosley scored 8. Senior forward Kate Dugan crashed the boards for 10 rebounds. Clear Spring (3-20) was led by seven points apiece from Beth Sabina and Allison Gozora.

Northern's two-bucket victory over Westmar was a hard-earned effort, with the evenly matched Huskies and Wildcats clawing at each other for a solid four quarters. NHS led 8-7 after one period and 16-13 at the half, but Westmar came on strong in the second half and mounted a 10-0 run in the early minutes of the third quarter. The Huskies responded with a 9-2 run of their own as the period drew to a close, and the stanza ended with the squads locked at 25-all.

Northern junior forward Bridget Frazee and her teammates had ice in their veins as they coolly connected on a number of clutch free throws in the closing minutes. Frazee all but clinched the victory when she hit a 1-of-2 to put the Huskies up by four points with less than 30 seconds to go.

Frazee had a fine performance on the night, scoring nine points and hauling down 15 rebounds. Heather Lander hit for eight points, and Jolene Brenneman had five points. Northern's hustling full-court press put the brakes on the Wildcats' offense, and Natalie Sloan scored 11 points to lead Westmar (6-17).

Tonight's semifinal contest has an interesting subplot to it, as longtime SHS head coach Don Stemple will be leading his Rams against the Huskies of first-year head coach Alisa Rugg. Stemple coached and mentored Rugg during her years as a standout player for the Rams' hoop program in the mid 1990s.

The 7 p.m. cross-county playoff meeting will be broadcast on both 92.3/WWHC-FM and 104.5/WKHJ-FM, with John Hill and Monty Pagenhardt providing the play-by-play and color commentary. Paul Mullan's pre-game coverage will begin at approximately 6:40 p.m., with the Huskies profile airing on "The Train" while KHJ's broadcast will feature the Rams.

REGIONAL WRESTLING CHAMPS - The 1A/2A West Region Wrestling Tournament was held Saturday in Hagerstown, and when the final match was completed, six of the 13 weight division champions were from Garrett County and, as a team, the Northern Huskies successfully defended their regional championship. Three Huskies and three Southern Rams, pictured here, claimed first places in their respective weight classes. Pictured above left, Northern High School's Pete Stein battles his way to a first place in the 119-pound division. He is pictured here controlling Ed Asbill of Walkersville, and in the finals he pinned Cory Legget of Williamsport. Above center, Southern High School's Nick Sines clinches Brian Crowe of Beall and finishes with a 9-4 decision to win the 135-pound title. Above right, undefeated Mark Wolf of Northern earns points against, and eventually pins, Harry Baker of Smithsburg. Below left, John Hayhurst of Southern, also undefeated, has his way with Matt Allen of Williamsport in the final round of the 189-pound division and wins by a 9-0 decision. Below center, Northern's Jeremiah Guard is pictured on top of Brandon Keller of Middletown. Guard went on to earn an 8-1 decision and first place in the 140-pound division. Below right, John Hayhurst's brother Chris controls Joey Lagos of Linganore and eventually pins him to claim the 103-pound division crown. Nine members of the Huskies' team and four Rams qualified for this weekend's Maryland State 1A/2A Tournament, which will begin tomorrow at Western Maryland College in Westminster. Huskies Repeat As Region Champs, Rams Place Fourth

For the third consecutive year, the Northern High School wrestling team captured top honors at the Maryland 1A/2A Regional Tournament, held this year in Hagerstown, and will be sending nine wrestlers to this weekend's state tournament at Western Maryland College in Westminster.

The Huskies finished with 177 team points, as three members of Coach Scott Stough's team earned individual titles, five earned runner-up honors, and one placed third. The top four finishers in each weight class advance to the state meet.

Meanwhile, Garrett County's other entry, the Southern High Rams, earned a respectable fourth place in the 17-team tourney, and also produced three regional champions, plus one fourth-place finisher.

The Rams, coached by Kurt Lear, amassed 94.5 team points to place behind Northern, Williamsport with 152, and Urbana with 99.5. Finishing in fifth place was Smithsburg with 86 points, followed by Walkersville with 82.5, Francis Scott Key with 81, Beall with 75.5, Fort Hill with 73, Middletown with 56, South Hagerstown with 48, Linganore with 19, Catoctin with 18, Westmar with 10, and Allegany, Brunswick, and Boonsboro each with no points.

Earning individual titles for the Huskies were Pete Stein in the 119-pound division, Jeremiah Guard at 140, and undefeated Mark Wolf at 171 pounds.

Stein was crowned champion when he pinned Cory Legget of Williamsport in 1:22, Guard earned an 8-1 decision over Middletown's Brandon Keller in the title bout of his weight class, and Wolf out-pinned Harry Baker of Smithsburg in just 49 seconds to win the final clash in his weight division.

Placing second for Northern were Blake Huber at 112 pounds, Danny Ganoe at 125, Kris Knox at 145, Brandon Kamp at 152, and Trey Brenneman at 275, while Darric Kamp finished third in the 130-pound division.

For Southern, Chris Hayhurst, Nick Sines, and John Hayhurst were all regional champions. Chris Hayhurst pinned Joey Logas of Linganore in 5:27 in the final bout of the 103-pound division, Sines topped Brian Crowe of Beall, 9-4, in the title bout of the 135-pound division, and undefeated John Hayhurst topped Matt Allen of Williamsport on points, 9-0, in the finals of the 189-pound division.

It was the second regional title for Stein, Guard, and Wolf of Northern, and John Hayhurst of Southern.

Placing fourth for the Rams was Shawn Shiflett in the 140-pound division.

Half of the 26 regional championship finalists were from Northern, Southern, and Beall.

Wrestling at the state meet will get under way at Western Maryland College this Friday with preliminary rounds. All finals and consolation rounds will be on Saturday.

The Huskies are the defending state 1A/2A champions, having won the title last year by the widest margin in state history. Hoping to repeat as individual state champions are Northern's Pete Stein, Brandon Kamp, and Mark Wolf, and Southern's John Hayhurst.

Maryland 1A/2A West Regionals

Northern 177, Williamsport 152, Urbana 99.5, Southern 94.5, Smithsburg 86, Walkersville 82.5, Francis Scott Key 81, Beall 75.5, Fort Hill 73, Middletown 56, South Hagerstown 48, Linganore 19, Catoctin 18, Westmar 10, Allegany 0, Brunswick 0, Boonsboro 0.

Correction On Wrestling Noted

It was noted incorrectly in last week's issue of The Republican that Southern High School wrestler John Hayhurst is Garrett County's first and only four-time Bi-County Wrestling Tournament champion. In fact, there were at least two other former county high school wrestlers who achieved this feat: Matt Wolf (1993-96) and Brandon Stein (1997-2000), both of Northern High School. The error is regretted.

SMC Members Participate In Rockwood Tourney

Members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team competed in a tournament on Saturday in Rockwood, Pa. It was the largest tournament the team has attended so far this season. There were over 500 athletes competing, representing 54 teams from states as far away as Rhode Island and Connecticut. There were no team scores kept for this tournament.

Individually, two SMC wrestlers won all their matches to capture first place in their respective divisions. Nine-year club veteran Scott Wildesen earned top honors by defeating three opponents. 'Scott wrestled as good as I have ever seen him wrestle," stated Coach George Scheffel. "These were three tough kids he had to beat, and he made it look easy." Coach Scheffel's son Jacob also won three straight bouts to earn his ninth first-place trophy of the season. Scheffel is in his third year with the Southern Mat Club.

Also earning trophies at Rockwood were second-place finishers Brutus Scheffel and Gavin Murphy, third-place finisher Jeremy Gregory, and fourth-place finisher Justin Ratliff. Eight-year-old Lex Ozias won his first two bouts and was on his way to the championship match when he was forced to withdraw because of illness. Also competing but falling short of a top-four finish were Colin and Zach McCalfrey, Ryan Fitzwater, and Nicholas Brant.

This weekend the team will compete in a pair of Pennsylvania tournaments. On Saturday, the local grapplers will travel to Jennerstown for the annual North Star Tournament. They will compete in State College on Sunday. This tournament, known as the "Little Lions," has been called the "toughest tournament in the East."

For more information on the Southern Mat Club, persons may contact any team member or visit the team's web site at www.smcwrestling.org.

Lakers Down Hawks In JUCO; Fall To Knights, Catamounts

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team closed out its 2000-2001 campaign this week with a 13-13 record, after crushing Montgomery-Rockville 81-59 in the opening round of the Maryland JUCO Tournament Friday, falling 84-67 to the College of Southern Maryland in the tourney's second round on Saturday, and dropping a hard-fought contest to Potomac State College last night 79-73. The Lakers did not receive a bid for the Region XX Tournament, and will have to bide their time until next winter.

Freshman guard Christi Edgell shot the lights out during the win over Montgomery-Rockville by connecting on an amazing tally of six three-pointers on her way to 20 points. Sophomore guard JoEllen Kitt had a fine all-around game with 13 points, 10 assists, and five steals. Those numbers helped Garrett take a 46-33 halftime lead over the Hawks as the Lakers cruised to a 22-point tourney win on their home court.

"Christi and JoEllen have turned into two players that we can go to on offense in every game," commented GCC assistant coach Steve Willison. "We played hard for 40 minutes, and it's nice to see us do that at tournament time. We executed better on offense and played strong defense."

The offensive execution referred by to Willison included a balanced attack that allowed the Lakers to score seemingly at will. In addition to Edgell's and Kitt's production, sophomore guard Crystal Kimble contributed 15 points and sophomore center Tameka Graves added 13 points. Sophomore guard Shawntice McLaughlin had six points and six assists, and freshman forward Donna Lyles hauled down eight rebounds. Montgomery-Rockville was led by 16 points from Tope Ogunniyi.

The Lakers' JUCO hopes came to a halt the following evening as Southern Maryland ran up a 17-point win in a contest that was closer than the score would indicate. The Knights held a 47-35 advantage at the half.

"This was probably the best game we've played all season, but unfortunately it wasn't good enough to compete with Southern Maryland," Garrett head coach Ann Wellham remarked. "Donna Lyles (10 rebounds) and JoEllen Kitt (15 points) played major leadership roles." Graves contributed 12 points. Nekm Ifeika and Natasha Denny paced the Knights with 23 and 17 points, respectively.

Last night's homecourt season finale got off to a good start for the Lakers, as GCC rolled up a 40-34 lead over Potomac State at the half. The second stanza, however, was a far different story as the Catamounts outscored Garrett 45-33.

Graves ripped down a game-high 14 rebounds and scored 12 points to lead the Lakers, while Kimble netted 11 points. Guard Erica Henderson scored 10 points, and Edgell sank a trio of three-pointers to finish with nine points. The Lakers outrebounded the Catamounts by a 63-43 margin, but Garrett committed 23 fouls to PSC's 13.

GCC's balanced scoring attack was outpaced by PSC's overwhelming offense, centerpieced by Tiffini Wagner's 38-point, 14-rebound performance.

"Potomac State worked harder and played better defense than we did, there's no other way to say it," Willison said candidly after the contest.

Cougars Take JUCO Tourney On GCC Court

The Maryland JUCO Women's Basketball Tournament took place at Garrett Community College over the weekend, and the second-seeded Frederick Cougars emerged victorious after knocking off the College of Southern Maryland in Monday's championship game. See Laker women's coverage for details of Garrett's games.

The tourney got under way Friday after a one-day snow delay, as the host GCC Lakers crushed Montgomery-Rockville 81-59. The other opening-round contest witnessed Cecil take a 67-61 win over Essex.

Garrett was stopped in the quarterfinals by top seed College of Southern Maryland 84-67. Other quarterfinal action featured Catonsville's 92-88 win over Takoma Park, a 69-64 victory for Prince George's over Hagerstown, and Frederick's 94-36 blowout of Cecil.

Frederick rolled over Prince George's in semifinal play, 86-65, while Southern Maryland downed Catonsville by 10, 72-62. Frederick's momentum continued in the championship showdown with the Southern Maryland Knights, which the Cougars won by a score of 80-74.

Lakers Top Prince George's, But Fall To Trojans In Playoffs

A 79-61 defeat of Prince George's Community College on Friday at Frederick Community College sent the Garrett Community College men's basketball team into the semifinal round of the Maryland JUCO Tournament and another match-up with nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland. Although the Lakers played well against the heavily favored Trojans, they came up on the short end of a 79-67 score Saturday evening. The Trojans went on to whip the Community College of Baltimore City on Sunday, 102-77, to claim the JUCO title.

The Lakers' season is still not over, however, and they may get yet one more chance to dethrone Coach Bob Kirk and the Trojans. Garrett will meet Hagerstown in the Region XX Division I tournament at 8 p.m. this Saturday and, with a win, will play Allegany for the region title at 4 p.m. on Sunday. Coach Dennis Gibson and his team are currently 23-5 overall.

Jontae Harrington recorded a double-double in the Lakers' victory over Prince George's on Friday, as he netted 22 points and pulled down 13 rebounds, while Rob Hall hit 15 points, dished out five assists, and had three steals. Also reaching double figures were Anthony Campbell with 12 points and Kortaa Hall with 11. Antonio Lappegard also had five assists, and Dustin Long blocked four shots.

The score was knotted at 32-32 at intermission, but the Lakers out-scored PG in the second half by a 47-29 margin. Garrett defeated Prince George's in the regular season, 94-84, on January 10.

Pacing Prince George's in scoring was James Markey with 19 points. Derrick Wright had 15 points and six steals, while Burgess Williams recorded a double-double with 13 points and 14 rebounds. Williams also blocked three shots.

The Lakers played well against Allegany's first team in Saturday's semifinal contest, and it was a strong effort by several players off Coach Kirk's bench that gave the Trojans their 25th win in 27 games. Starter Malik Wallace paced AC in scoring with 16 points, but the next three top scorers all came off the bench, as Sean Johnson netted 14 points, Lee Green finished with 13, and Maurice Riddick scored 11.

The Laker defense held the normally hot-shooting Trojans 22 points under their average of 101 points per game, trailed by just three at halftime, 39-36,

K of P, Legion Teams Winners Of Service Club Championships

The Service Club Basketball League of Oakland ended its sixth season with a flurry of activities at this past Saturday's Championship Showdown at Southern High School. Over 300 people witnessed consolation and championship games, as well as participated in the league's annual pizza party, slide show, and all-star announcements.

In the Senior Division consolation game, Rotary's Brad Reese and Chad Everd led a balanced attack by scoring 16 points each to defeat the Elks in a thriller, 46-45. Andrew Van Bogelen led the defense for Rotary, while Bucky Murphy led the Rotarians in rebounding. The Elks, who lost their semi-final game by just one point, were led by Aaron Louden with 21 points. Nick Gregg provided excellent ball handling, as well as eight points, and Matthew Savage led the Elks in inside scoring and defense.

In the championship game, the Knights of Pythias raced out to a 17-2 lead in the first half behind excellent team defense and superb offensive execution before hanging on to weather a fierce Lions comeback to take a 48-43 victory. Derek Rhodes scored 11 points in the first half (finished with 19) and Cory Tressler scored eight points in the first half (finished with 16 points) to lead the first-half surge for K of P. The Lions made a valiant comeback in the second half behind league leading scorer Cory Bosley with 28 points, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Knights' excellent team effort. K of P benefited from excellent point-guard play from Tray Rives and timely scoring from Joey Tressler. Logan Osekowski chipped in nine points for the Lions, who also received contributions from Matt Skidmore (six points) and rebounding and defense from Evan Lantz.

In the Girls' Division, Business and Professional Women eked out a 29-25 victory over the Oakland Women's Civic Club. BPW was led by Kayla Nazelrod and Beth Stem (seven points each), as well as excellent defense from Jadyn Swerbinsky. Elizabeth Thayer and Allie Richter provided excellent team defense and rebounding. The OWCC was led by Sara Stephens with 12 points. Mendy Tichinel, Bridget Collins, Fleisha Collins, and Michelle Holler provided team defense and rebounding for BPW.

In the championship game of the Girls' Division, Catholic Daughters of America provided a powerful scare for regular-season champ Legion Auxiliary before succumbing by a 36-32 score. CDA led well into the second half behind the inspired play of Kendra McLaughlin, who scored 23 points and provided superb point-guard play. Kailee Craig, Natalie Rohrbaugh, Jessica Petrella, and Laura Skipper provided aggressive defense and rebounding. The Auxiliary was led by the efficient play of Jasmine Scheffel (15 points) and strong defensive pressure from Julia Bosley and Sarah Cosner. Catlyn Brown controlled the boards for the Auxiliary. Danielle Hickman chipped in with five points and unrelenting hustle.

Legion Auxiliary's assistant coach Oren Yoder has now had his hands in championships in every division of the Service Club Basketball League. Coach Yoder teamed with Dave Martin to lead the VFW to an undefeated regular season before winning the Junior Division championship last year, and in the first year of the league, Yoder teamed with Doug Oxford to lead a team to the championship of the Senior Division.

In the Junior Division consolation game, Shane Weaver (13 points) and Jeff Stem (eight points) led VFW over Masonic Lodge, 24-21. Ryan Martin and Cody Colaw provided ball handling and perimeter defense for VFW. Brothers Cody and Cory Broadwater supplied inside defense and rebounding. Nathan Stephens led Masonic Lodge with 13 points. Brison Harvey and T.J. Sisler chipped in with excellent ball handling and perimeter defense for the Masons. Seth Friend led his team in rebounding.

In the championship game, regular-season champion American Legion held off repeated surges by the Fraternal Order of Police to win, 39-33. American Legion was led by Ryan DeWitt (12 points) Tommie Reams (10 points). Matthew Fitzwater (seven points), and Seth Fike (six points) provided inside defense, rebounding, and excellent ball handling. Sammy Frantz provided inspired team play and hustle to give American Legion an added advantage.

Lakers Down

and pulled to within one point, 41-40, in the early moments of the second half. But a 52-30 advantage in rebounds for the Trojans was simply too much for the Lakers to overcome.

"Our defense gave them a lot of problems," Coach Gibson said. "We took away most of their inside game with our quickness."

Defensively, AC's big inside players, Terry Taylor and Ryan Randle, were held by the Lakers to a total of just four points in the first half.

"We have had more trouble with their bench than their starters," Gibson said. "Our depth has been a key factor in our success the whole season. Unfortunately, in this case, they have more size to use off the bench."

After falling behind 5-0 in the opening minutes of the game, the Lakers went on a 7-0 run to take the lead, and were ahead by an 18-15 margin after Anthony Campbell drained a three-pointer. But the Trojans responded by scoring the next 13 points and taking the lead for good at 28-18. After AC was up 37-28, the Lakers rallied to score eight of the next 10 points to conclude the first half.

Garrett scored four of the first six points of the second half to trail by only one, 41-40, but the Trojans went on an 8-0 run to make it 49-40 with 13:50 remaining. The closest the Lakers would get the rest of the way was eight points, 64-56, with about six minutes left.

Kortaa Hall led four Lakers in double figures, as he recorded 13 points and pulled down a team-high seven rebounds. Harrington netted 12, Campbell finished with 11, and Lappegard scored 10.

Leading AC in rebounding was Terrell Ross with 10.

"Dustin Long had an unbelievable game for us," Gibson said. "Even though Jontae Harrington, Lee Parris, and Dustin are much smaller inside, they have such great heart and desire. Dustin took three charges in a four-minute span against some guys that outweigh him by 100 pounds. That takes heart. He also hit some crucial buckets when we had trouble scoring."

GCC's Robert Hall was named to the All-Tournament team following Sunday's title game between Allegany and Baltimore City. The Red Devils earned a spot in the finals by upsetting top-seeded Cecil, 99-95, in double overtime in Saturday's other semifinal game.

"We are looking forward to the regional championships," Coach Gibson said. "No one else in our league wants to play against Allegany or Hagerstown, but we welcome the challenge. In one sense, we are David vs. Goliath, but that is what is great about this game, a chance to prove yourself at the highest level."

The Lakers defeated the Hagerstown Hawks in overtime, 90-88, in the regular-season match-up. The outcome of the GCC-Hagerstown game is significant in two ways, Gibson explained. "If we beat Hagerstown, not only will we get a chance to play Allegany for the regional championship, but we will also automatically be in the district playoffs because of the rotation among the three regions, no matter what the outcome of the championship game is. The regional champion would host the district playoffs."

Region XX is the host for the district playoffs this year, which will also involve Regions XIII and XXIV. The top two teams in each region are in the district playoffs.

Challenges Issued In Bowl For Kids' Sake Fund-Raiser

The stakes are rising for the upcoming Bowl for Kids' Sake benefit bowling tourney, sponsored by the Garrett County chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters. Schools, 4-H clubs, and Scout troops have issued challenges to other such organizations encouraging them to participate and raise funds for the local mentoring program. This year's event will take place on Saturday, March 31, at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland, and bowlers and sponsors are still being sought.

A challenge has been issued by public school counselor Bonnie Swyter, board member of the Garrett BBBS chapter, to all Garrett County schools. A trophy is at stake, plus the honor of being the school that can raise the most funds per capita. Last year Broad Ford Elementary School was represented by 69 bowlers, who raised a total of $4,370, an average of $8.46 for every student at the school.

Each school in the county has received a team sign-up sheet, and bowling teams are already being formed at Broad Ford, Dennett Road, Crellin, Accident, and Yough Glades elementary schools, and Northern Middle School. Service learning hours are available for high school bowlers and possibly to middle school students as well. Student and staff volunteers are needed to recruit teams, raise pledge money, bowl, and assist with the various activities at the bowling alley the day of the event.

The Red House 4-H Club, which had 13 participants who raised $575 during last year's benefit, has challenged all 4-H clubs in the county. Red House 4-H has 24 bowlers signed up for this year's fund-raiser. Team forms and pledge sheets for 4-H bowlers can be obtained from Cooperative Extension agent Ann Sherrard, who may be reached at 301-334-6960.

The Boy Scouts have been regular supporters and major pledge-raisers for the BBBS bowling activity, and 18 Scouts raised $848 last year under the leadership of Bob Stephens. Scout troops throughout the county have been challenged to meet or surpass that record, and Troops that were not contacted are still able to answer the challenge by contacting the BBBS office for sign-up and pledge forms.

"The commitment and spirit of the volunteers who give so generously of their time collecting pledges and bowling helps fund the majority of the operating budget for Big Brothers Big Sisters for the year," commented event coordinator JoAnn Fletcher. "Without these volunteers the work of BBBS in Garrett County could not continue. Their efforts help us match children considered at-risk and in need of a special friend and extra attention with adult mentors in both the community and in school programs."

Individuals, organizations, and businesses that need information or want to sign up as a team or a corporate sponsor may contact Fletcher at 301-334-3591 or 1-800-400-0735.

Corporate Sponsors

The Garrett County BBBS chapter announced this week that several additional corporate sponsors that took part in last year's Bowl for Kids' Sake fundraiser will be contributing to the 2001 event as well. They are Fred E. Beachy Lumber, Deep Creek Comfort Inn, the Grantsville Lions Club, M&T Bank, Reel Video, and the Oakland Rotary Club. Glotfelty Enterprises is a new corporate sponsor this year, and Elements of Design made a donation.

For information on becoming a corporate sponsor interested persons may call one of the BBBS numbers listed above.

HEADED FOR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION Is the boys' basketball team of Mt. View Christian School, located near Grantsville, after the team won the 2001 School of Tomorrow Pennsylvania state championship. The local squad was seeded fourth in the tournament, but won all of its eight-minute games, defeating Hebron Center, 24-13; Fairview, 24-13; and top-seeded Twin Valley, 24-19. Twin Valley worked its way through the losers' bracket and met Mt. View again for the championship. With the score tied at 22-22 and only one second left, freshman Jared Beltzel of Grantsville hit a basket off a pass by senior Jimmy Yoder, also of Grantsville, was fouled, and made his free throw to make the score 25-22. A shot at the buzzer by Twin Valley was no good. The Mt. View boys will travel to Columbus, Mo., May 26-30 as one of 60 International teams. Approximately $3,500 is needed to fund the trip, and individuals, businesses, churches, and organizations wishing to make a financial contribution are asked to call 301-387-4182 or 814-662-2607. Pictured above, from left, kneeling, are Patrick Yoder and Jimmy Yoder. In the second row are: Joseph Martin, Coach Tim Yoder, and Dwight Yoder. In the back row are: Andy Yoder, Lee Pickrel, Preston Yoder, Steve Yoder, and Jared Beltzel. Not present for the photo was Coach Terry Dornburg. Meanwhile, the Mt. View girls' volleyball team placed third in a Pennsylvania state volleyball tourney. Pictured from left, front, are: Melody Sommers, Michelle Yoder, Coach Rachel Petershiem, Crystal Yoder, and Monica Sommers. Standing are: Rebecca Dornburg, Crystal Dornburg, Angela Yoder, Crystal Beltzel, and Rose Beachy.

Diabetes Cooking Classes Slated in Grantsville

The Garrett County Cooperative Extension office, in partnership with Community Action's Area Agency on Aging, will offer a series of cooking classes for people with diabetes and their family members or caretakers.

Dining with Diabetes will meet every Tuesday at 6 p.m. for four weeks, beginning March 20, at the Grantsville Senior Center.

Dr. Robin Bissell will open the series with an informative talk on the causes and effects of diabetes. Beverly R. Carvell, nutrition education program assistant, will discuss how to cook with artificial sweeteners, low-fat products, and herbs and spices. Class participants will receive recipe booklets, watch cooking demonstrations, and taste foods made with less fat, sugar, and salt.

This grant funded program is free to people with diabetes and family members or caretakers. No products will be sold at the classes. Spaces are limited, so those interested are advised to call 301-334-6964 to enroll.

NATIONAL NUTRITION MONTH TIPS
by Amy Ritchie and Theresa Stahl
Dietetic Caucus of Western Maryland AHEC

March is National Nutrition Month, when registered dietitians all over the U.S. like to "get the word out" about positive nutrition. Each week of this month, the Dietetic Caucus of the Western Maryland AHEC will provide several nutrition month tips that can help make healthy eating a healthy habit.

- An easy way to promote healthful eating is to pay attention to serving sizes when reading food labels. If "1/4 cup" contains 100 calories, consider whether the small amount will satisfy you or whether you actually eat "400 calories worth," which is a cupful.
- Use a non-stick cooking spray for pan-frying. This also makes clean up less messy.
- Choose lean beef with 10 percent fat or less. Consider purchasing a flank steak, one of the leanest cuts of beef, and slice left-overs for great sandwiches.
- Choose ground turkey with 7 percent fat or less. Regular ground turkey can contain even more fat than similarly processed beef or pork because fat and other parts of the animal are added.
- When recipes call for several tablespoons of oil, begin with "just a touch." Then continue to sauté in a few tablespoons of vegetable or meat broth, fruit juice or water.
- Stack lots of vegetables — such as onions, tomato, romaine lettuce, thinly sliced cucumbers, and grated carrots — on sandwiches. Because of the natural moisture content, there is less need for so much mayonnaise.

The Gallery in Oakland, reported that 70 artists are now displaying their work in the gallery. "It's becoming a real draw for tourists," she said, and explained that it is now the closest place for many local students to display their work, instead of having to travel out of the county.

In a letter to the commissioners, GCAC president Carole Perez stated, "Our request for a funding increase is timely for a number of reasons: (1) state funding support for the arts — which increased substantially over the past few years — is now expected to plateau, (2) Garrett County continues to lag behind other Maryland counties in fiscal support for the arts; (3) the local nonprofit arts community continues to grow at an unprecedented rate; (4) the vital role of the arts in contributing to economic development through stimulation of cultural tourism is gaining national and regional recognition and; (5) quality of life and enhancement of educational opportunities have always been issues for those concerned with the public welfare."

The letter further stated that statistics supported the group's funding request in that the combined arts budgets of GCAC and associated grantee organizations amounted to $456,000 in FY 2000, presenting arts programs to a combined audience of nearly 150,000.

GCAC (with primary funding from the Maryland State Arts Council) paid for over 8% of the total expenses to produce those programs, and admission fees paid for less than 20%, according to Perez. Remaining expenses were covered through a partnership of individual, business, foundation, and organization support, she said.

"We are now asking Garrett County government to participate fully in the partnership of public and private funding that makes the arts in our community not only possible but viable," stated the letter. "We are requesting you to fund approximately 2% of the combined arts budgets of GCAC and our grantee organizations as acknowledgment that cultural development serves a necessary and vital function in our economic and social lives."

During this week's meeting, Schlosnagle told the commissioners, "We are proud of our 25-year track record," and asked that the commissioners remember what limited cultural opportunities existed in the county at that time. "There was a lot less to do around here 25 years ago," he said.

Commissioner Fred Holliday then questioned Schlosnagle about either instituting or increasing admission fees at arts events to help with revenues, but he was assured by Schlosnagle that when admission fees are raised even slightly, attendance tends to drop. He added that GCAC events should be accessible to as many people as possible.

The commissioners told the group they would take the information under advisement when finalizing the county budget for FY 2002.

County, when students are riding a school bus on long trips, the current speed limit "adds a lot of time to those trips."

HB 976 has been assigned to the House Commerce and Government Matters Committee.

House Bill 1005, co-sponsored by Edwards, would require the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to "create, adopt and implement" a deer management plan and provide state funding to achieve the goals of that plan.

Edwards explained that, even though DNR already has a deer management plan, the new legislation would require the department to create and follow a more "definitive solid plan, and to follow it."

HB 1005 has been assigned to the House Environmental Matters Committee.

Upon the request of the Garrett County Humane Society, Delegate Edwards has also recently introduced legislation that would eliminate the need for local humane societies to provide written notice before visiting and inspecting any "premises where any person is engaged in the business of buying, selling, trading or breeding dogs, or on the premises of any kennels where 25 or more dogs are kept for the purpose of determining if there is inhumane treatment" of those animals.

HB 971, assigned to the House Judiciary Committee, applies to any authorized director of a state-chartered humane society when accompanied by a sheriff or one of his deputies. The bill does not apply to any premises where the keeping or breeding of dogs is solely for the purpose of medical or related research or laboratory tests, as well as any place operated by a licensed and regularly practicing veterinarian. The law would also not apply to any premises where hunting dogs are housed — with certain restrictions.

House Panel Backs Name Change, Lower Limit For Drunken Driving

by Laurent Thomet
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's drunken-driving law would get a makeover under legislation approved by a House panel Tuesday.

The bill would reduce the drunken-driving threshold from .10 blood-alcohol concentration to .08 and change the name of the most serious offense to driving under the influence.

The House Judiciary Committee voted 16-5 to adopt .08 and to retain Maryland's two-tier drunken driving statute, renaming the lower threshold of .07 "driving while impaired." Penalties for each tier would not change.

Now, DWI and DUI both carry a maximum $1,000 fine and one year in jail, said Lt. Bud Frank, State Police spokesman.

The changes are designed to bring Maryland into compliance with federal recommendations tied to $5.2 million in highway funds for FY2004 and a $2 million federal safety incentive grant.

"It was very important to get (the bill) through this committee," said Eric Gally, lobbyist for Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Passing the drunken-driving legislation out of the Judiciary Committee and the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee has been "very tough," Gally said, and getting Judiciary's approval was "a great relief." The Senate panel has not voted on the bill, yet.

Similar proposals died in Judiciary three years in a row, from 1997 to 1999.

Judiciary Chairman Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's, and Senate Judicial Proceedings Chairman Walter M. Baker, D-Cecil, announced Friday they would reduce the drunken-driving threshold to .08.

The measure is this year's "most important" piece of legislation, Vallario said.

The House Judiciary Committee listened to more than 30 witnesses pressing the panel to approve more than 20 drunken-driving-related bills in a marathon hearing Feb. 21.

Baker and Vallario agreed Friday to urge their respective committees to pass three bills: the measure to reduce the drunken-driving threshold legislation to toughen penalties for repeat offenders; and a ban of open containers in the passenger side of vehicles.

Ironically, Vallario's committee killed the open-container ban Friday with a 14-6 vote.

"The wheel fell off," said Vallario, who co-sponsored the measure. "I can only speak for myself, but not my committee."

Without the threat of losing federal funds, the measure to reduce the drunken-driving threshold "would have been much more difficult to pass," Vallario said.

Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, who testified in favor of the measure, said she would have to review any changes in the legislation before commenting on the panel's vote.

Delegate Kenneth C. Montague Jr., D-Baltimore, introduced the name changes later approved by the committee.

"We can't say a person is intoxicated at .08," Montague said. "The scientific community can't say that."

Montague wouldn't have supported the measure if the major drunken-driving offense had kept its original name, he said.

"You can't put an untruth in law," Montague said, "and calling .08 a DWI would be an untruth."

"Call it anything you want," Gally said, as long as the penalties for surpassing the .08 limit stay the same.

But changing the terminology of a DWI offense to DUI is a "defense attorney's dream," because a drunken driver would not be considered intoxicated, said Delegate Donald F. Murphy, R-Baltimore County.

"This is not what getting tough on drunken-driving is all about," said Murphy, who voted against the measure. "This is like participating in a bribe...resent that we did this for the (federal) money."

For Delagate Robert A. Zirkin, D-Baltimore County, passing the measure is "a public safety issue."

"It's actually somewhat frustrating that the federal government is dictating law that should be left to the state," said Zirkin, who voted for the bill.

Federal money or not, Delegate Sharon Grosfeld, D-Montgomery, was glad the legislation survived the committee.

"I was concerned about my other colleagues who traditionally vote against the bill," Grosfeld said. "Some of (them) were persuaded by the federal mandate. If that's what it takes, that's what it takes."

cases. Yoder was placed on supervised probation with the Carroll County Office of the Division of Parole and Probation.

In another case last week, John Mark McKenzie, 49, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and to driving while under the influence of alcohol. McKenzie was charged by Maryland State Police officers who investigated a motor vehicle accident in September along Finzel Road, according to police.

McKenzie was the driver of a Ford pickup truck that pulled from a parking lot into the path of a Camaro operated by Bonnie Langan, Frostburg. While speaking with McKenzie, officers noted several indications that McKenzie had been drinking.

After administering field sobriety tests, he was charged, police said. McKenzie was also charged with having a blood alcohol level over .10 and failure to stop and yield. These charges were dismissed by the state as part of the plea agreement entered into in this case, according to Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Witnesses at the scene reported to officers that prior to the arrival of the police, McKenzie had taken something out of the truck and dropped it in a field near the accident scene. Following up on this information, officers discovered a bag of marijuana in the area, according to the police report.

McKenzie's sentencing was postponed and will be held in early March.

State's Attorney Welch dismissed a charge of fraudulently assuming the identity of another person to avoid paying a debt that had been brought against 35-year-old James Oliver Bolyard, Oakland. Bolyard was charged with the misdemeanor offense in July, upon the application of a citizen who alleged Bolyard had utilized her identification information to obtain electric utility service for his residence from the Allegheny Power Company.

Welch explained that prior to issuing the charges, information was received that questioned the guilt of Bolyard. The matter was referred to the GBI unit for investigation, according to Welch. "I am certain the state would not have been able to meet its burden of proving Mr. Bolyard committed this offense," Welch said.

Musings
by Michael S. Glaser
Editor, Weavings 2000: The Maryland Millennial Anthology

Maryland's Poet Laureate, Roland Flint, in reflecting on the turn of the millennium, wrote, "At the end of our bloody century, we might well pray that our country will turn more and more to the life of the spirit, and, when it does, a national archive of the spirit will be found in our poetry." Sister Maura Eichner's poem, "Chartres Cathedral" is, on a literal level, a poem about a pilgrimage, but on a metaphoric level, it is also, perhaps, a poem about discovering again the power and importance of the life of the spirit.

CHARTRES CATHEDRAL

You will see Chartres Cathedral, they said, eight or nine miles from the town. And so we did, windshield wipers sweeping at the flashing rain. Wheat stacked each side of the road. Out of mist, two spires rose.

Peguy had walked this way: one pilgrim more in centuries of pilgrims. We tried to teach our eyes to hole the ancient church. But the town was there and we in the narrow street before the Royal Door.

Blue windows of Chartres, and God creating man in joyful stone; gargoyle and buttress — clear in sunlight after rain. What we had known

we realized: glass is flame, stone is story; love is reaped where love was sown.

Sr. Maura Eichner

Sister Maura Eichner taught at the Department of English at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland, Baltimore, until her retirement. She has published five books of poetry.

As part of its millennial activities, the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 sponsored the publication of Weavings 2000, an anthology of literary works which represents the breadth of excellent literature that is being created by Maryland writers today. This column is an extension of that anthology and the vision of the Commission that the lives of all Marylanders can be enriched by the special attentions that writers bring to the experiences of our lives. Weavings 2000 has been distributed to every library in Maryland.

Home Detention Program Notes 10 Years Of Success

The Home Detention program of the Maryland Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services noted 10 years of operation this past month, and statistics released by the state indicate that the program has met with success. Ninety-nine percent of the participants complete community supervision without involvement in criminal incidents, while just 1 percent of Home Detention offenders are re-arrested for new offenses. The vast majority of those arrests are for minor offenses.

The Home Detention program was created to gradually reintegrate offenders into the community from prison. Most offenders must work or be assigned public service details. Offenders must take advantage of other opportunities, such as drug or alcohol therapy, school or vocational endeavors, or pre-employment assistance. Offenders must make restitution payments, and employed offenders pay fees to the program to offset costs.

Maryland's Home Detention program is considered one of the most public safety oriented community supervision efforts in the country. Offenders are under constant supervision through a variety of electronic devices such as anklets and drive-by veritiers. Uniformed enforcement staff, extensively trained in police and correctional procedures, actively supervise these offenders by patrolling in conspicuously marked vehicles 24 hours per day, 365 days per year. The program is considered so restrictive by some offenders that many choose to remain in prison rather than participate.

To date over 21,000 offenders have participated in the Maryland program. Twenty-five percent failed to successfully complete the program, primarily because of violations including being out of bounds, detection of drug use, and the possession of alcoholic beverages in the home. When rule violations are factored out, 95 percent have successfully completed the program. Four percent have been walk-offs, with all but a few being apprehended in a short time later, mostly by program staff.

The Central Home Detention Unit's day-to-day supervision of inmates and offenders is carried out by the Divisions of Correction, Pretrial Detention and Services, and Parole and Probation, along with the Drug Court. Eligible offenders must meet stringent requirements established by law to be considered for the program, and must agree to abide by approximately 50 program rules. Incarcerated persons must volunteer for participation, and unless the crime is non-violent, the inmate must be within 90 days of release. Parole violators also must volunteer, and their violation must be of a technical nature, or if a new crime is involved, it must be non-violent.

"Home Detention is a success because of hard-working correctional officers and parole and probation agents who patrol our streets daily to supervise offenders and better protect the citizens of Maryland," said Stuart O. Simms, secretary of the Public Safety and Correctional Services. Home Detention saved the department $71 million in construction and operating costs.

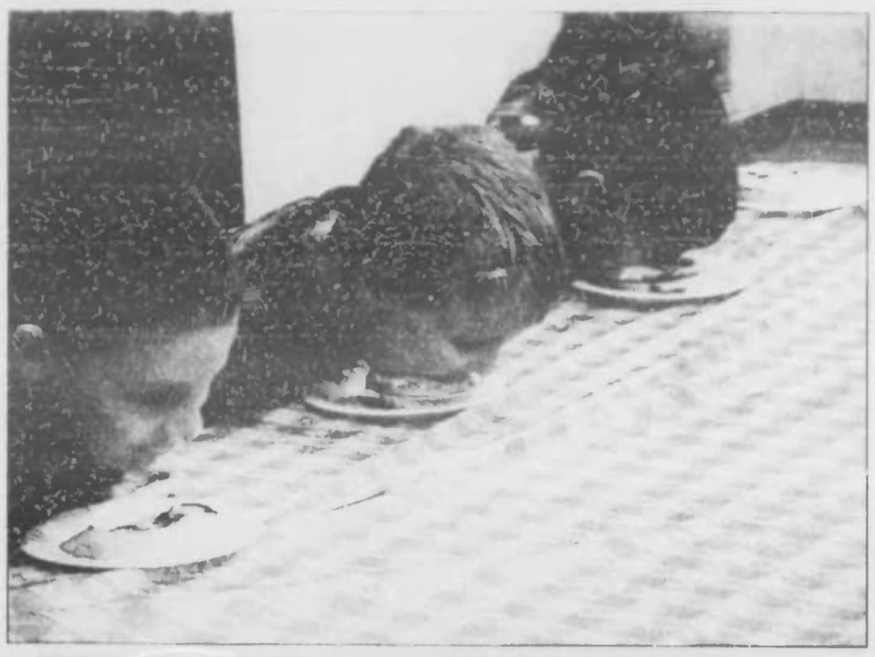
Housing Repair Program Change Noted By USDA

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced the relaxing of mortgage security requirements on repair loans to very-low income homeowners. This change will open the opportunity for more very-low income homeowners to improve living standards by repairing leaky roofs, installing more energy efficient materials, or correcting basic structural problems. "Applicants must have an income that meets the HUD very-low income limits to qualify," said Tim Taylor, community development manager for Garrett County.

USDA's Rural Housing Service Single Family Housing repair loan program previously required mortgage security on any loan exceeding $2,500. The change, which became effective December 27, 2000, through Public Law 106-569, allows an applicant to receive assistance with only a promissory note on loans up to $7,500. Mortgage securities will only be required on loans exceeding $7,500.

Loans are available for general repairs to improve or modernize homes, remove health and safety hazards, and increase adaptability for households with persons who have disabilities. Loans can be made for amounts up to $20,000, a maximum of 20 years' repayment period, and at an interest rate of one percent annually. Individuals 62 years or older may qualify for a grant in cases where an individual lacks the financial ability to repay a Section 504 loan.

Anyone interested in the program or wanting additional information may call Taylor or Sylvia Guthrie, community development technician, at 301-334-6970, or stop by the Rural Development Office located at 1916 Maryland Highway, Suite D, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550.



READING CAN BE SWEET - Students of Friendsville Elementary School recently participated in a special PIE (Power in Education) reading activity, and as a reward for their efforts, some were invited to participate in a pie-eating contest. During the week of Feb. 20-23, students read many books, and after completing a book, each would pick a cherry from their bulletin board pie. After picking all of the cherries, each discovered a special reward at the bottom of the pie. At the end of the week, one student from each class was selected to participate in the pie-eating contest. Pictured above in the midst of that contest are, from left: second-grader Jaymea Kelly, third-grader Bradley Rodeheavor, and fourth-grader Henry Smearman. Winners of the contest are pictured below and include, from left: Tyler Garlitz, kindergarten, second place; Henry Smearman, third place; and Travis Selby, fifth grade, first place.

Fresh Air Fund Now Recruiting Host Families

Since 1877 the Fresh Air Fund, an independent, nonprofit agency, has provided free summer vacations for over 1.7 million disadvantaged New York City children, and a number of them have spent those vacations in Garrett County. Recruitment efforts are under way to locate local families who have a desire to serve as a host for a child this summer.

"Through our Friendly Town program, inner-city children experience the thrill of swimming in lakes and streams, running barefoot through grassy meadows, and making new suburban and country friends," stated a spokesperson for the Fresh Air Fund. "For thousands of city children, summertime in the city means hot apartments, crowded playgrounds, and dangerous streets. But local families can help us give more city children an opportunity to experience a different kind of summer this year by opening their hearts and homes to children between the ages of 6 and 12.

For more information, persons may telephone local coordinator Michelle Harris at 301-759-4757, or call the Fresh Air Fund at 1-800-367-0003. Persons may also learn more about the program by visiting the fund's web site at http://www.freshair.org.

GCC To Offer Cake Decorating

A basic cake decorating course will begin Monday, March 12, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the National Guard Armory Oakland Center of Garrett Community College. The class will meet for a total of four weeks. Students will learn to make frosting for the use of decorating, and the use of basic decorating techniques to produce a variety of borders, flowers, and lines.

For more information, persons may call Patricia Baer at 301-334-8304.

Other local companies, organizations, and individuals are needed to support the effort by volunteering to help or by contributing prizes for the event, Major said.

The mission of the Technology Team (formed during the Garrett County Summit) is to support economic development and stable families in the county by creating new employment opportunities in information technology. "One of our goals is to implement new awareness and training opportunities in order to evolve a computer literate workforce. 'Cool Tools' is our second awareness event," Major said.

USE OF GINSENG IN DIABETES STUDIED

Products containing the herb ginseng are popular in many areas of the world and are used by millions of Americans. However, ginseng has enjoyed the reputation of being a cure-all - good for everything from cancer, to stimulating sexual desire, to decreasing fatigue and increasing energy, to lowering blood cholesterol levels.

According to a Diabetes Care report, ginseng may help persons who have the type of diabetes that does not require insulin injections. This kind of diabetes, called type 2, is most common in adults. It often can be controlled with oral medicines, exercise, and careful attention to diet.

The Road to Your Dreams

Do you dream of a challenge you want to meet or a goal for the future...if only you had the courage? Perhaps you would like to attend college, but you're afraid of failure. Maybe you want to apply for that new opening at work, the job you have dreamed of, but you are afraid you will not be selected? Where is your courage? Is fear between you and your dream?

Psalm 31:24 tells us, "Be strong and let your heart take courage, all you who hope in the Lord." Do you "hope in the Lord" with faith in His promises of strength and peace? If not, perhaps it would help to increase your faith in the Heavenly Father. For isn't it through faith in God Who dwells within us that we develop the confident spirit we must possess to make our dreams come true?

Take the first step on the road to your dream as you worship God this week.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By Lawrence W. Althouse

THE WAITING ROOM

March 4, 2001

Background Scripture:
Acts 1
Devotional Reading:
John 16 7-11

What a dramatic reversal the disciples of Jesus experienced from the gloom of Good Friday to the unbelievable joy of Easter Sunday! We can understand their euphoria and the expectancy with which they asked the Risen Lord "Lord, will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1 6)

It seems to me that the experience of Christ s resurrection had not made them a whole lot more understanding they still thought that Jesus' messianic purpose was to restore the kingdom of Israel. They were looking for a change in the secular realm vanquish Rome and restore Israel as an independent nation once again It seems that they expected this to take place instantaneously Just say the word. Lord we are ready!

So Jesus' reply may have come to them as a shock. "It is not for you to know the times or seasons which the Father has fixed by his own authority But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you shall be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and to the end of the earth" (7,8) The answer Jesus gave them was the very one that people do not want to hear Wait! Be patient!

Learn To Wait

In his poem, The Reaper and the Flowers, Longfellow says

Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labour and to wait

Most of us don't have to be persuaded to achieve, pursue and labor, but many of us have never learned to wait Patience may be our poorest subject Yet, the patience to wait for God to fulfill his promises is an essential ingredient of faith For centuries the Hebrews prayed How long, oh Lord? The Psalmists realized the importance of patience: " those who wait for the Lord shall possess the land" (Ps 37 9 See also Ps 25 3,5. 40 1. 62 1 130 5,6) And also the prophet Isaiah " blessed are all they that wait for him" (30 18) and " but they who wait for the Lord shall renew their strength" (40 31)

Impatience often clouded the understanding of Jesus' disciples Like us, they often wanted his promises fulfilled YESTERDAY In one of his parables, he tells them to "be like men who are waiting for their master to come home from the marriage feast" (Lk 12 36) After his resurrection Jesus tells his disciples "And behold I send the promise of my Father upon you but stay in the city until you are clothed with power from on high (Lk 24 49) a command which he repeats, charging them "not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father " (Acts 1 4)

Divine 'Long Run'

One reason we mortals are so impatient is that we are mortals Our sense of time is so different from that of our Creator We know that, of course, but it is still difficult for us to see time in terms of the divine long haul instead of the human short haul

An old rabbinic story tells us that one day Abraham saw an old man weary with age and travel, coming toward him In his usual manner, Abraham greeted him, washed his feet and invited him to supper But, observing during supper that the man did not offer a prayer of thanksgiving Abraham asked him why he did not worship God and the old man told him that he worshipped only fire Upon hearing this, Abraham withdrew his hospitality and sent the man into the night But God came to Abraham and admonished him "I have suffered him these eighty years although he dishonored Me, and couldst thou not endure him one night?" This is reminiscent of what Jesus said to his sleeping disciples in Gethsemane, "Could you not watch one hour?" (Mk 14 38)

We are wrong if we think that 'waiting' is the equivalent of not doing anything When we are waiting for God, we are doing something: we are actively practicing our faith That's what the disciples did when, after the resurrection, they returned to the upper room, where they practiced the deep levels of their faith while they waited for the promise of the Father For them and us, the upper room becomes the waiting room

Gruffudd returns as Hornblower

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Ioan Gruffudd

Q: A friend told me recently she had heard or seen something about new episodes of Horatio Hornblower on A&E Network. As I fell in love with Ioan Gruffudd during the first series, I hope I didn't miss them! –Susan K. in Flint, Mich.

A. Relax, Susan Gruffudd, the Welsh actor who became an instant heartthrob thanks to his performance in the title role of A&E's Horatio Hornblower, reprises the role in two new Hornblower movies scheduled for April on A&E.

Q: Who played the title role in The Rebel on TV? I believe he also played in a movie with Andy Griffith and was in Mister Roberts. –Albert F. Cioffi, Attleboro, Mass.

A. Nick Adams played former Confederate soldier Johnny Yuma in The Rebel, a popular 1959-61 ABC Western series. The young actor had struggled in small roles in Rebel Without a Cause (with his pal James Dean) and Mister Roberts, among several other movies, before landing the role of Andy Griffith's little buddy Ben Whitledge in No Time for Sergeants.

Shortly after his Rebel run, Adams earned a best supporting actor Oscar nomination for his work in the 1963 drama Twilight of Honor. Reportedly crushed by his loss, Adams continued toiling in largely forgettable movie and TV roles for five more years before he was found dead of a prescription drug overdose at age 36.

Q: I enjoy watching Meet the Press moderator Tim Russert. I've noticed he often mentions his son, Luke, but never his wife. Is Russert married? –J.H. via e-mail.

A. Russert's wife – and Luke's mom – is Vanity Fair writer Maureen Orth.

Q: When did 7th Heaven premiere, and what ages were the Camden children at that time? –Mary C., Portage, Ind.

A. The ages of the five Camden children were as follows when the series premiered Aug. 26, 1996, on The WB Network: Matt (Barry Watson), 16; Mary (Jessica Biel), 14; Lucy (Beverley Mitchell), 12; Simon (David Gallagher), 10; and Ruthie (Mackenzie Rosman), 5.

Q: Is that really Isaac Hayes as the voice of Chef on South Park? –Bill Wheeler, Upland, Calif.

A. Yes.

Q: Ever since the last Christmas holidays, we have been racking our brains to remember the sequel (sort of) to A Christmas Story, in which Ralphie and his family go on a summer vacation and rent a lakeside cabin. Help! –Lola Friedhoff, Townsend, Mont.

A. Ollie Hopnoodle's Haven of Bliss (1989) continued the adventures of the Parker family, but with a different cast (Jerry O'Connell played Ralphie).

In Focus

Jill Hennessy plays Jacqueline Kennedy in Jackie, Ethel, Joan: Women of Camelot, a two-part drama about the Kennedy wives airing Sunday and Monday, March 4 and 5, on NBC.

The TV movie follows Jackie and her sisters in law Joan and Ethel (Leslie Stefanson, Lauren Holly) through more than 20 years of public and private struggles – spousal infidelity, miscarriages and, of course, the violent deaths of two of their husbands.

Wednesday

A lawyer (Thomas Cavanagh) catches up with old friends after returning to his homelown and buying a bowling alley in Ed, airing Wednesdays on NBC.

Faith Church To Host Missionary To Sri Lanka

Rev. Adrian de Visser, director of Kithu Sevana, a church-planting ministry in the South Asian nation of Sri Lanka, will be speaking at Faith Evangelical Free Church, Mountain Lake Park, this Sunday, March 4. Rev. de Visser will be preaching at the 10:45 a.m. service. The public is invited to attend.

Rev. de Visser received his M.A. in missions from Columbia International University in South Carolina and served in Sri Lanka's Youth for Christ organization. In 1993 he launched Kithu Sevana, which in the native Sinhalese language means "Under the Shadow of Christ" — an answer to the Buddhist sacred phrase "Under the Shadow of Buddha." Eighteen Kithu Sevana pastors serve 20 church plants and 168 smaller house churches on the war-torn island nation off the southern tip of India.

Three representatives of Faith Evangelical Free Church, Pastor David Martin and Mike and Bethany Browning, are scheduled to go on a two-week mission trip to Sri Lanka in May and work with the Kithu Sevana church planters.

In addition to the 10:45 a.m. service, Rev. de Visser will speak at the Saturday morning men's Brotherhood Breakfast and during Sunday school. He will be visiting the area with his wife Ophelia and children Prashan and Thilini.

For more information, persons may call the church at 301-334-4172.

GCC Participates In Science And Tech. Ed. Project

Garrett Community College is one of 21 community colleges in the United States that participated in the recent project of Phi Theta Kappa and the National Science Foundation to train a high technology skilled workforce. Descriptions of the projects conducted at each of these colleges have been published in a booklet titled "Improving Science and Technology Education at Community Colleges."

"These colleges worked directly with the creators of exemplary advanced technology educational materials as their mentors, to integrate these field tested resources into their own college curricula," Rod A. Risley, executive director of Phi Theta Kappa, wrote in the foreword to the publication. "It is our hope that these case studies will inspire other community college faculty and administrators to emulate the achievement of these 21 colleges."

Three GCC faculty members — director of technology Jim Allen; instructor of computer and information systems Jim Davis; and instructor of agriculture Willie Lantz — worked with Terry Brase, the director of the Precision Agriculture Educational Network, to develop an action plan that would provide training in new technologies to students in the Agricultural Management and the Natural Resource and Wildlife Technology programs. Both of these programs represent fields where advanced technologies such as global positioning systems (GPS) and geographic information systems (GIS) are receiving widespread use, making it important for students graduating in these programs to know how to use and apply the new technologies.

The action plan outlined four goals: to develop an introductory GIS course; to integrate GPS/GIS concepts and applications into several existing courses; to provide faculty with further training in GPS/GIS technology; and to acquire GPS/GIS equipment and software. GCC's long-range goal is to develop a two-year GPS/GIS technician program, according to Allen.

After Garrett received an Appalachian Regional Commission grant to purchase state-of-the-art GPS equipment, the team developed an introductory-level GIS course and set up instructional modules that will integrate GPS/GIS modules into existing courses in the Agricultural Management and the Natural Resource and Wildlife Technology programs. Faculty have now received the training needed to teach the introductory-level courses and the application modules.

PREKINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION INFORMATION

Beginning March 1, 2001, and ending May 1, 2001, the Garrett County Board of Education will be accepting applications for its Extended Elementary Education Program, or prekindergarten. To be eligible for this program a child must be four years of age on or before December 31, 2001.

There is a two-step application process.

1. Interested parents should obtain a copy of the Notification of Interest for Prekindergarten Program documents. (These documents can be obtained from the nearest elementary school or from the Office of Pupil Services at the Board of Education office in Oakland.) The first document explains the enrollment and selection process for the prekindergarten program. The second document is an information sheet. This information sheet should be completed and forwarded to the Office of Pupil Services, Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South Fourth Street, Oakland, Maryland. The form can also be taken to the closest elementary school.

2. Upon receipt of the Notification of Interest for Prekindergarten Program information sheet, the parents will be given or sent a second set of documents. This second set includes a parent letter, a photocopy of the Board of Education's guidelines for determining the eligibility and selection of prekindergarten students, and a Garrett County Program Questionnaire. This questionnaire will need to be completed and returned as soon as possible to the Office of Pupil Services. The information provided by parents on this questionnaire will be used to determine which children are enrolled in the prekindergarten program. The Office of Pupil Services will date and log in all questionnaires.

Any questions about this enrollment process should be directed to Mrs. Liz Lewis, administrative secretary, Office of Pupil Services, at 301-334-8939.

Family Literacy Efforts Promoted By Head Start

Garrett County Community Action Head Start has been the recipient of several literacy grants and other opportunities this school year that have helped its active promotion of a successful family literacy program. Head Start's efforts have been assisted by other area agencies and community resources which are involved in the delivery of Head Start's family literacy services, including community partners such as the Ruth Enlow Library, Our Town Theatre, the Garrett County Reading Council, Wrap Around Child Care, The Republican newspaper, the Book Mark'et, and local volunteer storytellers and readers.

The year began with "Dinner and Theatre," a family night out during which Jane Avery and volunteers from the Garrett County Humane Society hosted Head Start children and their families at Our Town Theatre. Volunteers read stories about animals to the children and their parents. Children were invited to attend in their pajamas and received a bedtime snack.

Head Start children received five books each from First Book through the Make A Difference Day project again this year. Disney Publishing Worldwide joined forces with First Book to distribute new books to disadvantaged children across the country. GC Head Start received 1,200 free books for a minimal shipping charge. All Head Start children will also have the opportunity to participate in a minimum of three Reading is Fundamental (RIF) book distributions. During the distributions each child selects a book of his or her own to take home and keep. Local sponsors who have made receipt of the RIF grant possible are Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, Oakland Rotary Club, and Woodmen of the World Lodge H.

All Head Start classrooms are currently engaged in a "Reading Caterpillar" contest. Parents read to their children at home, and then send in a colored circle with the child's name and the name of the book. The circle is used to build a caterpillar. The classroom with the longest caterpillar at the end of this month will receive books for the classroom.

A Head Start Family Literacy Workshop, featuring Cheryl Goehringer and Darlene Schmidt will take place this month. This family night out will begin with a casual supper followed by six stories told by the Head Start teachers. After each story, a book will be awarded as a prize. Every parent who attends will then choose a book and make a "story stretcher" to take home to use while reading the book to the child.

Field trips to the library so the children may participate in story hours and classroom visits by guest readers and storytellers are just a few of the ongoing classroom literacy activities. A field trip to The Republican to see "words" being printed, a field trip to the Book Mark'et to purchase classroom books, and a "Literacy Partners" project with the Garrett Reading Council are being planned.

For information about Head Start's family literacy program, individuals may call 301-334-9431 or toll-free 1-888 877-8403, ext. 126.

Jonathan Kozol, social activist, educator, and author of eight award-winning books, will speak at Frostburg State University on Tuesday, March 13, at 8 p.m. in the Alice Manicur Assembly Hall in the Lane Center. The presentation is free and open to the public.

The theme of Kozol's lecture will be "Ordinary Resurrections," which is also the title of his latest book. Kozol's earlier works and their subjects include: Death at an Early Age (inner-city schools); Illiterate America (illiteracy); Rachel and Her Children (homeless families); Savage Inequalities" (disparities in American school systems); and, Amazing Grace (the children, clergy, and parents of the South Bronx).

Kozol, a Harvard graduate and Rhodes scholar, writes on the issues of race, poverty, and education. According to a 1998 interview in Technos Quarterly, Kozol was profoundly affected by the 1964 murder of three civil rights workers in Mississippi and immediately volunteered to teach at a Boston freedom school. He later joined the Boston public school system, an experience that gave birth to Death at an Early Age, a 1968 National Book Award Winner. "Kozol has continued to champion the cause of those forgotten by mainstream America," stated an FSU spokesperson.

The lecture is part of FSU's Diversity Week and is being sponsored by a number of groups and individuals on campus and in the community. Sponsors include the FSU Student Government Association, the Diversity Center, the Office of the President, the Office of the Provost, Vice President of University Advancement Gary Horowitz, Honors Program, College of Education, College of Business, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Student Education Association, and Psychiatric Associates of Cumberland.

County Job Fair Being Planned At GCC In April

Plans are now under way for the 10th annual Garrett County Job Fair, to be held Saturday, April 7, from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., in the Garrett Community College gymnasium. This year's job fair is a collaborative effort of GCC; the Maryland Job Service, a division of the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation; and the Western Maryland Consortium.

The job fair provides an opportunity for employers to recruit for positions they currently have available or foresee in the near future. This is an opportunity for businesses looking for employees to meet candidates face-to-face to make on-the-spot hires, or to schedule interviews.

This year's Job Fair will be held in the GCC gymnasium to increase the visibility of all employers, and provide easier access for applicants. Door prizes will be awarded throughout the day to applicants, and refreshments will be available.

The cost for employers to participate in the Job Fair will be $10, which covers the cost of supplies, refreshments, and advertising. Persons wanting further information may contact the Career Services office at GCC at 301-387-3132.

Furniture styles in America are named for monarchs or makers who influenced the shapes. William and Mary (1690-1720), Queen Anne (1720-1750) and Victorian (1830-1900) are all styles named for monarchs. Chippendale (1750-1775), Hepplewhite (1785-1800) and Sheraton (1800-1820) are named for makers.

English books and auction catalogs use slightly different names for furniture periods. They list such styles as Stuart (1603-1714), Georgian (1714-1810), Victorian (1837-1901) and Edwardian (1901-1910). Occasionally, the names of other monarchs are used.

The William IV style was named for the few years William reigned (1830-1837). It is a bridge between the Regency (1810-1830) and Victorian periods. Pieces made with elements of both periods are referred to as William IV style. He disliked ostentation and influenced a simpler look. When his niece, Victoria, became Queen, she influenced a style that has remained popular for more than 100 years.

Q. While cleaning out a relative's attic, we found an old advertising sign for Coca-Cola. It pictures a lady in a pink dress that's trimmed with white lace. The name "Betty" is at the bottom of the sign. The words "Drink Coca-Cola" are at the top. It is 32 inches by 41 inches. How old is it?

A. Betty was the image on a Coca-Cola sign issued in 1914. It was a lithographed tin sign made in 14 colors. More than 10,000 were produced, but today it is rare and expensive. Copies of the sign have been made in recent years.

Tip: To clean pearls, gently wipe with a soft cloth or chamois. Do not soak a strand of pearls in water, because this will rot the string. If you get tomato sauce, makeup, hair spray or perfume on your pearls, immediately wipe them with a damp cloth.

Paw's corner

by Sam Mazzotta

Q. Please advise me how to teach my Lab to stop carrying everything away from my mechanic shop. He also chews up everything he puts in his mouth. If he is not tied 24 hours per day, he is destroying something or carrying it off.

A. Part of a Labrador retriever's natural behavior is to, well, retrieve stuff. Your dog may be taking things out of the shop because: A) they're interesting, and B) they're yours. That familiar scent is comforting; if you let him play with or chew on items in your home, he probably has the idea that he can play with anything you use.

In fact, if he knows that the shop is where you work, he may be thinking, "Hey, look — I'm HELPING!"

Constant chewing is also a common problem with high-energy dogs. The destruction he's wreaking on your possessions is not just a bad habit — it's a sign of deep frustration. Tying him up all day can certainly cause this.

Two solutions come to mind.

First, only tie your dog for two hours at a time. Let him off at lunchtime and during breaks, when you can supervise and play with him. Also, consider putting him on a run so that he has more room to move when he is tethered.

Next, introduce him to several interesting chew toys, and teach him not to touch anything else. To do this, you have to keep an eye on him throughout the training process. You must catch him IN THE ACT in order to stop the behavior; punishing him afterward won't do anything but confuse and frustrate him further.

As soon as you see him reaching for a tool, correct him with a firm "No!" or a growl. Don't hit him. Take him to a designated play area and give him one of his chew toys. By teaching him the behavior you expect, you will gradually be able to let him off the tether for longer periods until — hopefully — he can play near the shop with limited supervision.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 5, 1815, Friedrich Anton Mesmer, an Austrian physician who pioneered the medical field of hypnotic therapy, dies in obscurity in Austria. Despite the eccentricities of his techniques, Mesmer is seen as a major innovator of hypnotic therapy and also one of the first Western physicians to safely treat psychosomatic illness.

• On March 7, 1809, Jean-Pierre Blanchard, who along with American John Jeffries made the first successful balloon crossing of the English Channel, dies in Paris from injuries suffered after falling from a balloon during a demonstration.

• On March 6, 1836, during the Texas War for Independence, Mexican president and general Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna orders the first assault on the fortified Alamo mission in San Antonio, held by 144 Texans and Americans under the leadership of Colonel William B. Travis, Jim Bowie and Davy Crockett.

• On March 9, 1950, auto racer Danny Sullivan was born in Louisville, Ky. He is perhaps most famous for his 1989 victory at the Indianapolis Speedway in which he recovered from a near accident and a 360-degree spin before finishing first.

• On March 8, 1965, two U.S. Marine battalions, the first U.S. combat troops openly assigned to Vietnam, go ashore near Da Nang in South Vietnam. Within five days, a total of 3,500 Marines have landed at Da Nang.

• On March 10, 1969, James Earl Ray pleads guilty to the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. and is sentenced to 99 years in prison. In the last decades of his life, inconsistencies in the case against him and in the official analysis of the King assassination led some to support Ray's theory that he was a scapegoat in a larger conspiracy.

• On March 11, 1990, Lithuania proclaims its independence from the U.S.S.R., the first Soviet republic to do so.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Shakespeare's famous play "Romeo and Juliet" was actually based on a real couple. The original Romeo and Juliet were married in Citadella, Italy, in 1302.

• St. Chad is known as the patron saint of medicinal springs. In the seventh century A.D., he was the bishop of Lichfield, England, which was known for its exceptionally pure well water. St. Chad was fond of standing in the well to pray — naked. And he was sainted. That's hardly what they do with those guys in our modern times, is it?

• Evidently, it was once the custom for towns in England to keep a bull for common use.

• According to a Gallup poll, 28 percent of Americans believe that people can hear from or communicate mentally with someone who has died. Who are these people? Do you know them? I don't. At least, I don't think I do.

• It's very easy to make nitroglycerin at home. My syndicate's lawyers, however, have advised me not to explain how.

• In 1892, President Benjamin Harrison issued an executive request that schools celebrate the 400th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyage. In response, Youth's Companion, a juvenile magazine, published the Pledge of Allegiance. It wasn't in its current form, though; the Pledge didn't contain the words "under God," until 1954, when it was added by an act of Congress in an attempt to check the creeping advance of "Godless communism."

• Not a big fan of Shakespeare's history plays? You might not be the only one. On June 29, 1613, the Globe Theatre was burned down — during the first performance of "Henry VIII."

Herrington Manor State Park Noted As Clean Marina

Herrington Manor State Park was named a Maryland Clean Marina Partner recently, the second of only three state boat ramps to earn such recognition. The designation indicates that park managers minimize their own boating-related pollution and actively promote clean boating habits.

Herrington Manor maintenance chief Leonard Ford was instrumental in helping the park achieve Clean Marina status. "Leonard and his colleagues at Potomac/Garrett State Forest are balancing recreational use with environmental protection," said Department of Natural Resources Secretary Sarah Taylor-Rogers. "Their leadership and commitment to environmental stewardship is commendable."

All maintenance of State vessels at Herrington Manor is conducted inside the park maintenance shop, where debris can be contained. Signs and posters near the boat ramp remind boaters not to discharge trash, sewage, or fuel. Park staff efforts' protect natural resources inland as well, as all fuel tanks throughout Potomac/Garrett State Forest have secondary containment and are inspected for leaks on a regular basis.

The DNR's Maryland Clean Marina Initiative promotes and celebrates voluntary adoption of measures to reduce pollution from recreational boating. Operators of marinas, boatyards, and yacht clubs qualify for Clean Marina certification by adopting measures to control pollution associated with vessel maintenance and repair, petroleum storage and transfer; sewage disposal; solid, liquid, and hazardous wastes; stormwater runoff; and facilities management. The Clean Marina Partner designation was created to recognize boating facilities (other than marinas, boatyards, and yacht clubs) that are implementing pollution prevention measures.

The goal of the Clean Marina Initiative is to certify 25 percent of Maryland's 600 boating facilities as Clean Marinas or Clean Marina Partners by 2004. Of these, 25 have been certified as Clean Marinas and three have been certified as Clean Marina Partners. For more details about the initiative or to order free pollution prevention materials for boaters, interested persons may call DNR at 877-620-8367, ext. 8770, or consult the agency's web site www.dnr.state. md.us/boating.

Not available for the photo were additional new board members JoAnn Vent and Lynn Elmlinger. The Dove Center board's monthly meetings are open to the public, and the next meeting set for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 20, at the Grantsville Senior Center.

FSU Programs Added For HOPE Scholarships

High school students planning to go to Frostburg State University have a much larger group of disciplines to choose from and still qualify for the Maryland HOPE Scholarship Program.

The HOPE Scholarship provides financial assistance to high school students who will attend college full-time in Maryland with the promise of working full-time in the state of Maryland following graduation for one year for each year of assistance received. FSU students would be eligible for $3,000 per year.

FSU's eligible majors for the 2001-2002 school year are Accounting, Art and Design, Business Administration, Economics, General English, Environmental Analysis and Planning, Foreign Languages and Literature, Geography, History, International Studies, Justice Studies, Mass Communications, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Recreation and Parks Management, Social Science, Social Work, Sociology, Speech Communication and Theater, and Wildlife and Fisheries.

The majors are chosen because they are programs that will lead to jobs that are considered areas of shortage in the state of Maryland.

Deadline for application for the 2001-2002 school year is March 1. Persons wanting further information, may call the FSU Financial Aid office at 301-687-4301.

Roscoe Bartlett Presented Award By Manufacturers

Maryland Sixth District Congressman Roscoe G. Bartlett Jr. has been awarded the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) Award for Manufacturing Legislative Excellence in recognition of his consistent support of American manufacturers and their employees, NAM member W.R. Grace & Co.'s chief executive officer, Paul J. Norris, announced Tuesday.

The award is given by the NAM — one of the nation's largest and most influential business groups — to senators and representatives based on their voting records on key legislation affecting the manufacturing community. Its recipients have shown support for a pro-growth, pro-manufacturing, pro-worker agenda. Members of Congress are notified throughout the congressional session of votes that will be considered as "Key Votes" used to determine eligibility for the award. This marks the second time that NAM has given the award.

"Congressman Roscoe's voting record shows a true understanding of manufacturing's key role in the strength of our economy and a willingness to cast the critical votes that will boost competitiveness, job creation, and prosperity for working Americans," said Norris, noting that Bartlett voted in support of manufacturers on 84% of the NAM determined key votes.

Grace is a leading global supplier of catalysts and silica products, specialty construction chemicals and building materials, and container products. With annual sales of approximately $1.6 billion, Grace has over 6,000 employees and operations in nearly 40 countries

Farm Issues Appear In 2001 Maryland General Assembly

Each year the Maryland Farm Bureau staffs its Annapolis office during the annual session of the General Assembly. The staff publishes a weekly "Hotline" listing bills that will be heard by Senate and House committees, and is available to the state's farm community to answer questions about those bills. Valerie Connelly and Jessica Fritz can be reached by calling 410-269-0656. The Hotline can be accessed online at: http://www.mdfarmbureau.com/Hotline4.htm.

Ag Land Preservation - A bill that was heard Tues., Feb. 20, by the House Appropriations Committee (H.B. 616) would prevent a landowner from terminating an agricultural land preservation easement purchased after July 1, 2002. Currently, a landowner may request that an easement be reviewed for possible termination at any time after 25 years from the date of purchase.

Heard the same day by the House Appropriations Committee was H.B. 988, Agriculture - Land Preservation - Termination of Easement, a bill that would allow a landowner to request review for possible termination of an easement at any time. After 25 years, MALPF must conduct an inquiry to determine the feasibility of profitable farming on the subject land.

Connelly, from Farm Bureau's Annapolis office, said that Farm Bureau opposes both bills, and that they both were referred to a Joint Committee on Program Open Space and will be heard by that committee today.

Ag Statistics - Horses - This bill would require the Agricultural Statistics Service to conduct a census of the number of horses on Maryland farms in the years in which the census of agriculture is conducted.

Connelly said that Maryland Farm Bureau policy supports the inclusion of inventories of the various classes of equine in the state in future MDA and NASS agriculture statistical surveys, and supports this bill. H.B. 643, which was heard last week by the House Environmental Matters Committee, but no vote has yet been taken.

Nuisance Control - No vote has been taken yet by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee on S.B. 577, Nuisance Control - Authority to Investigate and File a Complaint - Penalties for Violations. This bill gives the local health officer new authority to investigate nuisance complaints.

The bill defines a nuisance as "a condition that is dangerous to the health or safety of an individual including but not limited to: an inadequately protected swimming pool, an unprotected open ditch; an unsanitary outhouse; a foul piggen, an improperly functioning sewage system, an unkempt junkyard, an unkempt scrap metal processing facility; an excessive accumulation of trash or garbage, a dead animal, a contaminated water supply; an inadequately protected water supply, a rodent harborage, poor housekeeping that could endanger the health of the owner, occupant, employee, or a neighbor; and any condition that may endanger the health of an individual through running streams, surface drainage, air currents, birds, domestic animals, or human beings."

The bill would increase fines from $100 to $1,000. Connelly said that Farm Bureau opposes S.B. 577 as drafted, but supports an amendment to ensure that farms using Best Management Practices (BMP) cannot be deemed a nuisance.

Garrett County - Right to Farm - This bill, S.B. 578, introduced by Sen. John Hafer, et al, would allow the county commissioners of Garrett County to adopt an ordinance or regulation, or take any other action considered necessary to protect a person's right to farm or engage in agricultural or forestry operations.

Before taking any action they must first hold a public hearing and provide reasonable notice of the hearing.

Maryland Farm Bureau policy supports reasonable and workable actions designed to permit and protect the privilege and rights of farmers to engage in agricultural or forestry operations, and they support the bill, which was heard last week by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee but has not been voted on yet.

Deer Management Plan - Heard yesterday by the House Environmental Matters Committee, H.B. 1005, Natural Resources - Deer Management Plan, is a bill that would require the secretary of the DNR, in consultation with the Wildlife Advisory Commission, to develop, adopt, and implement a comprehensive plan to manage the deer population in Maryland by Oct. 1, 2001.

Beginning in FY 2002, the governor would be required to provide sufficient funds in the annual state budget to achieve the goals of the plan by Oct. 1, 2007.

Connelly said this was the biggest policy issue brought to the recent state Farm Bureau convention by county representatives, and is fully supported by Farm Bureau. She said this is one of the most frustrating problems the state's farmers must deal with, as statewide they suffered a $60 million loss last year to feed the state's deer population.

Supposedly, a plan has been in the works for years. Connelly said the last document she has is dated 1997, and is stamped "draft." She said a plan has never been finalized by the state administration. "They can't agree on how to count the state's deer herd, or what the threshold should be," she said. This bill would require the finalization of a plan, and would require the governor to fund it.

Cover Crop Cost Share - A Senate Joint Resolution (S.J. 12) has been introduced that urges the governor to expand the geographic area covered under the cover crop program to include the entire state. The bill also urges annual funding of $6 million.

Connelly said the General Assembly cannot tell the governor how he should budget money, but can only make recommendations, and this is a recommendation that Farm Bureau supports.

She said cover crop cost sharing is only a paid program in nine counties on the Eastern Shore. Across the rest of the state, and in many counties with steep slopes, cover crops are recommended, but farmers must pay for seed and other planting expenses themselves because no cost share is available.

Income Tax Credit - The House Ways and Means Committee will hear H.B. 681 today, a bill that would allow an individual who donates or sells an easement to MALPF or MET to claim a credit against state income tax for the amount of the donation as long as the easement is perpetual and the easement is accepted and approved by the Board of Public Works.

The tax credit would be calculated based on the difference in the fair market value before and after the easement is conveyed. The credit would be reduced by the amount of any payment received for the easement. The credit is limited to $5,000 per year, but the excess may be carried forward for 15 years.

Connelly said this is one of the recommendations of the Task Force on Ag Land Preservation on which Maryland Farm Bureau served, and is supported by the organization.

National Legislative Update

Dairy Compact - Legislation to ratify the Southern Dairy Compact and reauthorize and expand the Northeast Dairy Compact will be introduced on Capitol Hill this month.

Connelly said that Reps. Asa Hutchinson (R-AR), Bob Etheridge (D-NC), Don Sherwood (R-PA, and James McGovern (D-MA) will be reintroducing this legislation and are seeking original cosponsors.

So far, Maryland Rep. Roscoe Bartlett and several others have cosponsored the bill. Last year the entire Maryland delegation signed on, Connelly said. However, the bill is expected to see an uphill battle just like last year.

Connelly said the reason is that "delegates representing Wisconson and Minnesota would rather see eastern farmers forced out of business instead of seeing the dairy compact expand."

The Northeast Dairy Compact has paid over $135 million to nearly 4,000 dairy farmers in New England and eastern New York state. It is projected that if the farmers in the 25 states that have passed state compact legislation had been active members of an expanded interstate compact in 2000, they would have received over $500 million.

The states which have passed state compact legislation, outside of the current NE Dairy Compact area, are: Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, New York, Georgia, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Texas, Nebraska, Ohio, and Utah.

According to Connelly, Maryland Farm Bureau members are asked to contact their member of Congress and ask that he/she become original cosponsors of dairy compact legislation.

Farming In Maryland.....

Veneman Calls For Cooperation On Farm Policy

In her first major public speech as Secretary of Agriculture last week, Ann Veneman repeated President George W. Bush's broad goals for agriculture, but revealed little new information about the administration's plans for farm programs.

"As we look to the next Farm Bill, we should consider new approaches to policy development," Veneman said at the USDA's Agricultural Outlook Forum 2001 in Arlington, Virginia.

Veneman agreed with her predecessor, Dan Glickman, noting there can be no turning back from efforts to increase trade. "What the world and U.S. agriculture needs is more trade, not less," she said.

Foot & Mouth Disease Alarms Europe & World

Britain gave itself seven days last Thursday to contain a foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) outbreak that has led to a world ban on exports of its livestock and animal products.

The move plunged the meat industry into a new crisis. Although the disease can be fatal to animals, it poses little risk to humans, according to Reuters News Service.

FMD can be spread through the air or transmitted through urine, milk, semen or saliva. In Brussels, experts fear the virus is so contagious it could travel across the English Channel and spark an outbreak on the Continent, a nightmare scenario that could bring Europe's meat trade to its knees.

"The signs so far are optimistic that we are keeping on top of the problem," National Farmers Union president Ben Gill told Reuters. "We are hoping for the best but fearing the worst."

New Crop Disaster Program Sign-up Begins At Agency

The Farm Service Agency is now accepting applications for the new Crop Disaster Program, announced Michael R. Kozier, county executive director of the Allegany-Garrett Farm Service Agency. The Crop Disaster Program provides financial assistance to farmers who are eligible for compensation for crop losses directly attributed to adverse weather and related conditions.

"Natural disasters are a constant threat to our farmers," said Kozier. "This program will help those who suffered losses last year. The sign-up period has begun, and the end of the sign-up period will be announced at a later date, once the program regulations are published in the Federal Register," he said.

According to Kozier, 2000 CDP payments will be calculated at 65 percent of the county rate for insured and non-insurable crops. For crops that are insurable in the county, but for which the producer did not purchase insurance, the payment will be calculated at 60 percent of the county rate.

"Funding is not limited for the 2000 CDP, unlike last year," said Kozier. "Because it was fully funded, farmers will receive 100 percent of the final calculated payments as soon as program regulations are published — providing their county office committee has approved their CCC-557 (application), and the producer has provided all the necessary program documentation."

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to provide disaster assistance through the CDP by the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001, Pub. L. 106-387.

Will 107th Congress Eliminate "Death Tax?"

Last year, a presidential veto was the only thing that stood between farmers and ranchers receiving significant tax relief in the form of the gradual elimination of estate taxes. Now with the support of President George W. Bush, Congress again is prepared to pass bipartisan legislation to do away with the so called death tax.

Reps. Jennifer Dunn (R-Wash.) and John Tanner (D-Tenn.) last week introduced the Death Tax Elimination Act of 2001. The bill is designed to ensure that the individuals, family partnerships, and family corporations that comprise 99 percent of U.S. farms can continue their agricultural tradition.

"This is the official start of the funeral procession of the death tax," Dunn said.

The legislation will:

- reduce death tax rates 5 percent a year until the tax is eliminated,
- immediately increase the death tax exemption to $1.3 million, and
- make no changes in the stepped-up basis.

While introducing the bill, Tanner cited grim statistics highlighting the devastating impact the death tax has on family farms.

"Roughly 70 percent of small businesses and family farms don't survive to a second generation, and 87 percent won't survive to a third generation largely because of the effects of a subjective, inefficient estate tax," Tanner said. "That is wrong, whether you are talking about a family-owned farm, a newspaper, a grocery store, a local pharmacy, a funeral home, or a car dealership."

The bill, although similar to the measure passed by Congress last year, includes a significant new benefit, according to Pat Wolff, an American Farm Bureau Federation senior director of governmental relations.

"The increase in the death tax exemption from $675,000 per person to $1.3 million per person offers immediate relief to farmers and ranchers," Wolff said.

Proponents of death tax elimination look forward to the president's approval of this legislation, which he pledged to support during his campaign.

"Estate taxes can destroy family-owned farms, ranches, and small businesses, when the tax — which can be as high as 55 percent — forces farmers and ranchers to sell land, buildings, or equipment to pay the government," Bush last year wrote in response to a presidential questionnaire from the American Farm Bureau Federation. "That's why I favor eliminating the estate tax to allow farms, ranches, and other small businesses to be passed, intact, from one generation to the next."

Bush said he will leave it up to lawmakers to determine how best to move his proposed $1.6 trillion tax cut through Congress, but emphasized the elimination of the death tax as a top priority.

AFBF president Bob Stallman is optimistic that Bush will maintain his support for death tax elimination.

"If he (Bush) gets a bill on his desk, he's going to sign it," said Stallman.

The Senate also is preparing death tax elimination legislation.

Ag Commission Offers Congress Suggestions For 2002 Farm Bill

The Commission on 21st Century Production Agriculture last week presented its much anticipated final report to Congress and Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman, calling on lawmakers considering the next farm bill to "pursue policies and programs" that will provide an overall income safety net, ensure a competitive farm economy, and increase trade opportunities.

American Farm Bureau Federation president and commission member Bob Stallman said the "report presents broad concepts that will help agriculture flourish in the future, and provides opportunity for specific proposals that will encourage a healthy farm policy debate."

The commission was created by the 1996 Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform (FAIR) Act and was given the responsibility of offering suggestions to Congress and the president in developing a direction for farm policy for 2002, when the 1996 farm bill expires, and beyond.

Included in the commission's report are recommendations on an income safety net, risk management, conservation and the environment, agricultural trade, individual commodity policies, and small and limited resource farms.

To prevent prolonged dependence on emergency farm assistance, the report suggested lawmakers continue with fixed Agricultural Market Transaction Act (AMTA) payments, loan deficiency payments, and marketing loans. The report calls for an adjustment in the marketing loan rates to reflect a balance between the historical market value of individual crops and recommends that payment limitations be removed.

The commission cited the need for a countercyclical income support program, which the report referred to as supplemental income support (SIS).

"The SIS program, along with the extension of the fixed AMTA payment, would provide a flexible income safety net for agricultural producers in times of depressed market conditions and/or adverse weather events," Dr. Barry Flinchbaugh, commission chairman, told members of the House and Senate Agriculture committees. Flinchbaugh presented a summary report on behalf of the entire commission.

The commission proposed implementation of two risk management elements, insurance programs and savings account programs. The group recommended an insurance program in which the government provides farmers with a voucher to offset the cost of premiums, and said lawmakers should offer farm and ranch risk management (FARRM) accounts without any time restrictions on how long the money may be left in the account.

"At Farm Bureau, we are especially pleased that the report rejects calls to revert back to failed supply management schemes of the past," Stallman said. "We are also happy that the commission's findings recognize the need for countercyclical income support to help producers when prices tumble and {that these findings} call for additional risk management tools, like farm and ranch risk management accounts."

In the trade realm, the commission suggested Congress grant the president fast-track trade negotiating authority. Regarding the World Trade Organization, the group said trade reform addressing labor and environmental issues should not be debated in that forum.

In addition to Stallman, Missouri Farm Bureau president Charles Kruse and Indiana Farm Bureau vice president Don Villwock also served on the commission.

The other members of the commission are: Bruce Brumfield, Inverness, Miss.; John Campbell, Omaha, Neb.; Donald Cook, Pendleton, Ore.; Jim DuPree, Newport, Ark.; William Northey, Spirit Lake, Iowa; Ralph Paige, East Point, Ga.; and Leland Swenson, Aurora, Colo.

For further information on the commission, those interested may visit www.ageomission.org. The report is available through USDA's web site at www.usda.gov/oce. A final print version of the report is available.

Potato Stocks Reach Record High In U.S.

The 15 major potato states surveyed by the National Ag Statistics Service held a record high 235 million cwt of potatoes on February 1, up 13% from last year and 4% above the previous record set in February 1997.

Potatoes in storage accounted for 51% of the 2000 fall storage states' production, up 2 percentage points from a year ago. This year's storage held more reds but fewer round whites than a year earlier.

Md. NRCS Opens Sign-Up For Wildlife Conservation Funds

David Doss, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), has announced that Maryland received funding of $225,000 to restore wildlife habitat through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP). NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency.

Landowners interested in filing an application for funding consideration or learning more about WHIP or other conservation programs should immediately contact their county's Soil Conservation District or NRCS office located at USDA service centers. Applications will be ranked according to criteria that will determine which proposals offer the most environmental benefits at the lowest cost.

"Now in its third sign-up, Maryland has received a total of $616,000 in WHIP funds. Previous funding provided cost-share reimbursement to farmers, landowners, and schools that planted native grasses or restored riparian buffers, streambanks, and wetlands for use as wildlife habitat," said Doss. "WHIP conservation practices restore and manage upland grass habitat and riparian buffers to benefit game birds, song birds, and other wildlife."

"Maryland enjoyed tremendous success during our previous enrollment periods by assisting landowners in installing WHIP conservation practices," said Anne Lynn, NRCS Maryland state biologist and Maryland WHIP program manager. "In our previous two enrollments, we accepted a total of 149 cost-share agreements. Over the next five years, WHIP funding will help landowners pay for the planned restoration of 626 acres of upland habitat (primarily native warm-season grasses), 43 acres of riparian buffers, and 123 acres of shallow water wetlands."

Conservation practices eligible for WHIP funding are:

- restoration of grassland habitat in field borders and entire fields;
- restoration of riparian buffers with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants;
- stabilization of adjacent streambanks with trees and shrubs; and
- establishment of shallow water wetland areas for wildlife.

To qualify for WHIP, the application must contain at least one acre of grassland, shrub, or tree plantings, at least 150 feet of streambank stabilization plantings, or at least one acre of shallow water wetland habitat. Outdoor classrooms or educational projects may be exempt from the minimum size criteria.

WHIP participants enter into a cost share agreement to install specific wildlife conservation practices, as established in their conservation plan. A WHIP agreement lasts from 5 to 10 years, with NRCS providing technical assistance and paying up to 75% of the cost of installing the conservation practices. Cost-share generally does not exceed $10,000 per contract. Other cooperating state wildlife organizations or nonprofit agencies may provide expertise and additional cost-share funds to help the landowner complete the project.

"WHIP is an important conservation program because it restores habitat that was lost due to intensive farming and urbanization," added Lynn. "Private and public schools are encouraged to apply for WHIP funds to create wildlife habitat areas and stream buffers on their school grounds. Conservation practices installed through WHIP provide schools with an excellent resource for developing outdoor educational classrooms where wildlife can be studied and managed."

WHIP is a voluntary conservation program that was created in the 1996 Farm Bill. WHIP is currently budgeted nationwide at a total funding level of $20 million through September 2001. Funds will be targeted to wildlife and fishery areas currently experiencing significant declines in wildlife habitat.

NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has worked hand-in-hand with farmers and landowners for more than 65 years to conserve natural resources on private lands. Maryland's landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting NRCS Maryland through USDA service centers collocated with their county's Soil Conservation District or by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Moreland Is Member Of "Beltie" Society

Marcella Moreland, Oakland, is a new member of the Belted Galloway Society, according to Marlin Sherbin, president of the association. The association was formed in 1951 and has over 800 members today.

Belted Galloway cattle originated in the 17th century in Scotland. As a very rare breed, there are only approximately 30 registered belties in the state of Maryland. Belties are black, red, or dun (gray), with a full white belt around their middle.

Marcella's belties are black, with the belt. She purchased one, not thoroughbred, "Johnette," and one registered, "Oreo." The registered beltie was purchased from a farm in Charleston, W.Va., originating from Kentucky. Marcella hopes to soon have a calf from the registered cow.

As a member of the society, Marcella is eligible to take part in all Galloway Society sponsored shows and other events, many which are held in Canada. She may also breed calves and register them in the Belted Galloway Society.

Berries May Protect Against Cancer and Heart Disease

Blueberries, cranberries, huckleberries and related plants have now been found to contain resveratrol, a potential anticancer agent, according to Agricultural Research Service scientists who made the discovery. This new finding from Agricultural Research Service chemist Agnes Rimando at the Natural Products Utilization Research Unit, Oxford, Miss., adds to previous research by other scientists who found that dark-skinned bunch grapes contain resveratrol.

Using chemical identification procedures, the team of scientists measured the resveratrol content of 30 whole fruit samples of blueberry, cranberry, huckleberry and related plants. The samples represented five families and 10 species of fruit. They also measured resveratrol in skin, juice/pulp and seed samples of muscadine grape.

Because of its important biological properties, resveratrol (3,5,4-trihydroxystilbene) has been examined extensively in grapes. Studies showed the compound protects the grapes from fungal diseases. It also provides health benefits for consumers by reducing the risk of cardiovascular disease. The compound's anticancer potential warranted its examination in other fruits.

The team's studies showed that several samples of fruit contain varying amounts of the compound. Analysis of the extracts of the skin, juice/pulp and seed of muscadine grapes showed that concentration of resveratrol in the skin was highest. Levels in the juice/pulp were much lower than in the skin and seeds.

The new data could help build a foundation for increasing resveratrol in those berry and grape crops that are important to many small farmers. Future research goals will include enhancing production of resveratrol in selected species.

Farm Employee Loyalty

In a tight labor market, keeping employees and developing employee loyalty become increasingly important and a long-term challenge.

What drives employee loyalty? Aon Consulting's survey identified these five top drivers of workforce commitment:

1. Management recognizes the importance of personal and family life.
2. The organization provides opportunities for personal growth.
3. The business is satisfying customer or societal needs.
4. Management communicates information about employee benefits.
5. Co-workers' skills keep pace with the skill demands of the job.

These five items may provide a good starting point to begin building employee loyalty. A better approach would be to determine what issues are important to your employees and focus on those areas.

Hiring Specialists May Change Downturn In Ag Economy

Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, and St. Mary's counties—seven of Maryland's 23 counties—now employ agriculture specialists, making the state a leader in the hiring of professionals to help the farm community.

These business experts and marketing professionals are stationed in local economic development offices, and are dedicated to helping farmers thrive, prompted by agriculture's declining health.

"It amounts to nothing less than a reaffirmation that agriculture is part of our economy," said J. Philip Gottwals, a former Howard County agriculture marketing specialist who now promotes the concept nationally.

These professionals, whose work falls somewhere between the technical assistance offered by the Cooperative Extension Service and the recruitment techniques of economic development officers, help individual farmers draft business plans, advise them on crop alternatives, organize seminars on estate planning, promote farm markets and seek new customers for local produce.

"A lot of places have written off agriculture in their economic development efforts to chase other industries," said Gottwals, a partner in Agricultural & Community Development Services Inc. of Columbia.

He said there is a growing realization, though, that farming anchors a host of other businesses, from implement dealers to restaurants.

"It's an industry that creates lots of jobs, provides lots of income and accounts for lots of expenditures," he concluded.

In Frederick County, where the number of dairy farms has declined by 40 percent in the past decade, agriculture industry specialist Elizabeth Miller said smarter farm management can help preserve the area's rural charm by slowing the conversion of farmland for commercial and residential use.

Annual Water Quality Report Now Available

The Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share Program (MACS) has published its 2000 annual report to the citizens of Maryland. Titled Making A Difference In Maryland, the report highlights the various best management practices that the program funds in order to help farmers protect water quality.

According to the report, Maryland farmers completed more than 2,200 conservation projects on their farms during Fiscal Year 2000 with $8 million in assistance from MACS. These practices are helping to prevent some 28,000 tons of soil and 1,200 tons of manure from impacting Maryland waterways.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The Bittinger Junior Firemen will meet Thursday, March 8, at 6:30 p.m. at the fire hall. All members are urged to attend.

The Emmanuel Lutheran Youth Group served a pancake dinner on "Shrove" Tuesday at the Community Building. It is a tradition that on Tuesday night, prior to Ash Wednesday, pancake dinners were served to use up such foods as eggs, milk, etc., prior to the Lenten Fast.

On Sunday afternoon a birthday celebration was held for Rodney Glotfelty. His mother, Ruth DiPaolo, baked the best kind of spice cake with her special brown sugar icing. Besides Rodney's family (minus Marci who had to work), those present were his sister Carol, and Kevin Bass and family, my girls and me, his uncle, Dale Glotfelty, cousin Courtney Englar, Lesa Whittemore and her daughter Maddy, who showed off her newly pierced ears, and brother Barry Glotfelty from Frederick, who was also a guest of honor, as his birthday was on February 5th. Monday evening Ruth DiPaolo was a dinner guest of the Glotfeltys.

Another recent birthday in Bittinger was that of Cindy Stanton. Like Rodney, she is still on the right side of the big "50." She had a rather quiet birthday and did not celebrate with anything special, except for the fact that her sister, Sally Poholsky, baked a cake and took it to Accident Elementary School where both of them work.

Karl and Cathy DeBoeser, Kara and Marc, Allentown, Pa., recently visited relatives in the area, and were joined by a large number of other family members for Sunday dinner at the home of Ida Reckner.

Leora Yaste recently underwent surgery on her right shoulder rotator cuff. She was injured in a recent fall. She returned home from the hospital on Saturday and her sister, Hilda Beitzel, is spending some time while she is recuperating. So far she seems to be improving, but said that it was very painful following surgery. Ruth DiPaolo visited her on Sunday evening.

A gang of Bittinger boys who are freshmen and sophomores will try out for the Northern junior varsity baseball team this week, including Torrey Poholsky, Landon Southerly, and Jordon Brenneman. They will follow the lead of junior, Greg Whittemore, who will play on the varsity this spring.

Yes, spring will come sometime soon, at least I hope so. Last fall, my Aunt Helen Englar transplanted some of her snow drops in my flower bed, and now I see some little white flowers blooming. Yesterday we had some sunshine and blue sky, but still with that hard icy wind that never seems to stop. The warmth was welcome after the last cold snap that we had recently. Several times yesterday my girls went out to fly their kite. Sometimes they did well and other times the wind was just too hard. But in between the sessions they sang the song from Mary Poppins, "Let's Go Fly a Kite." They are sad to see the snow go away and be replaced by mud and more mud.

Carol Bass took her son Scott to see the Maryland Terps' basketball game on Saturday against Oklahoma. They were lucky to watch a victory for the Terps. They do love those basketball games.

On the Cavaliers basketball team in the Dribblers League are Scott Bass, Tyler Southerly, and Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty from Bittinger. Recently during half-time at Garrett Community College between the Lakers and Essex they played a short game during halftime. As usual Garrett CC beat another down-state bigger school. Scott and Tyler made the Dribblet's All-Star Team.

I just got interrupted by my girls who got their kite up and flying and want me to come and look at it. Today, Monday, the wind is still blowing, but nothing like yesterday.

GC NATIVE RETIRES FROM DNR – Oakland native Wm. Offutt Johnson, who has served Maryland's natural resource agencies in a number of high-level positions for 35 years, retired this week from his most recent vocation as a naturalist with the State Forest and Park Service. After beginning his career during his summer breaks from high school and college, Johnson climbed the agency ladder until he was tapped to help pioneer Maryland's Program Open Space (POS) initiative in 1969. He spent the next 23 years helping administer the POS program, including dovetailing the state effort with federal funds in a unique and highly successful manner. He was instrumental in a number of local POS projects, including the construction of Broadford Lake, the Southern High track, and numerous ballfields and playgrounds throughout the county. Johnson, whose local family history stretches back over 100 years, is the descendent of a number of prominent Garrett County residents, including his great-grandfather, D.E. Offutt, who operated Offutt's Store in the building that now houses Rudy's; his grandfather, William R. Offutt, GC state's attorney who, along with D.E., helped start the former Garrett National Bank; and his father, William H. Johnson, who was the camp forester at the Swallow Falls Civilian Conservation Corps site and district forester for Maryland's four westernmost counties. Offutt Johnson is shown above to the right in his Depression-era forest warden uniform that he dons to present his living history programs on life in Garrett County's state forests and parks during the 1930s. He is available to make living history presentations to service clubs, school groups, and other organizations, and may be reached at his Annapolis home at 410-263-4996.

Roscoe H. Swiger
(aka: "The Rock")

During his years as a member of the Garrett County Board of Elections he went above and beyond what was required as a board member (1973-2001). His honesty and integrity were beyond reproach. During the years we had lever voting machines he would help prepare them for Election Day, which was not required as a board member. He came in the office at least once a week and most of the time more and did odds and ends that made Election Day go smoother.

There were times when I needed a board member to assist me in the office. I would call Rocky and in just a short time he would walk in the door. I will miss that.

When we went to meetings down state he had no problem meeting board members and staff from other counties and was respected by all.

On a personal note, Rocky was a man I liked and respected for his knowledge and personality. If I was at the pearly gates with Rocky and the Lord would ask, Is there anybody here who will step forward for this man, I would be the first (not that he would need anybody to step forward).

Rocky, I will miss you.

God Bless,
Fred Sanders
Garrett County Election Director

To Our Special Friends

We want to thank everyone who worked at the

"Cuts for Chianne"

held at the armory on Feb. 17, 2001.

The support was unbelievable and overwhelming. Darrin and I are so thankful for all of you who were willing to give up your Saturday to help our little girl. We especially want to thank the people who cut hair, gave manicures and massages. We also want to thank all the family and friends who made food, baked and stayed at their assigned posts (taking bids or tickets, or greeting people all day.

We want to thank the public for attending and making the benefit a success and all of the people who donated items to be raffled.

None of this would have been possible without the person who called me and said, "Do you mind if we do this?" — Kim Sanders. Without her and her husband Tim the benefit would not have happened. She has given so much her time and so much concern and support for us. Thank you Kim.

Sincerely,
Darrin, Carri & Chianne Bosley

Garrett County SKIES

by Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN — In March, sunlight hours each day increase — starting at 11.3 hours on March 1 and growing to 12.6 hours at month's end. The sun's midday peak height in the south creeps upward from 42 to 54 degrees (45 degrees is half way up). Sunrise times slide backward from 6:51 a.m. on March 1 to 6:04 at the end of March. Sunset times move forward from 6:10 p.m. on March 1 to 6:42 p.m. on month's end. Spring officially begins on March 20 at 8:31 a.m. On that date the sun rises due east and sets due west over much of the world. March 17 is break even day with the night and daylight hours at 12 (both sunrise and sunset are at 6:27).

THE MOON — Early March features a half-full moon in the evening sky (looks like a "D") that's great for crater spotting for telescopes and binoculars. On March 1 and March 28 the moon lines up with the planet Saturn. On March 2 and 29 the moon will appear close to the planet Jupiter. The evening moon grows to full on the night of March 9-10, then rising at dusk. By March 15 the moon will have shrunk to half-full, rising after midnight and appearing near the orange planet Mars in the southern dawn. By the 21st, the moon is last seen as a sliver in the eastern dawn. The moon reappears low in the western dusk on March 26, appearing as a razor sharp crescent. Don't miss the crescent moon's line-ups with Saturn and Jupiter a few days later.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. In early March three bright evening planets can be seen. The brilliant planet Venus appears as the first bright point of light in the western dusk. Higher in the southwest the bright planets Jupiter and Saturn are prominent. Jupiter is the brighter object. During March the planet Venus steadily drops in the western dusk, vanishing in the twilight in March's third week. The planet Mars is a morning object, appearing in the southern dawn.

MARCH'S BEST SIGHTS — In the southwestern evening sky Orion with his three-star belt (in a row) is conspicuous. This belt points rightward to the bright planets Jupiter and Saturn. The belt points leftward to Sirius, the night's brightest star. The Big Dipper is prominent in the north. The Dipper's two top stars point left and down to the North Star, a modest star about halfway from the horizon to the top of the sky.

MARCH ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — The Frostburg State Planetarium feature for March is "Our Sun and the Other Stars," comparing our sun to its stellar neighbors. Our planetarium programs start with a live tour of the current evening sky using our planetarium projector. Our free public programs are each Sunday at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m., each presentation lasting about an hour. The planetarium is in the front lobby of Lawes Hall, near the middle of the Frostburg State campus. There is free, convenient parking nearby. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will have its monthly meeting on Friday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the LaVale Public Library. All interested sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State University. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask a sky question, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "Skywatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Dr. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.
